"Wouldn't you try to get a divorce from a woman who abused you and neglected your home and thought more of her club than she did of you?" thundered the big man.

"I don't think I would," replied Henry Peck. "I am afraid Henrietta would not let me."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE SAFETY HABIT

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, It's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

NOTED SPEED KINGS OF WORLD AT FAIR

Famous Woman Driver to Pit Skill Against Field.

The speed kings of the world, intent upon winning the big prizes offered for world's records and victories in special events, will gather from all corners of the world, September 11, to compete in the big auto racing program at the Minnesota State Fair. One of the biggest programs ever held in the Northwest is assured.

The feature of them all will be Joan Newton Cunio of New York, champion woman auto race driver of the world. The sensational victories of this fearless woman over such well known drivers as Ralph De Palma, Bob Burman, and many others, caused the American Automobile Association to bar woman drivers from any races sanctioned by it. In this way was acknowledgment paid to her prowess at the steering wheel of a racing machine. She will try for world's records, and compete in many of the races.

Many Drivers Entered.

Many drivers of international reputation have entered the state fair race card. Louis Disbrow, holder of more world's dirt track records than any other driver, will race in his Simplex Zip and Blitzen Benz 300-horsepower machines. Tom Alley, holder of the world's 100-mile dirt track record, made at the Minnesota State Fair, will appear as a defender of his record. Ralph Mulford, holder of the 200-mile world's dirt track record, is another entry that has been promised.

MRS. CUNIO AT WHEEL.

"Wild Bill" Endicott and Eddie Hearne, drivers in more races than any other, with the possible exception of Barney Oldfield, will appear with special racing creations. Johnny Raimey, the dare-devil driver who has plunged through the fence four times in his career, will pit his skill against the field. Tommy Milton and Fred Horey, Minnesota boys who have won a high standing in the racing game, are entered. Lee Gunning and Joe Bianchi, appearing in the Northwest for the first time, are coming. Bianchi is the idol of Italian racing devotees.

Feature Race.

The feature race will be a one-hour free-for-all race for a large purse, competed in by all drivers entered. Trials for world's records and several other special speed events are also scheduled. The motorcycle card will bring together many of the world's record drivers.

SOME HINTS FOR BUILDERS

Great Care Should Be Taken in Selection of the Most Substantial Roofing Material.

If you were without preparation or plan, rudely placed in a wilderness, your first thought would be of food supply and your next of shelter, for these are the two most vital necessities of mankind. It is therefore natural that the best thought, and study are put upon these two essentials.

More forward steps have been taken in the building industry in the past fifteen years, as regards comfort, service and architectural beauty than in the fifty years previous.

Only in recent years has the handling of cement in building work been understood properly, and progress is still constantly being made with it. Modern hotels and office buildings are being equipped with sheet metal mouldings and steel veenered doors. Nearly every important change in building construction is away from the fire hazard of wood.

One of the most significant developments of recent years is the crushed slate surfaced asphalt shingle which is, on new construction and old, rapidly supplanting the wooden article. There are many reasons for this. The slate surfaced shingles add beauty to any building—in fact, there is really no comparison from an architectural standpoint. Crushed slate of pleasing tints of red or green, is employed as a surfacing. The shingles are uniformly eight inches wide and are exposed four inches to the weather. No painting is necessary as the red or green crushed slate is natural and therefore cannot fade.

The purchaser, however, should guard himself against buying a slate surfaced shingle that is not guaranteed by a reliable and responsible manufacturer. There are so many kinds of roofing and shingles on the market today each claiming to be the best that it becomes necessary for the buyer to get some satisfactory assurance that the roofing or shingles are represented honestly.

Stratagem.

"Why do you take summer boarders? You don't need the money."

"No," replied Farmer Corntossel. "But we've got a whole lot of city relatives. If we didn't hurry up and fill the house with boarders, they'd expect to visit us free of charge."

GERMANY OFFERS TO MAKE AMENDS FOR LOSS OF LIFE

INTENDS TO GIVE FULL SATISFACTION TO UNITED STATES FOR SINKING OF ARABIC.

REPARATION FOR DEATHS DUE TO LUSITANIA LOSS

Teuton Ambassador Informs State Department That Berlin Is Ready to Renew Discussion of Incident —Report of U-Boat Captain Expected.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Germany's intention to offer full satisfaction to the United States for the sinking of the liner Arabic with a loss of two American lives has been communicated formally to the state department by Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador on instructions from the Berlin foreign office.

The ambassador read to Secretary Lansing a memorandum outlining the position of his government. It promised that if it was found that the Arabic was attacked without warning the Imperial government not only would promptly disavow the act, but would give the United States "full satisfaction." This, it is well known, would have to include reparation for the Americans lost and assurances that such tragedies would not be repeated.

In a Waiting Attitude.

No further developments in the situation are expected now until the submarine commander who sank the Arabic has reported to Berlin. In the meantime President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, though visibly encouraged and relieved by Count von Bernstorff's assurances and reports from Ambassador Gerard on his conferences with Foreign Minister von Jagow are in a waiting attitude.

Before the American government can speak, there must be forthcoming the German disavowal and explanation of what all evidence received has seemed to prove was an "unfriendly act."

For Lusitania Deaths.

It became known that the state department has been informed that Germany is ready to renew discussion of the Lusitania incident and to offer reparation for the American lives lost when that vessel was sent to the bottom without warning by a German submarine. There has been no response to the last American note on this subject, and it is known that the United States would not listen to reparation proposals with the situation created by the sinking of the Arabic still pending. With the attack on the Arabic disavowed, however, and guarantees given against repetition, a German communication explaining that the Lusitania was torpedoed as a reprisal against Great Britain under a misapprehension that she was armed, and that killing of Americans was regretted and not intended, and offering reparation, probably would pave the way for amicably closing the incident.

U-Boat Captain's Report.

In German quarters, confidence was felt that the submarine's report would soon reach Berlin.

German officials have made it plain that their government, as soon as it has relieved the strain upon its relations with the United States by limiting submarine activities, will ask the American government to demand that Great Britain and her allies cease interfering with legitimate neutral commerce and thus permit the importation of foodstuffs for the German civil population.

King of Sweden Hurt.

Stockholm, via London, Aug. 30.—King Gustav had a narrow escape from serious injury at Jema. As he was entering his car to proceed to Stockholm, the train started with a sudden jerk, throwing him down. His foot was jammed between the car and the platform and he fell heavily. He was picked up quickly, however, and assisted into his car. Except for a slight lameness he is little the worse for the accident.

Governors Endorse Suffrage.

Boston, Aug. 30.—Former Governor Alva Adams of Colorado, speaking at a suffrage mass meeting, characterized the preamble to the federal constitution as a "lie and a delusion," in those states which have not granted women suffrage. It would never be justified, he said, until women have the vote. Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas also spoke in favor of extending the suffrage to women.

Chicago Professor Upholds Slang.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—"In the presence of slang I stand unappalled, because slang does not corrupt the English language. Slang never has corrupted the English language and as long as there remains a cultivated group of men to speak it slang never will corrupt the English language." So said Professor Thomas A. Knott, of the University of Chicago in introducing his discussion of "Slang, Colloquialism and Standard Usage." He declared that slang was a phase of the development of the language.

AWAITS GERMAN DISAVOWEL

WILSON LOOKS FOR SOLUTION OF SUBMARINE CONTROVERSY.

Von Bernstorff Is Confident Note from Berlin Will Dispose of Arabic Problem.

Washington, Aug. 31. — President Wilson has decided definitely to remain in Washington until the situation between the United States and Germany is cleared up. Officials have been urging him to go to Cornish, N. H., for a rest, but he has announced that he will stay here pending the receipt of further word from Berlin.

Looks for Disavowal.

The President, it was said, authoritatively, has been led by the statements of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, to Secretary Lansing, and reports received from American Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to hope that a solution for the submarine controversy with Germany will be found. He is waiting, however, for the imperial government's formal disavowal of the attack on the Arabic and assurance that the lives of Americans traveling on unarmed merchantmen will not be endangered again.

Von Bernstorff Confident.

Count von Bernstorff left for the summer embassy on Long Island. He still was confident that within a short time a formal communication would reach Washington from the Berlin foreign office, disposing of the situation growing out of the sinking of the Arabic and paving the way for an amicable adjustment of all issues between the American and German governments. The ambassador probably will not return to the capital until the note from Berlin arrives.

5,000 HOMELESS BY FLOOD

Thousands of Acres of Rich Farm Lands Under Water in Arkansas Section.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 30.—More than 5,000 persons are homeless within a radius of 200 miles of Newport, Ark., and many others, marooned in their houses by the flood, have been living in upper stories or on roofs with only scant food supplies for four, five and even six days, it was said here last night by D. C. Welty, agricultural commissioner of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railway. After a motorboat trip of a week through the flooded section, Mr. Welty reported that he found conditions serious, thousands of acres of rich farm lands under water, heavy loss in live stock and personal property, but that apparently there had been no loss of life and refugees were being well cared for in various camps.

SCORE HURT IN "L" ACCIDENT

Chicago Elevated Runs Into Rear of Railroad—200 Passengers Severely Shaken.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—More than a score of persons were injured and about 200 severely shaken when an elevated train on the Metropolitan Elevated railroad ran into the rear of an Aurora-Elgin and Chicago railroad train which was standing at a station in the suburb of Oak Park. The rear car of the standing train was partly telescoped. The tracks at the place where the accident took place are not elevated and are used by both roads.

The injured persons were taken to a nearby fire engine house and all the physicians in the vicinity summoned.

DUTCH NEUTRALITY IS VIOLATED BY ZEPPELIN

Amsterdam, Aug. 26.—The Telegraaf learned from Vlieland that a Zeppelin dirigible balloon passed over the island of the Netherlands, traveling from an eastern to a northwestern direction. Vlieland is off the entrance to the Zuider Zee and in a northwesterly direction lies the northeast coast of England.

Slav Offensive Broken, Claim.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 30.—The fall of Brest-Litovsk caused discussions among members of the Reichstag. The event is regarded as emphasizing the impression that the Russians will not be able to resume the offensive with any prospect of success.

Reward for Murderer's Arrest.

Dassel, Aug. 30.—A $3,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of O. M. Palmquist, cashier of the Citizen's State Bank, murdered Nov. 5, 1914, has been offered by his widow and a brother of Palmquist and the bank directors.

Edison Burned by Chemical.

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 27.—Thomas A. Edison, while at work in one of his laboratories at Silver Lake, near Newark, was painfully, though it is believed not seriously, burned about the eyes by the accidental splash of a potash solution.

Mr. Edison was leaning over a filter, when his assistant opened the wrong stopcock and the solution was thrown into his face. He quickly bathed his eyes and first aid was administered from a kit kept in the laboratory for emergencies.

AMERICAN POWDER MILLS BLOWN UP

EXPLOSIONS OCCUR AT SAME TIME IN ACTON, MASS., AND WILMINGTON, DELA.

WORK ON LARGE WAR ORDERS

Police Believe Damage Was Caused With Intent to Cripple American Powder Company—Two Dupont Workmen Are Killed.

Acton, Mass., Aug. 31.—Three powder mills were blown up in unexplained explosions, when the American Powder company here lost its glazing plant and the Dupont Powder company at Wilmington, Dela., two black powder mills at about the same time.

Two lives were lost at Wilmington. Work on large war orders will be held up for several weeks.

With a shock that was felt within a radius of 40 miles the glazing mill of the American Powder company here, which, since the outbreak of the European war, has been working to capacity, was blown up early in the morning. So far as is known nobody was killed.

Outside Sources Blamed.

The actual money loss to the company was not heavy, but it was stated that work on large orders probably would be held up several weeks.

Property owners in the surrounding towns, particularly in Maynard, were heavy losers because of shattered windows.

The mill had been closed down and the police expressed the belief that the explosion had been caused with intent to cripple the plant.

An official of the company said it would take several weeks to install new machinery, and until this was done work would be at a standstill.

Two Workmen Killed.

Wilmington, Dela., Aug. 30.—Two workmen were instantly killed and considerable damage was done to property by an explosion of two black powder mills of the Dupont Powder company in the upper Hagley yards, near here. The victims are Lawrence Cunningham, aged 45, of this city, and Hugh Gillespie, 35, of Hazleton, Pa.

The two reports were terrific, being heard more than a dozen miles away. Hundreds of windows in nearby houses were broken. Several hundred pounds of powder exploded, completely destroying the mills.

The first to go was a fuse mill. This set off the second plant nearby. Pieces of one of the victims was found in a tree on the opposite side of Brandywine creek.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined, but officials say it probably was due to a spark or to grit in the powder.

KILL 47 MEXICAN BANDITS

American Posses Still Hunting for Others of Band—Outlaws Cross Rio Grande.

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 31. — Authentic reports were received by county officers here that 47 of the Mexican bandits who participated in the attack of the Norias ranch, 65 miles north of Brownsville, August 8, have been killed by American posses and officers and that the others of the band, numbering probably fifteen, are still at large in the brush. One of these Mexicans, it was said, was killed near Sebastian while another's right arm was shot off and he was captured. A private letter received here said Mexicans were crossing the Rio Grande into Starr county and proceeding through the uninhabitated portion of the country for some unknown point in the hills. Starr county is 80 miles west of Brownsville.

Slavs Leave East Galicia.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 31.—The new Austro-German offensive movement in eastern Galicia has forced a Russian retreat over a long section of the front.

This announcement was made by army headquarters which also stated that the resistance of Russians in the north, near Kovno had been broken, and that in the center of the line, Prince Leopold's forces pursuing the Russians further had almost overtaken their right wing.

New Attack on Turks Fails.

Constantinople, via London, Aug. 31. —A new attack by land and sea on the Turkish positions at the Dardanelles has resulted in heavy fighting. The Turkish war office announced that several onlaughts had been repulsed with heavy losses to the Allies.

It was also said that a cruiser and a transport of the Allies had been hit repeatedly by the Turkish guns.

Scott Back from Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 30. — General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, returned to Washington from the Mexican border where for several weeks he has been doing special work for the state department in furtherance of the Pan-American peace plans. He would not comment on the results of his mission which he will discuss with Secretary Lansing.

The general also discussed with Villa the Pan-American convention proposal which Villa and his followers have accepted.

STATE BREVITIES

Little Falls.—Adjudged insane on the same day, Philip Bolstrom and his wife, Anna Bolstrom, were taken to the asylum at Fergus Falls. They lived on a farm at Upsala.

Rochester.—Six young persons of Rochester had a miraculous escape from death when a seven-passenger car in which they were riding ran off Cascade bridge, dropped ten feet and turned over. Five of the occupants were pinned beneath the car in the water.

Hibbing.—Not to be outdone by the announcement of postal officials of the twin cities that a postoffice department will be in operation at the state fair, J. B. O'Connors, local postmaster, declares that a branch postoffice will be established at the St. Louis county fair here.

Faribault.—Two automobiles collided near the village of Medford. The machines are owned by C. C. Clausen of Kenyon and L. J. Kinsell of Owatonna. Mrs. Clausen was thrown through the windshield and badly cut by the glass. The drivers say they were blinded by the lights.

Duluth.—William R. Stone, one of Duluth's leading business men and a prominent figure in the early life of the city, died at Santa Barbara, Cal. He was 88 years old. He is survived by his widow and four nieces, two of whom, Mrs. T. L. Blood and Mrs. W. A. Hardenbergh, live in St. Paul.

Stillwater.—Petitions were filed with the county auditor by county option people, asking that a special election be called for some time in October. The county auditor will name the date in the immediate future. The first petition in favor of county option was received by mail from Afton and had four names.

Duluth.—Meyer Fonberg, age 73, dreading the approaching cold weather and coal bills, tried to end his life in Lake Superior, but was pulled out by the police. He declares he will try again, but next time will go far enough away from the center of business not to attract attention. He declares the cold winters and the additional expense ahead cause him untold dread.

Winona.—That his mother might be successfully operated upon at a Winona hospital, M. C. Shield submitted to an operation whereby blood was transfused from his body to that of his parent, Mrs. Emma S. Shield.

Mr. Shield is an employe of the appropriations committee of the house of representatives at Washington, D. C., and is visiting in this city.

Minneapolis.—A meeting was held in Minneapolis to extend the operations of the Minnesota Game and Fish Protective league to embrace the entire state. The league's activities have been confined to Minneapolis and Hennepin county.

It is the intention to organize a society which will be composed of sportsmen from all parts of the state. Invitations to the meeting have been sent to several hundred persons.

Brainerd.—In the presence of mining and business men from Duluth, Superior, Hibbing, Virginia, Barrows and Brainerd, the Rolly mine, of the Barrows Mining company at Barrows, was christened. Little Olivet Martell of New Duluth broke a bottle of spring water on the sides of the 29,000-pound steel "shoe." The Brainerd city band played and luncheon was served. Speeches were made by John J. Moe of Duluth, C. B. Rowley and John A. Hoffbauer of Brainerd.

Appleton.—When Joseph King of Ortonville attempted to demonstrate to Howard Lockwood that his car was capable of running 50 miles an hour he approached a sharp turn and the car turned a complete revolution in the air and landed upright on the opposite side of a ditch. King was picked up from the ditch unconscious. The men were brought to town, where it was found a few bad bruises was the extent of their injuries. The car was practically ruined.

St. Cloud.—Newton F. Spear of Sauk Center, who voluntarily went to the Fergus Falls insane asylum for treatment, has served the officials with the necessary three days' notice demanding his freedom. Mrs. Spear has now filed a formal complaint against her husband. An officer from this county will meet Spear at the door of the asylum when he is released, and will bring him here for a hearing. If he is found to be still insane he will be returned to the asylum.

St. Paul.—Between 5,000 and 10,000 men representing the thirty-eight union labor organizations of St. Paul will parade through the business section of the city Labor day, September 6.

This was decided at a meeting of the parade marshals at the Trades and Labor hall.

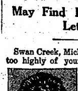
The parade will be in six divisions, each headed by a band. It will be made up of marchers from the unions and of floats representing the various industrial activities in which the union members are employed.

St. Cloud.—That even though the final decree of divorce did not provide for the support of the minor children, the wife has the right later to sue her divorced husband for a share of the cost of supporting the children, was the decision made by Judge Roeser in the case of Riley against Riley.

Moorhead.—J. A. Karlstrom and two of his employes were arrested on a charge of violating the liquor laws of the state. This is the first arrest of any of the former saloonkeepers of the city on this charge, though most of the establishments have been selling soft drinks and tobacco.

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.



Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and find today that I am an entirely new woman, ready and willing to do my housework now, where before taking your medicine it was a dread. I try to impress upon the minds of all ailing women I meet the benefits they can derive from your medicines."—Mrs. CHARLES ROWE, Kennebago, Maine.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter wil be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Right Happy.

Knowing that the daughter of her laundress had been married recently, Mrs. Blank of Boston said to the laundress:

"Is your daughter happy, Chloe?"

"Well, no, ma'am, she ain't what you might call happy. To tell de plain truf, ma'am, she done had to pitch in an' gib her husban' two or three good lickin's already, so day ain't neither ob 'em what yo' might call right happy, ma'am, no, ma'am."

Paxtine

A Soluble Antiseptic Powder to be dissolved in water as needed For Douches

In the local treatment of woman's ills, such as leucorrhoea and inflammation, hot douches of Paxtine are very efficacious. No woman who has ever used medicated douches will fail to appreciate the clean and healthy condition Paxtine produces and the prompt relief from soreness and discomfort which follows its use. This is because Paxtine possesses superior cleansing, disinfecting and healing properties.

For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. has recommended Paxtine in their private correspondence with women, which proves its superiority. Women who have been relieved say it is "worth its weight in gold." At druggists. 50c. large box or by mail. Sample free. The Paxton Toilet Co., Boston, Mass.

A LABOR DAY REALISM

In Work He Found Salvation for Both Body and Mind

By FRANK H. SWEET

PENNINGTON lit a cigarette, took one puff, hesitated, and threw it away. He had forgotten the doctor's quietly spoken but incisive words, and now remembered them with a sudden return of his old dread of what might come.

And yet, what odds? The world was an unsatisfactory place at best, and if it was to be hedged in by high walls, what pleasure would the little cells be?

A band of music was approaching, and his gaze went to it with the crowd's.

Behind the music came a great block of marching men, and behind them another and another, and still another. Then Pennington understood. It was Labor day, and this was the trades parade.

Under other circumstances Pennington's gaze would have turned away indifferently; but there was only the sidewalk or the street, and of the two the street was the less tedious. It was at least a moving bore.

The first impression that came clearly to his understanding was one of the strong, stalwart units of the blocks; the next, their contented and even happy looks.

"How happy and strong they are," said a voice at his side, and Pennington looked down, a quick glow coming into his face, and fading yet more quickly. It was the girl who had tinged his dreams, who had since grown distant and somewhat scornful.

"Yes, they seem strong and happy, Esther," he answered, "in spite of being in the trades."

"Because of being in the trades," she corrected swiftly, a vibrant ring in her voice that brought his eyes again to her face. She was looking out at the marching blocks, her gaze steady, but with a tremulousness of the delicate lips that somehow reminded him of the odd note in her voice.

The next day there was a rumor of Pennington's going abroad; his housekeeper had received a note to close the house, the agent to look after the affairs until further instructions.

Down on one of the back streets, a street unknown to Pennington's old life, were many dingy offices, meager in appointments, but representing a vast accretion of labor. At one of them a line of men were seeking employment, passing in front of a keen-eyed foreman, who accepted or rejected them almost without a glance.

But the rejections were few. Men were wanted for new blocks of buildings going up, men of skill, of strength, of merely carrying capacity—any man who could add his strength to the labor force and hasten the work.

So when a white-handed man of confessed incapacity stepped in front of the foreman's desk he was looked at askance, but finally accepted and set to carrying brick from the sidewalk to the men who were laying the foundation. It was muscle-making or muscle-breaking work, and for the first few days—or weeks even—it seemed wholly of the breaking.

Then Pennington Understood.

But there was an under element of doggedness in Pennington's nature which had never come to the surface, and though his limbs trembled with weariness long before the days were half over, and at noon he sank into a crouching heap upon the nearest board rather than cross the street to a restaurant, he struggled on in some way until the hour of dismissal came.

The second day the boss told him gruffly that he could not afford to pay him more than half wages, and the third day that he should pay him nothing at all, for he was worth nothing.

This was tantamount to a discharge, and so the boss meant it, but it was not one in actual words. Pennington disregarded it.

The boss looked toward him doubtfully from time to time, but in the end concluded to let him remain. Such determination promised good work, if the man survived the breaking in. Besides, he must be in dire need.

Pennington had a little room over the second-hand store where he purchased a coarse suit of working clothes, but he had not brought money to pay the room rent. He possessed a cheap silver watch, however, and this he left as security. With his first pay envelope he redeemed the watch.

In his room were cot, a chair, and a rusty little stove propped up with wooden blocks. But not until the third week did he start a fire in the stove and make disastrous ineffectual attempts to cook his breakfast.

By this time the blisters had disappeared under rough lumps and ridges. How he had lived before this no one knew but himself, for until he received his second pay envelope he did not commence crossing the street to the restaurant for a noon lunch.

When he sat down for a few minutes at the noon hour he did not double over in a tremulous heap as he had done at first, and though his face was thinner and whiter, its flesh was firmer than when he first came, and his eyes were clearer.

As Pennington's hands acquired a working knowledge of the materials, and his mind began to more thoroughly grasp the details, the boss gave him occasional jobs of oversight or authority, for he seemed the best man at hand for them.

Seemed to Be Directing the Work.

At first an hour or two of keeping the men's time, the stock taking of some of the materials, or perhaps a commission downtown to purchase things that required inspection and could not be ordered by messenger or telephone; then, after a year or so, he began to be left in temporary charge during the enforced absence of both foreman and boss.

And by that time Pennington's hands were as firm and hard as the average workingman's, and his thin face and narrow shoulders were filling out with good, solid flesh.

At the end of three years the foreman started out as an independent contractor and the boss took his place. Pennington would have then become boss, but the new contractor asked him to go with him as foreman, and Pennington, with an odd feeling of exultation and wonder, consented.

All this time the Pennington agent had heard nothing, and an expression of speculative concern was beginning to appear in his face.

Of course Pennington must be dead, for he was a man who required a great deal of money, and being in Europe made the money more imperative. The agent was in half mind to communicate with the nearest relative, but hesitated and concluded to wait a little longer.

A small portion of Esther Kilton's property consisted of downtown tenements. In the last few years she had become infected with the reform movement, and was remodeling them with more regard for the inmates' welfare than her rent roll.

Several blocks had already been rebuilt and occupied, and recently to hasten the work she had given a block to a new contractor. When the old buildings were demolished and the new walls were up a dozen or more feet she went down to look at the work.

Poised on the very end of a timber almost above her was an alert, compactly built man, who seemed to be directing the work.

Something about him drew her gaze back again and again; yet even while her eyes kindled they filled mistily. He was so like and yet so unlike; so what the other might have been, and was not.

Presently the man sprang lightly across to another timber seven or eight feet away, explained something about the work to a new man, then crouched and dropped to the ground 12 feet below.

As he turned he stood facing the owner, and they gazed for some moments into each other's eyes. He had been so absorbed in the work that he had not noticed her presence.

"Esther!" he cried.

"Ralph Pennington," wonderingly. "I thought you were in Europe."

"No; I have been here all the time."

"In work like this?"

He nodded.

She looked at him with the color rising warmer in her face. In her eyes was inquiry, then comprehension, joy, exultation.

"Ralph," she said softly, after a long silence, "will you come up this evening and—and tell me about it?"

There was a smile in Pennington's eyes, though his face remained grave.

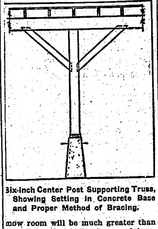
"Yes, Esther," he answered. "I will come up and—and ask you about it. I am now in the trades."

BUILDING SMALL BARN

Truss Shown in Illustration Can Be Worked Out Nicely.

Affords Strong Roof That Will Not Sag and Mow Room Will Be Much Larger—It Has Been Found to Be Quite Satisfactory.

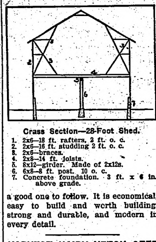
If you are planning to build a small barn or a cattle shed that will store a large amount of hay, it will pay to study the truss that is shown in illustration, writes W. E. Frudden in Farm, Stock and Home. This can be worked out very nicely where rafters are not over eighteen feet in length. It will give a strong barn, a strong roof that will not sag, and the mow room will be much greater than if you build a timber barn and have lots of crossties or beams. A barn with a truss like this one was built in central Iowa a few years ago, and time has shown that it is a good job. It also, by the way, was a cheap frame to put up from the standpoint of both labor and materials.



Six-inch Center Post Supporting Truss, Showing Setting in Concrete Base and Proper Method of Bracing.

It is just a plain gable-roofed barn with 18-foot rafters of two-by-six and placed two feet center to center. The studding are 16 feet on top of the concrete wall and the hay floor joists of two-by-eight stuff are nine feet from the floor. The mow holds one ton of hay for about every running foot of the barn. Note how the studding, the joists and the rafters are all tied up together so that they cannot bulge, sag, twist or bend. A plank girder made out of four 2x12's runs through the center of the barn when it is only 28 feet in width. The girder is supported by six-by-eight posts and properly braced.

For a small barn that has a fairly good capacity, this kind of an idea is a good one to follow. It is economical, easy to build and worth building, strong and durable, and modern in every detail.



Crass Section—28-Foot Shed.

1. 2x6—18 ft. rafters, 2 ft. o. c.
2. 2x6—16 ft. studding 2 ft. o. c.
3. 2x6—braces.
4. 2x8—14 ft. joists.
5. 8x12—girder. Made of 2x12s.
6. 6x8—8 ft. post. 10 o. c.
7. Concrete foundation. 3 ft. x 6 in. above grade.

HARVEST HAIRY VETCH SEED

Mowing Machine Should Be Used When Oldest Pods Are Ripe—Use Great Care in Curing.

In harvesting hairy vetch seed it should be cut with a mowing machine when the oldest pods are fully ripe. The wheels of the power as well as the horses must not be allowed to pass over the cut vetch, as otherwise much of the seed will be shattered out. As the pods break open readily when dry, the greatest care should be taken in curing and handling to avoid loss of seed. It can be threshed with an ordinary grain thresher by lowering the concaves sufficiently to avoid cracking the seed.

Yields of from three to ten bushels per acre of hairy vetch seed may be expected in addition to the rye or other grain with which it is grown. A complete separation of the hairy vetch seed from rye or wheat is best made by use of a spiral separating machine.

Cut Worms.

This pest is troublesome only when its numbers have increased to such an extent that all food in the vicinity has been devoured. The larvae then travel in compact masses and here is their vulnerable point of attack. If a furrow is thrown open across their path they will enter it, but they cannot climb out of the steep side, so here they can be utterly exterminated.

Keep Chicks Scratching.

Keep the chicks busy eating and exercising. If they don't eat they will not grow, and if they do not exercise they will die.

Feeding Egg Shells.

If the egg shells are fed to poultry care should always be taken to crush them thoroughly before feeding.

CULTIVATION OF THE GARDEN

Conserves Moisture, Kills Weeds, Aerates Soil and Increases the Supply of Plant Food.

(By M. F. AHERN, Kansas Experiment Station.)

First, last and al the time, let the slogan be "Cultivation." In small gardens cultivation must necessarily be by hand. The hoe, rake and fingers will prove efficient tools for cultivation of a square rod garden. Cultivation conserves moisture, kills the weeds, aerates the soil and increases the supply of plant food.

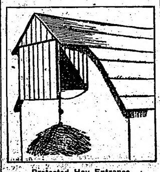
Watering should be done carefully, for too much is nearly as bad as too little. It is better to irrigate or sprinkle vegetables in the evening, so that there will be less evaporation. A good way to apply water to a small garden is to make a shallow furrow with the hoe and then permit the water to run into these shallow ditches. As soon as the soil will permit after watering the garden should be cultivated in order to conserve the moisture.

Insects are prevalent this season. The flea beetle has been eating the radish. Spray with powdered arsenate of lead and lime, or with arsenate of lead dissolved in water. For the green aphis—these insects feed upon the under side of the leaves, sucking the juice—spray with soap and water, one pound of soap to six gallons of water. Cut worms are likely to be troublesome. Bran mash is a good remedy. Use two or three ounces of sugar or similar quantity of molasses to a gallon of water and sufficient bran to make a mixture that will readily run through the fingers.

PROTECT THE HAY ENTRANCE

Porch Shown and Described Herewith Will Be Found of Much Convenience on Average Farm.

For convenience in drawing hay into the barn, the porch shown herewith will be found very satisfactory. The boom from which the hayfork tackle is suspended extends all the way out to the gable end of the porch. Convenient dimensions for this porch are 10 feet each way. This will enable the very largest forkful of hay to be taken in without choking the entrance.



Protected Hay Entrance.

As shown, the porch should be closed with a door hung from hinges above, held in place when closed by ropes attached to the lower corners and fastened on the inside of the barn when the door is shut. The chief advantages of this plan are that the hay tackle is always under cover so there is no warping of the wooden supports, rusting of the metal nor rotting of the rope. The roof above the porch need not extend more than four or five feet beyond the main roof of the barn. The large dimension is the better.—Orange Judd Farmer.

USEFULNESS OF SMALL TOAD

It Captures and Devours Wasps, Yellow Jackets, Ants, Beetles, Spiders, Worms, Bugs, Etc.

The toad lives from 10 to 40 years, and it can lay over a thousand eggs a year. It has lived two years without food, but cannot live long under water. It never takes dead or motionless food. It captures and devours wasps, yellow jackets, ants, beetles, worms, spiders, snails, bugs, grasshoppers, crickets, weevils, caterpillars, moths, etc. In 24 hours the toad consumes enough food to fill its stomach four times. A single toad will in three months devour over 10,000 insects. If every ten of those would have done one cent damage the toad has saved $10. Evidently the toad is a valuable friend to the farmer, gardener, and fruit grower, and can be made especially useful in the greenhouse, garden, and berry patch.—Ohio State University.

Don't Waste Wood Ashes.

Ordinary wood ashes contain on the average about 8 or 9 per cent of potash and 2 per cent of phosphoric acid. Investigators have considered that there is enough potash and phosphoric acid in a bushel of wood ashes to make it worth 20 to 25 cents. Besides that, some 10 to 15 cents additional might be allowed for the "alkali power" of the ashes. This power is that which enables ashes to rot weeds and to ferment peat.

Grass.

Grass is one of nature's necessities. To the eye it is soft and green upon its surface; but it is much stronger and far-reaching than it looks. It helps to hold together the earth's surface by the close-clinging and intricate entanglements of its roots and it serves this purpose all the year around.

Have a Colt Pasture.

Good plan to have a colt pasture, rather than allow the colts to follow the mares in the field.

The General Says:

Know-why and know-how are essential to any success. Every one of us has to acknowledge that the same sort of military preparedness that fits a nation for its defense is the most effective principle in making an industry of any kind serviceable and profitable both to manufacturer and consumer.

This Great Roofing Organization Is Trained Like an Army

Three enormous mills—officered and manned by the best trained force ever enlisted in an industrial army—three huge factories that are run like clockwork.

Military exactness in the securing and selection of raw material, and in every step from then on until the finished product is distributed and sold.

Constant readiness—being prepared every minute for the work to be done the next—Right there you have your finger on the great, essential reasons for the unfailing satisfaction every user finds in

Certain-teed

ROOFING

This roofing certainly has no superior. It is the best roofing that can possibly be made and it is manufactured in and guaranteed by the largest Roofing and Building Paper Mills in the World. 1-ply is guaranteed 5 years; 2-ply, 10 years, and 3-ply, 15 years, and this guarantee means the minimum life of the roofing. Thousands of Certain-teed Roofs all over the country are outliving the period of the guarantee.

When the General first entered the field the cost of roofing was two or three times more than it is today and the quality was not as high as Certain-teed is today. By reason of his enormous output the General has not only been able to bring down the cost and selling price of roofing, but he has also been able to raise the quality to its maximum. Today every fifth roll of roofing sold bears the Certain-teed label.

Slate Surfaced

SHINGLES

These shingles are made of the same high-grade materials as are used in Certain-teed Roofing. This process recognizes the principle that roofing materials don't wear out—they dry out. Therefore, Certain-teed Roofing is made with a soft center asphalt and coated with a harder blend of asphalts, which keeps the soft saturation within—the life of the roofing—from drying out quickly. This produces a flexible shingle, a true sign of thorough saturation in the slowest drying asphalt mixtures that can be made for roofing purposes. A thick, stiff or heavy-bodied asphalt shingle is by no means a proof of durability on the roof.

We use only genuine crushed slate in natural green or red colors for surfacing the Certain-teed Shingle. No painting is necessary. We don't try to use old brick, common rock, or crushed tile from old tile roofs. The slate also increases the fire-resisting qualities, thereby minimizing fire dangers and lowering insurance rates.

Certain-teed roofing, shingles, wall boards, felts, building papers, etc., bearing the General's name, are sold by your local lumber or hardware dealer at very reasonable prices. Don't send your money away for these goods. Patronize your home dealer.

WON HONOR WITH THE FIST

Some British Soldiers Who Have Earned the Victoria Cross by the Use of Their Bare Hands.

Skill in fisticuffs has several times won the Victoria Cross. At Inkerman, for instance, Capt. Hugh Rowlands saved his commanding officer, Colonel Hay, by a straight left-hander. Hay was wounded and lying on the ground, with a gigantic Russian standing over him and about to plunge a bayonet to his heart, when Rowlands, who had lost his sword, smashed the Russian with his left hand, knocking the man unconscious. Rowlands got the V. C.

At Jeerum, in India, during the Indian mutiny, Gen. James Blair, whose sword had been broken off at the hilt and who had no other weapon, dashed into a crowd of armed mutineers and knocked five of them down with his fists in a few seconds. The Victoria Cross also went to him.

Another officer whose sword broke at the handle while in action was Admiral "Tug" Wilson, who, at El Teb, bowled over six Arabs with his fists. He not only won the V. C., but also his nickname, being called "Tug" Wilson after an English boxer who about that time had gained brief notoriety by fighting John L. Sullivan, the heavyweight champion of the world.

WILMINGTON DELAWARE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has announced that he may place $30,000,000 in gold in Southern reserve banks to assist cotton growers. What is the matter with putting a few million into northern banks to assist the flax growers, they need it as bad as the cotton growers this year. But the northern states don't vote the right ticket to get much assistance from the present administration.

G. T. England, who published the McIntosh Times for a number of years, is now bringing suit in Justice Court to collect back due subscription. The present publisher of the Times offers an apology to his readers, and says he has nothing to do with the suits. But we fail to see where there is anything to apologize for, as Mr. England honestly has the money due him for subscription, and if they won't pay up, it is better to sue and collect than to suffer the loss, and there will undoubtedly a lot of other publishers follow his example.

The people understand that the rabid utterances of Roose velt are made for the sole purpose of embarrassing the present administration. If the wile Colonel was placed in the same position as President Wilson, he would be more saving of his wind. If Roosevelt wants war so bad, why don't he gather up a lot of the hot heads, who want some one else to do the fighting and go over and join the Canadians in the European war? The first contingent of the Canadian troops are pretty near all killed off, and they need recruiting so bad that they would undoubtedly welcome "Teddy" and any of his followers, who want war, into their ranks. But the great majority of the American people indorse the policy of President Wilson of keeping out of other people's trouble.

Germany has rendered a very satisfactory explanation of the sinking of the British steamer Arabic by a German sub-marine, and that incident is now closed. Of course the two Americans lost their lives, but they should have taken an American ship if they did not want to run the risk of being torpedoed. Germany has promised to protect and save Americans as much as possible who will persist in sailing on English ships, and that is as much as they can be expected to do. An American who will take passage on an English ship that is carrying contribands of war through that war zone has no respect for America and should be given to understand by this government, that if he goes into the European war, he must run his own chances. Of course it is sad for them to get killed, but if they should get this country into war with Germany we must stop and consider how many thousands of our best Americans must and will be slaughtered, to avenge the death of people who deliberately go on ship that they know are liable to be sunk. The American people who want to cross the ocean at this time have had warning enough to take American ships and they will be safe, but if they do take English ships, we hope President Wilson will only advise their friends to hang crepe on their doors instead of investigating how they come to get hit with a torpedo.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1913, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1914, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1915, and each of which said sums are now past due and payable upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charley Clark and Rosella Clark, his wife, Mortgagors to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of August, 1912, and with a Power of Sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of September, 1912, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., in Book 1 of Mortgages, on page 163.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to John Higbothom, by written assignment, dated the 3rd day of August, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said County, on the 5th day of August, 1915, at 8:00 o'clock A. M., in Book 8 of Mortgages, on page 605. And,

Whereas said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of Seven Hundred and Fifty ($750.00) Dollars upon the same land, or any installment of interest due thereon, that the Mortgagee in this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same, and have a lien therefor under this mortgage, and default having been made in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1913, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1914, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1915, upon said prior mortgage, the same was paid by said Mortgagee and by the undersigned Assignee of Mortgagee, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon this mortgage herein foreclosed, the sum of Seventy-Five ($75.00) Dollars, with interest upon said amount at the rate of Ten Per Cent per annum from the 1st day of August 1913, and the further sum of One Hundred and Thirty-Five ($135.00) Dollars, the interest paid upon the prior mortgage, and interest upon each of the three items making up the same from the above mentioned dates when the same became due, amounting in all to the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Three and 60—100 ($233.60) Dollars, due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage containing a provision that the non-payment, when due, of any installments upon the note which this mortgage was given to secure, causes the note to become due at once, and the assignee of the mortgagee having elected to declare the whole sum due: and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by either of the mortgages in this notice referred to or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: The West half (W½) of the North East quarter (NE¼) of Section Number Thirty-one (31), in Township Number One Hundred and Fifty-three (153), North of Range Number Forty [40], West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Pennington County, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 9th day of October, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Two Hundred and Thirty-three and 60+100 [$233.60] Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on the said premises, and Twenty-five [$25.00] Dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, August 20th 1915.

THE LOCAL NEWS

Joseph LaCount left for the Dakota harvest fields last week.

The Highlanding school started Tuesday, with Miss Stella Ardnt as teacher.

Knut T. Sannes is making preparations to remove to Canada with his family this fall.

Andrew Nelson's thrashing rig is shock thrashing north of Highlanding this week.

Ed Narveson left for North Dakota last Saturday, to take in the thrashing season.

Fred E. Brown, was taking orders for Hitchcock. Hill Grocery Co., of Chicago in this locality today.

Miss Ella and Marie Causin left for Thief River Falls Tuesday, where they will attend High School.

Extra help is very scarce in this locality now, and the farmers are offering good prices for extra help this week,

The early sown flax was not badly injured by the frost, but the late sown flax will not be more than half a crop.

The land is rather dry for fall plowing, but plowing done now will kill off more weeds than that done later on.

Confirmation services were held at the Highlanding church last Sunday. Miss Alida Klemmetson was among one of the young ladies confirmed.

NOTICE!

R. R. Johnson of the Goodridge Meat Market will visit Highlanding on Mondays and Fridays with a full line of choice fresh meat for sale. Do not forget the days Mondays and Fridays.

A Tharaldson, the Highlanding blacksmith has rigged up a trip hammer to be run by a gasoline engine, which will enable him to sharpen plow lays in a hurry, and he will have plenty of that kind of work to do, if the dry weather continues.

Goodridge is one of the fastest growing villages in northern Minnesota, and why should it not be, as it has a fine farming territory tributary to it, which would be nearly doubled, if we had bridges across Red Lake River,

Oklee seems to have the opportunity to get about all of the grain grown on the south side of Red Lake River this year, as Uncle Sam has got a solid government fence that heads all grain from going north. They call it a NAVIGABLE river.

We understand that there is some talk of the farmers in Mayfield township getting up a petition asking Stephen Singer post master at Kratka, if he will not please let the mail driver, drive by their way with the mail so it will not have to lay over two days at Sunbeam post office, if they will contribute by private subscription, the amount that their cancellation amounts to, to his father George Singer, post master at Rhoda.

Anyone that has put up a mail box and desire to have any of their mail sent out by the carriers should notify the post master at Sunbeam. All mail between Sunbeam post office and Rhoda, by way of Malone, will lay in this office from Tuesday until Thursday and from Thursday until Saturday, and from Saturday until Tuesday before being sent out, as that is the latest orders, by "mine boy Stephen."

Singers Boss Of Mail Routes,

The matter of getting mail service for the former patrons of Malone post office was taken up with Congressman Steenerson who kindly took the matter up with the Fourth Assistant Post master General and recommended that the route be established so as to give these people mail service. The Fourth Assistant informed him, and the editor of this paper has a copy of the letter, that on the request of Stephen Singer, post master at Kratka, that the driver had orders to drive by way of Malone after Sept. 1st. Now we would like to arise and inquire what Stephen Singer, postmaster at Kratka, has to say about the establishment of the Malone mail route? Kratka post office is a distance of over four miles from the nearest point that the driver on this route can drive to it, and yet it appears that the route was established on the reccommendation of Stephen Singer, post master at Kratka, and the petition from the people reversed and the route put in, in the interest of gathering up cancellation for the Rhoda post master, the worthy sire of the worthy son, post master at Kratka. There has been some talk of a remonstrance having been gotten up by the former patrons of this route. Now let us see where the remonstrance came from. It was written out by Miss Syversrud who lives east of Rhoda post office, and never gets any mail over this line and never will, but it was enough to hang a hat on, and put in a route that is of no use to the people, and a useless expense to the government. There is also some talk about the mail driver and it taking him until after dark to drive by way of Malone. The driver on this route leaves Rhoda post office at the same time that the Plummer driver leaves. The Plummer driver has a distance of eighteen miles to drive and mail to distribute, while the driver on this route has only ten miles to drive, so that argument sinks into insignificance. We have sympathized with the farmers of that Malone locality for a number of years in their efforts to get mail service, and when they are deprived of it by a dirty deal of this kind THE SUNBEAM will place the facts before the people as they exist, and we are not going to call an old black kettle white when doing it.

We are looking up some of the HIGH records of the Singer's as postmasters, and will publish it next week just to let the people know how they obtained their high standing with the present post office department so as to dictate the establishment of mail routes.

Japan's Good Roads.

Japan is peculiarly well off in respect of good highways. The Tokaido, which runs from Kioto to Tokyo, is over 300 miles in length and, as the writer can testify, is admirably constructed. There is also the Nakasendo, which is even longer and passes through some of the finest scenery in the world. The reason of Japan's excellence in the matter of roads is that in the old days, not so very long ago, the daimios, or territorial nobles, had to journey to Tokyo once a year in order to pay their respects to the sovereign. They traveled by road, with great retinues, and if the highways were not in perfect condition, feudal justice was meted out to the delinquents.—London Spectator.

Terrorized.

Binks—Why, where's the breakfast? Mrs. Binks—Hush, dear! The cook ate it. Binks—What! Ate it all? Mrs. Binks—Yes, dear. We mustn't say anything. I think cook is just the sort of woman who would go round and say we starved our help.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Yeast In Bread.

In the dough from which bread is made there is a lot of sugar, which contains carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. It is necessary to ferment this sugar to make bread edible, and yeast is used because it has the power to do this. It is made from a plant having this quality. Fermenting sugar is equivalent to burning it, and there are two results. One is the formation of carbonic acid gas. A great deal of this gas is caught in the dough in the form of large or small bubbles, and some of it escapes into the air. The part that cannot escape causes the dough to rise and makes the bread light. The holes in bread are the little pockets which held the carbonic acid gas. The effect of the bubbles is to lift the body of dough so that the heat can penetrate readily and bake it properly.—Boston Herald.

A Morbid Desire.

Two octogenarian darkies at White Sulphur Springs, having been employed by one hotel management since old time war days, are now retained as pensioners, though they occasionally do light and pottering jobs about the place.

One day not long ago they were languidly raking leaves on the lawn. As a lady passed she heard them quarreling and stopped to listen.

"Nigger," stated the older of the pair, "does you know what I wish't? I wish't dat hotel yonder had a thousan' rooms in it and you wuz laid out dard in ev'y room!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Overcharged.

In a western town the attorney for the gas company was making a popular address.

"Think of the good the gas company has done," he cried. "If I were permitted a pun I would say in the words of the immortal poet, 'Honor the light brigade!'"

Whereupon a shrill voice came from the rear, "Oh, what a charge they made!"—New York Times.

Knitting is a Scotch invention of the fifteenth century. Soon after its invention a guild of stocking knitters was formed, with St. Fiacre as its patron saint. Hand knitting was supplemented by machinery as early as 1589, when William Lee invented the knitting frame.

Fly Rod For Trout Fishermen.

Rods of split bamboo are produced by cementing together a number of triangular strips split from the whole cane to form each joint; the rod of six strips is the choice of most anglers. Weight for weight—and, of course, within reason, the lighter the rod the better—split bamboo rods are stronger and have more casting power and better action than rods of any other material. Very properly conceding that the choice of a fly rod is practically limited to the rod of split bamboo, you cannot go far wrong in selecting one nine feet in length. Such a rod for the light work of our average trout streams should not weigh over five and a quarter ounces.

Any rod seriously worth consideration has snake guides, german silver reel seat and ferrules and a solid cork hand grasp.

It is very well when making your selection to try out several rods answering to the above specifications, in order to avoid, if possible, getting a rod that is either too stiff or too flexible.—Outing.

Strength In Hollowness.

The stems of bamboos, grasses, wheat and oats are hollow, although they grow to great heights in comparison to their thickness. It might naturally be supposed that to gain strength as they grew the stems ought to be solid at the base, but it is not so. Careful experiments have proved that a solid column subject to bending strains is no stronger than a hollow one. Consequently all iron shafts are made hollow, and the steel shafts which drive the screws of steamships have a hole bored down the center to reduce the weight. But this does not reduce the strength. The thickness of the branches of trees is in proportion to the weight to be borne. Horizontal branches, such as those of the cedar and elm, are much thicker than the almost vertical branches of the poplar. The average natural factor in breaking is about one in ten, exclusive of wind pressure, and engineers employ a factor of six in building with timber.

Panama Canal Lighthouses.

It is announced that a feature of the Panama canal will be lighthouses whose lamps are lit and extinguished by the sun, without the aid of human hands. Briefly, the warmth of the sun at dawn, falling on a rod which rests on a lever, expands that rod and so moves the lever which closes the gas valve. At night the rod, getting cooler, contracts and so opens the valve and lets the gas pass, to be lit by a small jet always left burning. The rod can be adjusted according to the temperature conditions of any country. The sun valve is the invention of Gustaf Dalen, the famous Swedish physicist, recently awarded a Nobel prize.—Illustrated London News.

TRANSPORT SUNK; 1,870 BRITISH DIE

CROWDED TROOPSHIP STRIKES TURKISH MINE AT ENTRANCE TO DARDANELLES.

TURKISH FORCES IN TRAP

Important Part of Ottoman Troops Surrounded on Gallipoli Peninsula Is Report—Italians Claim Capture of Austrian City.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—The German troops which are advancing on the important Russian port of Riga, on the Baltic, have made a further consequential gain. Official announcement was made here that they captured a position northwest of Friedrichstadt, which is about 40 miles from Riga.

Berlin, Sept. 4.—A British transport struck a mine off the entrance to the Dardanelles and sank with 320 officers, 1,250 men and a crew of 300, according to a dispatch from Sofia. All aboard were drowned. Six hundred bodies have been recovered.

Turkish Forces Surrounded.

London, Sept. 4.—The surrounding of an important part of the Turkish forces on the Gallipoli peninsula by troops of the entente allies is reported in advices from Athens to a Paris news agency. The surrender of the surrounded troops is said to be imminent.

The British press is not greatly pleased at the reception by the United States of Germany's promise to modify her submarine campaign. It complains that a promise which does not include protection for merchantmen is inadequate.

Negotiations between Turkey and Bulgaria concerning railroad concessions to the latter are again under way. It is not expected in quarters favorable to the entente Allis that they will prove successful.

Austrian City Falls.

Rome, Sept. 4.—Roverto, the largest Austrian city to fall before the Italian armies, is being slowly occupied by the king's troops.

The Rovereto forts, which blocked the Italian advance on Trent, only 13 miles away, were blown up and the Austrians began to evacuate the city, retreating northward up the Adige valley in the direction of Trent. Before retiring the enemy forces demolished all the historic Italian monuments and set fire to the homes of Italian residents.

Capture of Roverto marks the greatest single victory in the Italian advance upon Trent, the goal of General Cadorna's forces in the north.

Though the Austrians have constructed barricades across the valley between Roverto and Trent, military men here believe the Italian troops will approach Trent itself before winter halts military operations.

TURKS MURDER CHRISTIANS

American Minister at Teheran Asserts at Least 1,000 Persians Were Killed—Disease Claims 4,000.

New York, Sept. 4.—At least 1,000 Christians were killed and about 4,000 others died of disease in Urumiah, Persia, during the five months of Turkish occupation, according to a letter received by J. L. Caldwell, American minister at Teheran, from Dr. William A. Shedd of Urumiah, and made public here by the Presbyterian board of foreign missions.

Of the 6,500 Christian families in the district, Dr. Shedd said that all except 1,000 were robbed of all their possessions and nearly all suffered some loss. He said the total loss to Christians had been estimated at $2,500,000, and added that the Presbyterian mission sustained a loss of $10,000 during one attack. Considerably more than a hundred Christian girls turned Moslems during the Turkish occupation, the writer said in the hope of escaping violence.

POLK WILL SUCCEED LANSING

New York Corporation Counsel Chosen to Fill Position of Counsellor of the State Department.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Frank L. Polk, an accomplished lawyer, who stands high in the esteem of President Wilson, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, and Secretary of State Lansing, has been picked by the last-named to fill the position of counsellor of the state department.

Mr. Polk is at present the corporation counsel of his native city, New York. He is the son of Dr. William Mecklenburg Polk, dean of the Cornell medical school, the grandson of the Confederate Bishop-General Leonidas Polk and the grand-nephew of President James K. Polk.

Take 10 Bodies from F-4.

Honolulu, Sept. 6.—Ten more bodies were found crowded into the engine room of the United States submarine F-4 when a hole was cut through the steel plates to effect an entrance. One body was identified as that of Ivan L. Mahan, machinist's mate, of Lima, Ohio.

So far 13 bodies have been taken from the hold of the submarine. Others, many in a fragmentary state and badly decomposed, have been located covered with wreckage in the interior.

PEACE PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN

GIBBONS URGES WILSON TO AID IN ENDING WAR.

President Would Insist Upon Germans Leaving Belgium—Kaiser Wants Poland Free.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Cardinal Gibbons, dean of the college of cardinals, presented a confidential communication from Pope Benedict to President Wilson inviting and urging this government to co-operate with the vatican and neutral nations to bring about peace in Europe.

Up to the present the United States has acted entirely alone in the single offer it has made to be of service in bringing about peace.

After his visit and confidential talk with the President, Cardinal Gibbons said:

"I think the prospects for peace are brightening."

Indicates Definite Results.

The statement, expressing the judgment of a representative of the pope after conferring with President Wilson, is regarded here as indicating that definite results so far as future action by this government and the vatican are concerned are already being achieved.

Cardinal Gibbons, the secretary of state, and the President, declined to reveal the details of the pope's suggestion. It was stated at the White House, in fact, that the President would not discuss the subject at all.

From two official sources, however, it is reported that:

1. Germany will not consider any peace arrangement that does not permit Poland to become an independent kingdom.

2. Germany will insist the civil freedom of the Jews must be guaranteed.

3. Germany will demand international agreement providing for the freedom of the seas.

All authorities agree in the opinion that the action taken by the pope to enlist the co-operation of a great nation like the United States is epoch-making because it is understood to be definite and complete and based upon the certain knowledge of Pope Benedict of the views of Austria and Germany.

American officials think, however, that if the terms of peace are fully disclosed and include the withdrawal of German troops from Belgium and France, this government would not hesitate to make the mediation offer at any time.

Further interesting reports were that Germany might be willing to abandon Belgium and certain parts of France and Luxemburg on condition of large compensatory territory in Africa. This report also is that the Prussian and Austrian preponderance in a new Poland would demand that the ruler of the new kingdom should be a German prince.

SAY WIFE PLOTTED MURDER

Three Negroes Sign Confession Saying Mrs. Mohr Hired Them to Kill Husband.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, wife of Dr. Franklin Mohr, who was fatally shot while on an automobile trip from this city to Newport, was arrested after three negroes had signed a written confession saying she had hired them to kill the doctor. The negroes are charged with murder. They are George W. Healis, chauffeur, who was driving Dr. Mohr's car at the time of the shooting; Cecil V. Brown, formerly employed as a hostler by Dr. Mohr, and Henry Spellman, half-brother of Brown.

Mrs. Mohr later was held without bail on the charge of having incited the murder of her husband. She pleaded not guilty. The arraignment was at Warren.

ORDER AFFECTS 25,000 MEN

Standard Oil Gives Workers 8-Hour Day in Place of 10-Hour Schedule.

New York, Sept. 6.—Announcement of a cut in the 10-hour day and the adoption of an 8-hour schedule by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was made here on behalf of the board of directors of that concern. Twenty-five thousand workers were said to be affected by the order which would become effective Sept. 15.

The announcement issued in behalf of the company reads as follows:

"In accordance with the policies of this company to keep its wages and working conditions equal to, or in advance of, the wages and working conditions of other men doing a similar class of work, it has been decided to adopt the 8-hour day. This change will be made without loss to the men."

Takes Haitien Customs Houses.

Washington, Sept. 3.—Rear Admiral Caperton reported to the navy department that five customs houses in Haiti now were in possession of American forces. The last one was taken over without disorder at Gonzaives upon the arrival there of the United States gunboat Castine and the collier Jason. Five customs houses still remain in possession of Haitien officials. Haitien troops at Ounanminthe have declared in favor of President D'Artiguenave, according to the report.

TELLS KAISER U. S. CAN BRING PEACE

VON BERNSTORFF SENDS MESSAGE BEFORE SINKING OF THE ARABIC.

DESIRES TO END WAR, BELIEF

German Ruler Needs Aid of Wilson, Head of Foremost Neutral Power —May Account for Change of Policy.

New York, Sept. 3.—"In my opinion peace could be achieved at this time only by the influence of the president of the United States."

This is the purport of a personal message which Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, sent to the kaiser two days before the sinking of tho Arabic, according to information obtained from official German sources.

The kaiser is credited with desiring to end the war now while he believes he is able to exact the price of triumph in the readjustments that will be sanctioned by the peace congress.

Wilson's Aid Is Needed.

To bring about peace at this time the kaiser needs the aid of President Wilson, head of the foremost neutral power of the world.

Evidence is accumulating that this aim on the part of the German emperor accounts for his sudden decision to court the friendship and esteem of the president by acceding to Mr. Wilson's demands in regard to the conduct of the submarine warfare.

The torpedoing of the Arabic, which cost the lives of two American citizens, brought President Wilson face to face with the question of backing up his bold words with deeds the country was not prepared to perform. Then to the astonishment even of the administration, Germany disavowed the act of its submarine commander in the case of the Arabic and embarked upon a policy of conciliation of the United States, culminating in the acceptance of the American demands in the submarine controversy by Ambassador von Bernstorff at Washington.

Seek Favor of Americans.

Incidently it may be said that the ambassador's announcement of the acquiescense of Germany in President Wilson's contentions for the observance of international law, is only a beginning in the campaign launched by Berlin to win the favor of the American people.

The desire of Germany to possess the friendship of the United States will be manifested in many ways in the near future, according to close associates of the German ambassador, who frankly point out that the action of Berlin has removed a serious handicap at a critical moment from the efforts of the envoy.

750,000 Acres for Homesteaders.

Washington, Sept. 4.—President Wilson has eliminated from the Cleveland national forest in southern California 750,000 acres of rolling chaparral land which will be subject to homestead settlement from November 2 to November 29, next, and open to disposition under the general laws after that date. It was also announced that more than 1,500,000 acres of land in the Belle Fourche district, South Dakota, would be subject to entry as 320-acre homesteads after October 11.

Serbia to Satisfy Bulgaria.

London, Sept. 3.—Serbia's intention to do the part asked of her in satisfying Bulgaria's territorial demands has been communicated to Greece, of whom concessions also have been asked in the efforts to secure Bulgaria's co-operation with the entente allies, newspaper dispatches from Athens, received from Paris, declare. An impression that Japan may take part in the Dardanelles campaign is gathered in Paris from remarks recently made by Baron Hayashi, Japanese ambassador to Italy.

SPURN HIGHER FREIGHT RATE

WESTERN ROADS WILL NOT ACCEPT ADVANCE ALLOWED.

Will Appeal for Rehearing of Cases, Charging Interstate Commerce Commission with Inconsistency.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Western railroads will not accept the advances in freight rates allowed them by a recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Acting on advice of their executive officers, the attorneys of the various lines met in this city and decided to appeal from the commission's decision and to file a petition for a rehearing of the rate cases early next week.

"The main ground is that we believe that the Interstate Commerce Commission's opinion in the rate case is entirely inconsistent with itself and with its previous decisions," said Mr. Wright. "It is inconsistent both on the general subject of additional revenues the railroads claimed they needed, and also specifically in the treatment of our request for higher interstate freight rates by citing instances of lower intrastate rates."

U.S. TROOPS FIGHT MEXICANS

Find Bullet-Ridden Bodies of Texans in Bed of Dried Lake—Mexicans Slain.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 4.—The bullet-riddled bodies of two Americans, who were kidnaped by Mexican bandits, about 12 miles north of here, were found late in the day in the bed of a dried lake.

They were Earl Donaldson, a farmer, who came here from Fayette, Mo., two weeks ago and an engineer named Smith, engaged in concrete construction work on an irrigation canal. The bodies were brought to Brownsville. Donaldson, Smith and Stanley Dodds, the latter a contractor, building an irrigation pumping station, were captured by the Mexicans.

Because one of the band told the others that Dodds was a German, he was not harmed, but his hat and shoes were taken. The pumping station and an automobile were burned by the bandits.

Later in the day the Mexicans became engaged in a running fight with a detachment of United States infantry and in the excitement Dodds escaped.

He telephoned from a distant ranch house that he was safe. The fight between the Mexicans and the American detachment resulted in the death of one Mexican and the escape of the 15 others who composed the band.

Plans for Orozco Funeral.

El Paso, Sept. 4.—After preparations had been completed to hold the funeral of General Pascual Orozco at the Mexican Methodist Episcopal church here the Orozco family cancelled the plans and announced the funeral would be held at the undertaking establishment, where it has been viewed by many thousands of Mexicans. Mrs. Orozco declined to avail herself of General Villa's permission to inter the body in Mexican soil.

Crookston Boy Kills Self.

Crookston, Minn., Sept. 4.—Earl Dittman, aged 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dittman, residing three miles south of Crookston, committed suicide. He was despondent because of ill health.

To Build Naval Reserve.

Washington, Sept. 4.—A plan for the building up of an adequate national naval reserve in addition to the existing state militia and the regular reserve created by the last congress, has been made public by Acting Secretary Roosevelt of the navy department.

It contemplates the mobilization of yachtsmen and powerboat owners and their craft with naval reserve ships in a training squadron, following the idea of the successful army camp at Plattsburg, N. Y.

"Washington, Sept. 2, 1915.

"My Dear Secretary—

"With reference to our conversation, I beg to inform you that my instructions concerning our answer to Your last Lusitania note contains the following passage:

"'Liners will not be sunk by our submarines without warning and without safety of the lives of noncombatants, provided that the liners do not try to escape or offer resistance.'

"Although I know you do not wish to discuss the Lusitania question till the Arabic incident has been definitely and satisfactorily settled, I desire to inform you of the above policy because this policy of my government was decided on before the Arabic incident occurred.

"I have no objections to you making any use you may please of the above information.

"Very sincerely yours,
"—J. Bernstorff."

Washington, Sept. 2.—Germany has officially accepted America's terms.

Ambassador Bernsdorff, speaking for the German foreign office, informed the state department that henceforth the kaiser's submarine methods will conform to America's interpretation of international law.

There will be no more unwarned attacks on merchant ships, Germany stated. Vessels suspected of carrying contraband will be visited and searched before being destroyed. Their crews and passengers will be given every opportunity to escape.

"Liners will not be sunk by our submarines without warning and without safety of the lives of noncombatants provided that the liners do not try to escape or offer resistance," was the written statement of Ambassador Bernstorff, conveying his instructions to the secretary of state.

"Comment Seems Needless."

Commenting on the statement, Secretary of State Lansing would only say: "That in view of its clearness it seemed needless to make any comment in regard to it," other than to say that it appeared to be a "recognition of the fundamental principles for which we have contended."

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, acting on instructions from Berlin, called upon Secretary Lansing and verbally informed him of the German foreign office's action.

The ambassador's conference with Secretary Lansing lasted fifteen minutes. As he left the secretary's room, Count Von Bernstorff said Mr. Lansing would give out a statement as to the conference, but himself refused to discuss his visit.

Demands Agreed To.

Count von Bernstorff was informed that the United States could not accept as final an oral transmission of the German point of view.

Bernstorff received the German acceptance of the American terms direct from the German foreign office.

When he left the department, it was with the intention of reducing the memorandum to writing and submitting in that form as quickly as possible.

In effect, said Secretary Lansing, all American demands were agreed to with reference to warning the enemy merchant ships before attacking them and to the requirements for visit and search and for the safety of passengers.

The communication in the form in which it was delivered related to future submarine activities.

GERMAN U-BOAT MAY BE LOST

Submarine Which Sank Arabic Might Possibly Have Been Torpedoed, Says Admiralty.

Berlin, via London, Sept. 2.—The German admiralty has advanced the suggestion that the submarine which may have torpedoed the steamer Arabic possibly had foundered or had been sunk by the British. A high official of the admiralty, in again declaring that absolutely no news on the sinking of the Arabic was as yet available, said:

"Would it not be lamentable if the submarine should have been lost and we should never learn what happened?

Foreign Money Recovers.

New York, Sept. 4.—Recovery of foreign money values in this market was as spectacular and swift as its recent decline. Sterling gained 8¼ cents from the last quotation, touching 4.62½ at the close; francs gained 14 cents on the day's transactions going to 5.95, and lires showed an improvement of 9 cents at 6.65. Reichsmarks inactive, gained ¼ of a point, reaching 80¾.

The sudden and unprecedented rally clarified the situation for the time being.

IN ALL OUR NEIGHBORHOOD

There Is Hardly A Woman Who Does Not Rely Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Princeton, Ill.—"I had inflammation, hard headaches in the back of my neck and a weakness all caused by female trouble, and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with such excellent results that I am now feeling fine. I recommend the Compound and praise it to all. I shall be glad to have you publish my letter. There is scarcely a neighbor around me who does not use your medicine."—Mrs. J. F. JOHNSON, R. No. 4, Box 30, Princeton, Illinois.

Experience of a Nurse.

Poland, N.Y.—"In my experience as a nurse I certainly think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great medicine. I wish all women with female troubles would take it. I took it when passing through the Change of Life with great results and I always recommend the Compound to all my patients if I know of their condition in time. I will gladly do all I can to help others to know of this great medicine."—Mrs. HORACE NEWMAN, Poland, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Time Has Made a Difference.

"The last time I saw Sylvia Pankhurst before the war," writes a London clubman, "she was in the arms of a policeman, being carried off to the Vine Street station, followed by scores of militants shrieking that women would never be slaves. I saw her a few nights ago down near Poplar way, where she was presiding over a twopenny restaurant where splendid dinners of hot stew, potatoes and fruit pudding with bread, butter and tea were served to distressed East Enders. In addition the suffragettes have organized pure milk depots for the babies, and an employment bureau for girls and womn."

Working Up an Appetite.

"I don't know why we came in here," said Mrs. Bored, as she settled herself down in a restaurant. "I'm not a bit hungry."

"That's all right," said hubby. "Just you sit here and wait."

"Wait! But why? I'm not hungry, as I said before."

"Never mind, dear. You will be by the time the waiter brings us our food."—Philadelphia Record.

Backache is Discouraging

Nothing is more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. If the urine is disordered, passages too frequent or scanty, there is further proof. Delay is dangerous. Prompt use of Doan's Kidney Pills now may spare you serious trouble later. Doan's is the world's best-recommended kidney remedy.

When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I used them and they gave me prompt relief from the aches, pains and lameness. They regulated the action of my kidneys, too. I haven't had any kidney trouble since."

Important Happenings of the Week Briefly Told.

Mapleton.—At a special election here the proposition to issue $9,000 bonds to erect a central heating plant for the schools was carried by 8 majority. At an election held in July the same proposition failed by 22 votes.

Luverne.—Chester Linnell of Clinton township reports the largest yield of oats so far this season, an average of 64½ bushels from a 37-acre field. The largest average of barley reported is 44 bushels an acre. Threshing has been delayed on account of rain.

Zumbrota.—The Zumbrota schools begin the fall work on Sept. 6. One of the new features of instruction will be a course in agriculture in charge of W. J. Freed, a graduate of Ames, Iowa, who started the agricultural courses in the Bemidji high school. The board has leased two acres within the village limits for this work.

Stephen.—After having had two newspapers several years, Stephen will now have only one. The Leader, which was established in 1883 by J. P. Lundris, D. Hanna, O. Mickelson and others, has been sold to the Stephen Messenger, with which it will be merged. The Leader was for a time edited by Sam Clark of Jim Jam Jems fame. It has been published by B. B. Brett since 1907.

Anoka.—The Anoka county Sunday school convention elected the following officers: President, B. A. Norris; vice president, W. H. Palmer; secretary, Miss Myrtle Emmons; treasurer, Miss Jessie Seith, superintendents of departments, Adult, H. J. Smith; teacher training, Mrs. C. P. McLean; Mrs. O. A. Beckum; elementary, Blanche Nyatt; home, Mrs. G. D. Hilliard; temperance, Mrs. J. H. Buck; missionary, Mrs. Dora McLeod.

Mankato.—Swan E. Peterson, Jr., of Freeborn county, was brought to the city by Deputy United States Marshal Charles Kittleson of St. Paul and arraigned on the charge of using the mails to defraud a Chicago mail order house by ordering goods and sending in payment a check on a bank at Scarville, Iowa, in which he had no funds. He entered a plea of not guilty, and was held to the November term of the federal court at Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Red Wing.—Several dental offices and the office of Superintendent of Schools E. B. Bergquist were rifled here. From offices of Doctors J. S. Van Guilder, G. W. Diapenbrock, B. Featherstone and F. E. Anderson, pure gold, platinum pins and other valuable dental material were stolen. Other dental offices were broken into but nothing taken. The work was evidently done by professionals. Three years ago the same offices were burglarized. The loot amounts to about $300.

Hibbing.—Mayor Wallace G. Nye of Minneapolis has assured the secretary of the Hibbing Commercial club that a detail of mounted policemen will lead the Northern Minnesota boosters' parade at the closing day of the fair, Sept. 11. The Hibbing concert band will make up the second section of the procession. Booklets and circular letters telling of northern Minnesota will be distributed to the crowds. Banners are being prepared. The object of the parade is to advertise northern Minnesota.

Hibbing.—W. G. Brown, treasurer of the township of Stuntz, has received from County Treasurer Vivian $86,514.69, the balance of the May tax settlement. Fifty thousand dollars was advanced the township by the county treasurer the latter part of June. The village of Hibbing will receive but $14,333.42. The balance of the $375,000, due at this time, will be paid when the mining companies see fit. The May tax distribution is exceptionally late this year. It is usually made out the middle of July.

Winona.—While rushing Minnie Peloroski, 8 years old, to a La Crosse hospital to undergo an operation for appendicitis, the automobile driven by Frank Peloroski, her father, stopped on a crossing at Onalaska, just as a fast Burlington passenger train approached. Peloroski seized his daughter and leaped a moment before the locomotive struck the new automobile and hurled it into the air. It fell a heap of wreckage in a corn field. The girl and her father escaped unhurt and continued the trip to the hospital in another machine.

Clarkfield. — Citizens of Clarkfield entertained the farmers living in the trade territory tributary at a smoker and social entertainment at the opera-house. The hall was filled with farmers. A big supper served was prepared by the men. Although the address of welcome was by Toastmaster J. Piersol, E. J. Mannix of the Commercial News, Sioux Falls, S. D., the principal speaker, spoke on "Community Development." He discussed the relation of the town and country and pointed to advantages by co-operation among farmers and business men.

Morris.—Eastern bankers who stopped here and at Willmar were amazed at the crop that is being harvested. At Willmar the wheat yield is thirty-two bushels to the acre. The bankers visited the Great Northern experiment station and were shown its operations by L. W. Hill, president of the Great Northern.

Mankato.—About 1,000 children of the city, whose parents do not own automobiles, were given a ride to and around Madison lake by the Commercial and Automobile clubs. About 100 private cars were offered, and the children were packed in 10 to a car.

The first gift of its kind will be sent to Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, by the Oliver Mining Company, which has offered to contribute $10 a month each to seven orphan children in the Owatonna public school.

Paul Welch of Duluth, attorney for the mining company, said Paul Paulson was killed in March, 1911, while in employ of the company. He left seven children.

The company paid $5,000 to guardians of the children for their support. In June 1911, the company further endeavored to help the children by granting the $10 per month per child.

State Has 86,000 Autos.

Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State, and his staff of assistants, have just completed the work of card indexing all of the licensed automobile owners in Minnesota. This index system is arranged by counties and each county is sub-divided into the postoffice addresses of the owners, under which heading the names of the owners are arranged alphabetically.

There are, according to this system, practically 86,000 automobiles in Minnesota, and a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal states that the average price of a car is now 980, over half of the cars produced selling for less than $700. On the basis of the Journal, the automobiles in Minnesota are now valued at $84,280,000. while the accessories and other appliances will increase this amount materially. In addition, the annual consumption of gasoline and lubricating oil will run into four or five millions of dollars.

The number of machines in each county at the close of business on the night of August 26th, when the indexing was completed after four months of work, is as follows:

To Address Veterans.

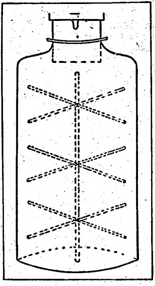
Governor W. S. Hammond and Senator Knute Nelson are to address meetings of civil war verterans at the State Fair art gallery. Senator Nelson will be the orator at a reunion of the Scandinavian Veterans' Civil War association. Governor Hammond is scheduled to address the old soldiers at the 28th annual reunion of the State Civil War Veterans' association. According to custom, old soldiers will be admitted to the fair grounds upon showing G. A. R. badge, or button, or a regimental badge.

SHIPPING BEES WITH SAFETY

Bottle May Be Used for Purpose by Arranging Frame Inside—Prevents Insects Smothering.

A bottle used for shipping bees can be made more suitable for the purpose by putting a light frame inside, as shown in the illustration, says Wisconsin Agriculturist.

The bees, when lightly smoked, can easily be shaken into the bottle through a paper funnel. The glass is too smooth for them to cling to the sides, and some of them will smother in the bottom if too many are put into the bottle, unless a frame is made for them to cluster around.



Jar With Frame Inside for Shipping Bees.

The arms are fastened to the middle piece and turned straight until placed in the bottle or jar. Then the cross pieces can be turned into position.

Many physicians use the bee poison for certain purposes, and get bees to be used in this way. This hint will be of value to those who ship bees to them or to other apiarists.

SHEEP TRIM UP THE WEEDS

Also Clean Up Briers, Volunteer Grain and Grass Growth in Fence Rows and About Stock Lot.

The greatest advantage in keeping a few sheep on the farm—twenty-five to fifty head—is the cleaning up of weeds, briers, volunteer grain and grass growth in the fence rows and about stock lots, feed lots, barn yards and idle places generally, where such growth gets a start in the latter part of summer and early fall season. Weeds in such places should never be permitted to go to seed, and need not if the sheep are given a chance to trim up these waste and idle places before the volunteer growths get too far advanced.

Southdown-Cheviot.

It is a good plan to bring the sheep from their pasture once or twice each week through the summer and fall and give them opportunity to trim up the weeds. It is very valuable for the health and thrift of the sheep.

"A change of pasture is good for sheep," and there is nothing better for the suppression of the extra growth of pasture and weeds than sheep.

POINTERS FOR PIG BREEDER

Feeding and Attention Are of Much Importance—Furnish Dry Quarters and Plenty of Sunlight.

Keep the following points in mind:

1. Feeding and care are as important as breeding in producing a good hog. Plenty of good feed and care may make a fairly good hog out of a runt, but lack of it will always make a runt out of a good pig.

2. Young pigs must have a dry bed and plenty of sunshine.

3. Begin feeding the pig as soon as he will eat, and keep him growing until he is mature.

4. Always keep plenty of clean, fresh water where the hogs may drink at any time.

5. The more milk a sow will give the faster her pigs will grow.

6. Lice prevent a hog from doing well.

"Tipping" Raspberry Canes.

The time for "tipping" black raspberry canes (if you want new plants to set or sell) is close at hand. When the new growth bends over near the ground, each tip should be buried a few inches in the soil and held in place with a stone, peg, or heap of dirt. Next spring nearly every tip will have taken root; the new plants can then be severed from the parent canes and moved wherever desired.

How Signals Arranged For Between Soldier and His Wife Really Were Carried On.

The captain had not been long married when he was ordered into camp. To be sure, the camp was in plain view of the captain's residence, but then it was still a separation; and to lighten this terrible condition it was arranged that the bereaved husband and wife should signal to each other often with their handkerchiefs. It was on the second day that the young wife was seated on the porch reading. "Tell me, Jane," said she, "is the captain still signaling?" "Yes, ma'am," answered the maid. "Then keep waving your handkerchief. I want to finish this novel." At the same time, in camp an officer from an adjoining company stepped up to the captain. "I say, old fellow," he asked, "why do you keep that man out there all day waving a handkerchief?" "Oh, it's merely a bit of signal-code practice for him."

MIGHTY POWER OF LOVE

Great Truth in Words Which Emerson Is Put on Record as Having Spoken.

It was Emerson who said, "An acceptance of the sentiment of love throughout Christendom for a season, would bring the felon and the outcast to our side in tears, with the devotion of his faculties to our service. Love would put a new face on this weary old world, in which we dwell as pagans and enemies too long, and it would warm the heart to see how fast the vain diplomacy of statesmen, the impotence of armies and navies and lines of defense, would be superseded by this unarmed child." Alas that the sentiment has not been accepted, but instead the world and the individual have been laying their plans, and directing their action, by a calculation of chances which, of course, can be no bigger than the human mind that does the calculating. That love has not been tried is proved by the collapse of commercial civilization, but the things of commerce and of calculation perish, while the sentiment of love endures, because it is of God, and being of God, is sure in the end to triumph.—Universalist Leader.

Not Warlike.

"Would you go to war if your country called you, Mr. Jobbles?"

"I might, and then again I might not."

"What do you mean by that?"

"If the first call sounded like a mere invitation, I would wait to be sufficiently urged."

Art Discussion.

"I understand the war department is sculpturing an army," remarked the man who likes action.

"I wonder what kind of a model he's using."

"I don't know. I hope it isn't patience on a monument."

A Real Sport.

"Them city fellers is pretty slick but they can't fool me," said Hiram Waybacker.

"They couldn't interest you in any of their skin games, eh?"

"I should say not! Two o' them offered ter show me th' only German submarine in captivity. Haw! Haw!"

"And what did you say to that?"

"I told 'em ter git out th' shells an' the pea, an' I'd make one guess jest ter keep 'em from bein' lonesome."

Appropriately Named.

"Why do you call the baby Bill?"

"He was born on the first of the month."—From the Buffalo Express.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 3, 1905, at the post-office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Harry Thaw has commenced divorce proceedings against his former wife, and the lawyers will now get another feed at the Thaw crib.

The former share holders in the Red Lake River Transportation Co., being compelled to pay the amount of stock held by them as an assessment to cover the indebtedness of the company is likely to make them a little leary of farmer corporations.

Judging from the report of the public examiner, several of our ex-county officials have been misappropriating county funds. Some people seem to be of the opinion that they own the county after they are elected to office, and it is fortunate that we have a public examiner to check them up occasionally.

For lack of support the movement to build a farmers' elevator at Plummer did not materialize. There are two elevators there now, which can handle all the grain that is tributary to them, but they must make up their minds to give the farmers fair grades and weights, if they expect to get the grain.

One of the Mexican Revolution Generals, who has been a prominent leader of revolutions, made the mistake of coming onto American soil, and was promptly shot, with all of his followers, and if we could induce all of the revolution leaders of that country to come over and start something on this side of the line they would soon be disposed of,

William G. Hunt is postmaster at Sunbeam, Minn., and W. G. Hunt is editor and publisher of THE SUNBEAM, and we want it distinctly understood that the postmaster at Sunbeam is not writing for or giving any information for publication to the editor of this paper. All articles published regarding the abuse of the people's mail service in this locality under the Boss Singers' management will be exposed in this paper, and the editor does not have to get any information from the Sunbeam postmaster at any time.

As there has never been any use made of the Kratka creamery the share holders are liable to be re-assessed for money to pay the indebtedness. We understand that some of the head leaders of the association, who worked the farmers into the deal, have not paid their notes for the shares they took, claiming that they had no value received, and it is up to the board of directors of the association to make them come across with the cash before their notes are outlawed. We understand that one duck who is in for a few shares that he has not paid for now gets his mail at Erie, Minn.

Eastern Pennington county have surprised the older settled portions of the state by their good roads in a country that was a wilderness ten years ago. But we have one serious draw back to the development of the County and that is that so called navigable Red Lake River, which prohibits going north and south through the country. The river is too shallow to run any kind of boats on and has not been used for that purpose for a number of years.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Fifteen Dollars, which became due August 1st 1913, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1914, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1915, and each of which said sums are now past due and payable upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charley Clark and Rosella Clark, his wife, Mortgagors, to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of August, 1912, and with a Power of Sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of September, 1912, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., in Book 1 of Mortgages, on page 163.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to John Higbothom, by written assignment, dated the 3rd day of August, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said County, on the 5th day of August, 1915, at 2:00 o'clock A. M., in Book 8 of Mortgages, on page 605. And,

Whereas said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of Seven Hundred and Fifty ($750.00) Dollars upon the same land, or any installment of interest due thereon, that the Mortgagee in this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same, and have a lien therefor under this mortgage, and default having been made in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1913, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1914, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1915, upon said prior mortgage, the same was paid by said Mortgagee and by the undersigned Assignee of Mortgagee, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon this mortgage herein foreclosed, the sum of Seventy-Five ($75.00) Dollars, with interest upon said amount at the rate of Ten Per Cent per annum from the 1st day of August 1913, and the further sum of One Hundred and Thirty-Five ($135.00) Dollars, the interest paid upon the prior mortgage, and interest upon each of the three items making up the same from the above mentioned dates when the same became due, amounting in all to the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Three and 60—100 ($233.60) Dollars, due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage containing a provision that the non-payment, when due, of any installments upon the note which this mortgage was given to secure, causes the note to become due at once, and the assignee of the mortgagee having elected to declare the whole sum due: and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by either of the mortgages in this notice referred to or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: The West half (W½) of the North East quarter (NE¼) of Section Number Thirty-one (31), in Township Number One Hundred and Fifty-three (153), North of Range Number Forty [40], West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Pennington County, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 9th day of October, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash; to pay said debt of Two Hundred and Thirty-three and 60—100 [$233.60] Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on the said premises, and Twenty-five [$25.00] Dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, August 20th 1915.

Assignee of Mortgagee.

THE NATION'S CAPITOL

Main Dimensions of Our Beautiful Building In Washington.

Our national capitol at Washington is a beautiful and impressive building. It fronts east and stands on a plateau eighty-eight feet above the level of the Potomac. The entire length of the building from north to south is 751 feet 4 inches, and its greatest dimension from east to west is 350 feet. The area covered by the building is 153,112 square feet.

The dome of the original central building was constructed of wood, covered with copper. This was replaced in 1856 by the present structure of cast iron. It was completed in 1865. The entire weight of iron used is 8,909,200 pounds. The dome is crowned by a bronze statue of Freedom, which is 10 feet 6 inches high and weighs 14,985 pounds.

The height of the dome above the base line of the east front is 287 feet 5 inches. The height from the top of the balustrade of the building is 217 feet 11 inches. The greatest diameter at the base is 135 feet 5 inches. The rotunda is 97 feet 6 inches in diameter and its height from the floor to the top of the canopy is 180 feet 3 inches.

The senate chamber is 113 feet 3 inches in length by 83 feet 3 inches in width and 36 feet in height. The galleries will accommodate 1,659 persons. The representatives' hall is 139 feet in length by 93 feet in width and 36 feet in height.—Philadelphia Press.

Want To Hunt Ducks.

St. Paul, Minn. Sept 14—State Forester Fox has received complaint that the drainage operations now under way are drying up the peat lands of Northern Minnesota, making them useless for agriculture. The matter will probably be brought before the state drainage board for action. —Crookston Daily Times.

The above complaint must have come from duck hunters, who did not want the mosskeg lakes to dry up. Grain can not be raised in water, and the only way to make the wet lands of Northern Minnesota produce crops is to drain them. We live in a territory, that was without drainage and is now drained by state ditches, and we know that where there is now good crops being raised, the land was comparatively worthless before it was drained.

Diplomacy.

When King Alfonso of Spain is staying at San Sebastian, says the Manchester News, he frequently goes across to Biarritz for an afternoon of recreation.

On one occasion he arrived at the station there and hailed a fiacre. The driver recognized him, and when his majesty asked what the fare was said, "For the king of Spain it will be 10 francs." The king smiled and merely paid the ordinary fare as provided by the tariff. To that amount, however, he added a tip of the usual size.

A few days later he was again in Biarritz and also took a fiacre. But on this occasion the cocher was more diplomatic. When asked the amount of the fare he replied. "Your majesty owes me nothing for the small service I have had the honor to render him." His majesty replied to this courteous speech by presenting the cabby with a 100 franc note.

Bricks From Babylon.

There is a law in the Turkish empire prohibiting the exportation of relics and antiques more than 100 years old, and the fact that it is on the statute books gives rise to the common practice of offering spurious articles to the tourist. Real objects of art or of sufficient age to be of value are rarely to be purchased, and the general desire of the visitor, therefore, seems to be to obtain stones or pieces of clay from the sites of ancient ruins or bricks with inscriptions. The former can probably be obtained, but they are practically valueless, as one piece of clay from Babylon is quite like another from Musol. Bricks from either of these places that are known to be genuine are unobtainable.

Health For Canaries.

Even a canary must be cared for judiciously if its life is to be happy. Regular exercise outside its cage is desirable, if its owner has time to look after this exercise. A scrupulously clean cage, fresh water and seed every day, greens of some sort—lettuce, celery, plantain—once or twice a week, and enforced abstinence from sugar, sweet biscuits and other odds and ends that are often fed to birds—these details insure health and, therefore, happiness to the caged bird. Perhaps the fact that it is caged, that it has so few ways of making its wants known, should make its owner more careful of its health than she would be even of the health of a dog or cat.—New York Sun.

On the Seamen's Bill

The American plowmen are interested in sea commerce. It is expensive and likewise humiliating to have to salute a foreign flag every time a farmer wants to ship a bushel of wheat, a bale of cotton or a pound of farm products across the ocean. The American farmer is entitled to the protection of his flag in sending his products across the sea, and Congress should give such encouragement to shipping interests as is necessary to meet foreign competition in ocean commerce. A recent bill known as the Seaman's Bill became a law under the President's signature and Mr. R. P. Schwerin, vice-president of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, when asked to define this law and outline its effect upon American steamship lines, said in part:

"The bill provides that no ship of any nationality 'shall be permitted to depart from any port of the United States unless she has on board a crew not less than seventy-five per centum of which, in each department thereof, is able to understand any order given by the officers of such vessel, nor unless forty per centum in the first year, forty-five per centum in the second year, fifty per centum in the third year, fifty-five per centum in the fourth year after the passage of this Act, and, thereafter sixty-five per centum of her deck crew, exclusive of licensed officers and apprentices, are of a rating not less than able seamen.'

"The oversea trade of the world is competitive, therefore the original cost of the ship and the operation of the ship have to be reckoned with in the keen competition of these rival nations with one another. The Oriental sailor is obedient and competent and is the cheapest sailor in the world. It is therefore manifestly clear that if this law applied to all nationalities in the transpacific traffic, all would be on the same economic basis, but it works a single hardship to all the ships of the world, except the Japanese and American ships, and with the latter it works two hardships. With the European, the cost of constructing a ship is no higher than the cost of constructing a Japanese ship, but if they had to provide European crews, while the Japanese operated with Japanese crews, the condition of competition would be such that they could not overcome the handicap and they would be driven off. But the American ship would have to contend not only with the tremendous increase of cost of wage in the substitution of the European crew for the Chinese crew, but also the greater initial cost of the ship. As the Japanese have now done away with their European officers and Japanese crews, all of whom speak a common language, there is no difficulty for them to comply with all the conditions of the bill and continue their Japanese crews, with Oriental wages.

"The law, therefore, instead of assisting the American ship, adds another heavy burden, while it places none whatever upon the Japanese ship, but, on the contrary, turns over to the Japanese the traffic of the Pacific Ocean, which the American ship is forced to forego by act of Congress of the United States."

ASKS ENVOY'S RECALL

LANSING TELLS VIENNA DR. DUMBA IS NO LONGER ACCEPTABLE TO WILSON.

PLANNED STRIKES IN U. S.

Secretary of State Instructs Ambassador Penfield at Austrian Capital to Deliver Note to the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Washington, Sept. 11.—Ambassador Penfield at Vienna was instructed by cable to inform the Austro-Hungarian government that Dr. Constantin Dumba no longer is acceptable as an envoy to the United States, and to ask for his recall.

Secretary Lansing formally announced the action on Thursday.

U. S. Note to Vienna.

Secretary of State Lansing gave out the following statement:

"The department has instructed Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to deliver to the minister for foreign affairs the following note:

"'Mr. Constantin Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Washington, has admitted that he proposed to his government plans to instigate strikes in American manufacturing plants engaged in the production of munitions of war. The information reached this government through a copy of a letter of the ambassador to his government. The bearer was an American citizen named Archibald, who was traveling under an American passport. The ambassador has admitted that he employed Archibald to bear official dispatches from him to his government.

"'By reason of the admitted purpose and intent of Mr. Dumba to conspire to cripple industries of the people of the United States and to interrupt their legitimate trade, and by reason of the flagrant violation of diplomatic propriety in employing an American citizen protected by an American passport as a secret bearer of official dispatches through the lines of an enemy of Austria-Hungary, the president directs me to inform your excellency that Mr. Dumba is no longer acceptable to the government of the United States as the ambassador of his imperial majesty at Washington.

"'Believing that the imperial and royal government will realize that the government of the United States has no alternative but to request the recall of Mr. Dumba on account of his improper conduct, the government of the United States expresses its deepest regret that this course has become necessary and assures the imperial and royal government that it sincerely desires to continue the cordial and friendly relations which exist between the United States and Austria-Hungary.' "LANSING."

It was the answer of the American government to Doctor Dumba's explanation of his intercepted letter to Vienna outlining plans for handicapping plants in this country making war supplies for the allies.

GERMANS PARADING BEFORE CROWN PRINCE

© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

With its standards crowned by the German eagle, the famous Wuerttemberg regiment, which covered itself with glory by its charges in the Argonne, proudly marched past the crown prince and his staff, while the latter saluted the regiment. The crown prince is seen standing in front and Field Marshal Haeseler, the German commander, is almost directly behind him.

HOPES TO ADJUST ARABIC SITUATION

VON BERNSTORFF IS OPTIMISTIC DESPITE GROWING SERIOUS CONCERN IN U. S.

MESSAGE ON ORDUNA CASE

German Note Reaches State Department and Will Be Discussed at Conference Between Teuton Ambassador and Secretary Lansing.

Washington, Sept. 14. — Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, has returned to Washington to initiate informal discussion with the American government, supplementary to the note from the Berlin foreign office regarding the sinking of the Arabic, with the hope of paving the way for formal negotiations for adjustment of the situation growing out of the loss of American lives in the tragedy. He expects to see Secretary Lansing shortly.

The ambassador is optimistic in spite of the growing serious concern here over the state of the relations between the United States and the Germanic allies following a receipt of a disappointing note from Germany on the Arabic and the request for the recall of Ambassador Dumba of Austria.

German Explanation Weak.

High officials of the administration were silent again regarding the entire situation.

Belief is expressed in official circles that while the German explanation of the Arabic case is considered weak and unsatisfactory, the United States will consent to the proposal that the question of indemnity be arbitrated on condition that discussion be limited to the question of fact as to whether the submarine commander was justified without involving the general principle for which this government has contended.

Note on Orduna Case.

The German memorandum on the Orduna case reached the state department during the day but was not decoded in time for consideration. It probably will be before Secretary Lansing shortly when Count von Bernstorff reaches the department, furnishing an additional phase for discussion.

Nothing had been heard officially from Vienna regarding Dr. Dumba. Press dispatches stating that the ambassador would be recalled without making an issue of his right to plan Austro-Hungarian strikes in American munitions plants were accepted as accurate. Notice of his recall would be given through Ambassador Penfield at Vienna. So far the administration has taken no steps acting against Austrian Consul General Von Nuber, at New York, and Captain Von Papen, the German military attache who were involved in Dr. Dumba's plans.

TEUTONS FORCE BACK SLAVS

Attack Russians With Redoubled Fury, Seeking to Capture Czar's Strategic Railway.

London, Sept. 13.—With redoubled fury and aided by heavy re-enforcements, the armies of the central empires are endeavoring to force the Russians back with a rim of steel reaching from Riga to the Roumanian frontier.

The immediate object of the Germanic allies now is a clear passage to and across the River Dvina, thus exposing the main line of the czar's strategic railway to capture.

Dumba's Sayings Resented.

Boston, Sept. 13.—The Slavonic club of South Boston adopted resolutions at a meeting in reference to statements by Doctor Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador. The resolutions say:

"The Czechs and Slovaks of Boston resent the assertion that we are unable to comprehend our acts," and "we assert that we are loyal to Austria, but that Austria, as a vassal state to Germany, can lay no claim to our loyalty."

HILL TO HANDLE WAR LOAN

WILL HEAD DEAL INVOLVING PERHAPS $1,000,000,000.

Minneapolis Bankers Ready to Furnish $10,000,000 of Projected Loan to Allies.

Minneapolis, Sept. 14.—At the request of J. Pierpont Morgan, James J. Hill has gone to New York to handle a war loan of perhaps $1,000,000,000 to the Allied governments of Europe.

Minneapolis bankers, it is understood, stand ready to furnish around $10,000,000 of the projected loan, their action to depend on the character of the collateral and the attractiveness of the interest rate. Local bankers are investigating the situation and awaiting the outcome of the negotiations in New York between American financiers and the Anglo-French mission sent here to arrange the credit and re-establish the foreign exchange rate.

Threatens Wheat Market.

Two considerations have prompted the choice of Mr. Hill to handle perhaps the biggest financial deal in the history of the country. In the first place, Mr. Hill is regarded as being extremely influential with the Canadian financiers who will work with the Anglo-French mission and thus in turn have an influence with the foreigners. Secondly, Mr. Hill himself is anxious to see the situation cleared because the present ratio of foreign exchange, the result of floods of gold to this country, seriously threatens the market for American products, more particularly that of wheat.

To Establish European Credit.

To market the American product of wheat, cotton and manufactured goods, European credit must be established. In the present situation Mr. Hill sees danger to the farmer of the Northwest for the excess production of wheat this year is estimated at 375,000,000 bushels. The Allies need 550,000,000, but they can get it from Canada, Argentina, India and Australia, if credit is not arranged here. If the Dardanelles are opened, 250,000,000 bushels will be available from the Black sea regions. Therefore Mr. Hill will point out to American financiers, European credit must be established here so that the American market can be protected.

BILLION BUSHEL WHEAT CROP

Half Dozen New Production Records Now Assured, Says Department of Agriculture.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Bumper crops this year, with a half dozen new production records now seem assured. Business predictions on a canvass made Sept. 1 by its thousands of agents throughout the United States, the department of agriculture has just issued forecasts showing the prospects of practically all the principal farm crops except potatoes and rice improved during August.

The wheat crop is placed at 981,000,000 bushels, 90,000,000 more than last year's crop record. Wet weather has damaged winter wheat and delayed threshing. In Kansas not more than half the crop has been threshed. Additional inquiries by crop reporters this month, however, resulted in the crop reporting board making no change in its August prediction of 659,000,000 bushels of winter wheat.

New Zeppelin Raid on England.

London, Sept. 13.—An official statement issued here says that another raid by Zeppelins on the east coast was attempted during the night. Bombs were dropped by the aerial visitors, the statement says, but there were no casualties and no damage was caused.

Greek Leaders Confer.

Athens, Sept. 11.—The conferences just begun between Premier Venizelos and King Constantin probably will be protracted over a considerable interval. Until these discussions have been completed it is improbable Greece will adopt a definite policy in regard to the international situation. The task of the premier, whose inclination toward the Allies is well known, has been made more difficult by the recent reverses of the Russians, which seem to have raised doubts in the popular mind regarding the Allies' strength.

CARRANZA'S REPLY TO APPEAL IS 'NO'

NOTE DECLARES HE CAN PERMIT NO INTERFERENCE BY FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS.

CLAIMS CONTROL OF MEXICO

First Chief Willing to Confer With Pan-American Diplomats But "Solely From an International Point of View."

Vera Cruz, Sept. 13.—General Venustiano Carranza's reply to the appeal of the United States and the Latin-American countries for a conference between the leaders of the various Mexican factions, having in view an adjustment of Mexico's internecine struggle, is in a polite but unequivocal "no."

In a note issued by Foreign Minister Acuna, General Carranza has told the diplomats that he can permit of no interference whatever by foreign governments. He explains that he is in control now of all Mexico except the states of Chihuahua and Morelos and a part of the state of Sonora.

The signers of the note to Carranza are invited to come themselves or to send representatives to some point along the Rio Grande for a conference at which the affairs of Mexico may be discussed "solely from an international point of view" and with the idea that Carranza's government be recognized as the de facto government in Mexico.

Commands Army of 150,000.

The diplomats are told in the note that the first chief of the Constitutionalists now commands an army of 150,000 men; that the functions of public service have been restored, the railways repaired and railway traffic resumed. The note adds that in the fields and the cities there have been reborn the activities of normal life. Stress is laid in the note on the assertion that soon the entire country will be at peace.

The reply insists that the first chief is actuated by the highest motives in declining to participate in the conference. It is stated in the note that the fact that the revolutionists had entered into a pact at Juarez with the old government was one of the weaknesses of President Francisco I. Madero's arrangement for the rehabilitation of Mexico and that this alleged trafficking with the opposition was one of the reasons for the disagreements that culminated in the tragic battle in Mexico City in February, 1913. Incidentally, it is stated in the note that "some foreign diplomats" were involved in that affair.

Twenty Killed, Eighty Hurt.

New York, Sept. 10.—The most destructive air raid in history has been made on London.

Private messages indicated that the raid was in the very heart of London.

An interview with Marconi revealed that he witnessed the raid, and it is known that he stops at a hotel near Trafalgar Square. This was the first definite statement that the raid was directly over London, permitted to pass the censor.

A large portion of the American colony resides in the Trafalgar Square district, a section of large hotels and clubs.

Twenty persons were killed and 86 others injured in the raid. These figures were given in London officially. The German airships flew over the eastern counties of England and the London district.

Postoffice Clerks Select Memphis.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, at the closing session of their convention yesterday, voted to maintain headquarters in Washington and selected Memphis, Tenn., as the next convention city.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing years: President, Arthur L. Honeywell, Davenport, Iowa; first vice president, Morris Simon, Philadelphia; secretary - treasurer, Thomas F. Flaherty, San Francisco.

REFUSES INDEMNITY

GERMAN GOVERNMENT SAYS IT WILL NOT PAY FOR ARABIC DEATHS.

IS SORRY LIVES WERE LOST

Belief of Submarine Commander That Liner Was About to Attack Him Declared Sufficient Justification for His Action.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—In a note made public tonight Germany expresses regret for the loss of lives in the sinking of the steamer Arabic, but states positively that no indemnity for such loss can be granted the United States. The imperial German government says that it "deeply regrets" that lives were lost, not merely specifying American lives, but apparently including the lives of all noncombatants.

The text of the note follows:

On August 19 a German submarine stopped the English steamer Dunsley about sixteen nautical miles south of Kinsale and was on the point of sinking the prize by gunfire after the crew had left the vessel. At this moment the commander saw a large steamer, as developed later, the Arabic. She was recognized as an enemy vessel, as she did not fly any flag and bore no neutral markings.

When she approached she altered her original course, but then again pointed directly toward the submarine. From this the commander became convinced that the steamer had the intention of attacking and ramming him.

In order to anticipate this attack he gave orders for the submarine to dive and fired a torpedo at the steamer. After firing he convinced himself that the people on board were being rescued in 15 boats.

According to his instructions, the commander was not allowed to attack the Arabic without warning and without saving the lives unless the ship attempted to escape or offered resistance. He was forced, however, to conclude from the attendant circumstances that the Arabic planned a violent attack on the submarine.

This conclusion is all the more obvious as he had been fired upon at a great distance in the Irish sea on August 14—that is, a few days before—by a large passenger steamer, apparently belonging to the British Royal Mail Steam Packet company, which he had neither attacked nor stopped.

The German government most deeply regrets that lives were lost through the action of the commander. It particularly expresses this regret to the government of the United States on account of the death of American citizens.

The German government is unable, however, to acknowledge any obligation to grant indemnity in the matter, even if the commander should have been mistaken as to the aggressive intentions of the Arabic.

If it should prove to be the case that it is impossible for the German and American governments to reach a harmonious opinion on this point, the German government would be prepared to submit the difference of opinion, as being a question of international law, to The Hague tribunal for arbitration, pursuant to article 38 of The Hague convention for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

In so doing it assumes that as a matter of course the arbitral decision shall not be admitted to have the importance of a general decision on the permissibility or the converse under international law, of German submarine warfare.

Abyssinia.

The population of Abyssinia, which has an area of 400,000 square miles, is now estimated to have reached 7,000,000. With the exception of the republic of Liberia, Abyssinia is the only country of Africa absolutely independent of European control. The Abyssinians may be separated into four groups—the Galas, in the south and southwest; the Shoans, in the center; the Tigres, in the north, and the Danklis, in the east. The Shoans, numbering 1,500,000, furnish the ruling class, and it is to be noted that every physically able man of them is a soldier, the present sovereign, Lidj Yassou, grandson of Menelik, depending on them to maintain his sovereignty.

One-Millionth Inch Measured.

An instrument so delicate that it will measure one-millionth of an inch was invented by Prof. C. W. Chamberlain, president and head of the physics department of Denison university. Some idea of how small one-millionth of an inch is may be gained by comprehending, if possible, the size of the head of an ordinary pin viewed from a distance of 227 miles. Professor Chamberlain calls his instrument a compound interferometer. It is 400 times as powerful as the most perfect compound microscope.

Official British Flag.

The flag of the United Kingdom, commonly known as the British flag, is the official flag of the whole empire, though, of course, the various provinces have their flaglets, just as some states of the American Union have theirs, while Old Glory flies over all.

Easily Believable.

After a little experience with a shower attachment one can readily believe the rumor that a bath tub company has gone into the manufacture of war material.

Conferences Are to Be Held to Discuss the Best Means of Fighting Tuberculosis Plague.

How to munition and carry on the war against tuberculosis during the coming year will be discussed at sectional conferences on this subject being called by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, in Indianapolis, Ind.; El Paso, Tex.; Columbia, S. C.; Springfield, Mass., and Albany, N. Y.

The Indianapolis meeting, to be held September 29th, 30th and October 1st, will be known as the Mississippi Valley Tuberculosis Conference and will take in the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

At El Paso the southwestern health conference will meet September 27th to October 1st and will discuss not only tuberculosis, but other health subjects. This conference includes Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada, Utah and Colorado.

City's Location.

A woman from the South visiting New York for the first time was much agitated when, after being conveyed through the Hudson tube, she found herself in another subway. Rushing up to a knowing-looking individual, she asked, in an agitated tone:

"Sir, do please tell me where is New York?"

"Lady," said he, with the utmost gravity, "it's right at the top of those stairs."—Harper's Magazine.

Slightly Satirical.

During the week after Columbia university had given Walter Damrosch the degree of Mus. Doc. the noted conductor received a note from Alexander Lambert, in which the piano pedagogue remarked:

"I am so glad that you are a 'doctor of music.' Now, when I get sick of music I shall know where to go."

IT SLUGS HARD.

Coffee a Sure and Powerful Bruiser.

"Let your coffee slave be denied his cup at its appointed time! Headache—sick stomach—fatigue. I know it all in myself, and have seen it in others. Strange that thinking, reasoning beings will persist in its use," says a Topeka man.

He says further that he did not begin drinking coffee until he was twenty years old, and that slowly it began to poison him, and affect his hearing through his nervous system.

"Finally, I quit coffee and the conditions slowly disappeared, but one cold morning the smell of my wife's coffee was too much for me and I took a cup. Soon I was drinking my regular allowance, tearing down brain and nerves by the daily dose of the nefarious beverage.

"Later, I found my breath coming hard, had frequent fits of nausea, and then I was taken down with bilious fever.

"Common sense came to me, and I quit coffee for good and went back to Postum. I at once began to gain and have had no returns of my bilious symptoms, headache, dizziness or vertigo.

"I now have health, bright thoughts, and added weight, where before there was invalidism and the blues.

"My brother quit coffee because of its effect on his health and now uses Postum. He could not stand the nervous strain while using coffee, but keeps well on Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

Reason Why Carney Refused to Enthuse Over the Glories of That Particular Subject.

"Andy" Roban, the detective-lieutenant, wit and good fellow, in his lifetime originated many stories of his quaint fellow-countrymen. He told this one about his good friend, Carney:

"A visitor to the city was struck by the beautiful sunset reflected on Lake Michigan, and, as long as he bought drinks, Carney listened to his ravings about the glories of nature. The stranger went on in words of color and elegant eloquence, but forgot to buy another. 'Ah—you should have seen that sunset,' he said, half closing his eyes and mooning. 'Go on,' said Carney. 'You can't tell me anything about that sunset. The sun sets only about a mile from where I live.'"—Chicago Herald.

OH! MY BACK

A stubborn backache is cause to suspect kidney trouble. When the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, stooping brings a sharp twinge in the small of the back, that almost takes the breath away. Soon there may be other symptoms; scanty, painful or too frequent urination, headaches, dizziness, or rheumatic pains. Don't wait for these troubles to become serious—use Doan's Kidney Pills at once. You'll find no better-recommended remedy.

A Minnesota Case

Mrs. G. P. Gillette, S. Main St., Zumbrota, Minn., says: "For thirty years I had attacks of rheumatic pain and at one time was laid up in bed six weeks. My back was terribly painful and my kidneys acted too freely. After everything I had tried had failed, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Six boxes cured me and I have had little trouble since."

FIXED IT IN HER MEMORY

Ingenious Method by Which Lawrence Hutton Cured Waitress of Her Forgetfulness.

The late Lawrence Hutton used to say that having to take a little trouble would impress a fact on anyone's memory so that he would never be able to forget it. In illustration he would tell this story:

"Our waitress, Maggie, could never remember to put the salt on the table, and time after time Mrs. Hutton would remind her to do it. One morning it was absent, as usual, and I said: 'Maggie, where is the stepladder?'

"'It's in the pantry, sir.'

"'Please bring it in, Maggie,' I said, kindly.

"Maggie brought it in with a look of wonder on her face.

"'Put it right beside the table,' I commanded; and when she had done so I added: 'Now, I want you to climb up to the top of it, look all over the table and see if there is any salt there.'

"Maggie never forgot the salt again."—Youth's Companion.

Genuine Happiness.

A fact concerning modern religious activity, which seems to have escaped general remark, is that Christians know better how to play than ever before. In the normal times of recent years a visitor at one of the summer conferences of the student Young Men's Christian association, for instance, would be surprised and delighted at the hearty good times which the delegates enjoyed. Christian Endeavor, too, has taught young people how to play. The whole conception of recreation and its place in life has received new attention of late years. Anybody who is seeking for it may find abundant evidence that there is more genuine happiness and intelligent pleasure among Christians than among the followers of frivolity.—Exchange.

5 Women Avoid Operations

For years we have been stating in the newspapers of the country that a great many women have escaped serious operations by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it is true.

We are permitted to publish in this announcement extracts from the letters of five women. All have been recently received unsolicited. Could any evidence be more convincing?

1. Hodgdon, Me.—"I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached and I was so nervous I could not sleep, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation, but I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Hodgdon, Me.

2. Shelbyville, Ky.—"I suffered from a severe female trouble. My right side hurt me badly—it was finally decided that I must be operated upon. When my husband learned this he got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking it a few days I got better and continued to improve until I am now well."—Mrs. Mollie Smith, R.F.D., Shelbyville, Ky.

3. Hanover, Pa.—"The doctor advised a severe operation, but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it."—Mrs. Ada Wilt, 303 Walnut St., Hanover, Pa.

4. Decatur, Ill.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I tell other women what it has done for me."—Mrs. Laura A. Griswold, 2437 East William Street, Decatur, Ill.

5. Cleveland, Ohio.—"I was very irregular and for several years my side pained me so that I expected to have to undergo an operation. Doctors said they knew of nothing that would help me. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I became regular and free from pain. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. Griffith, 1568 Constant St., Cleveland, O.

STATE BREVITIES

Brainerd.—At the Mission Lake Farmers' club harvest home picnic C. E. Brown, of Elk River, spoke on "The Needs of a Potato Market."

Anoka.—The Anoka county fair will be held Sept 22, 23, 24 and 25. There will be a Woman's day and a better baby contest. Farmers' clubs will have a special parade and the Anoka pageant will be repeated at the stadium.

St. Paul.—When Jack Frost delivered an uppercut at the fruit trees of Minnesota last spring he failed to check the come-back qualities of the Minnesota fruit tree. The fruit came back, as evidenced by the greatest display of apples ever seen at a Minnesota state fair.

Luverne.—A peculiarity of Rock county's corn crop is the great height of the stalks, some of them being 13 to 14 feet, with the ears at least six feet from the ground. Expert growers declare that owing to frequent and heavy rains the best part of the corn has gone to stalk.

Winona. — D. E. Vance, known throughout the Northwest as the marrying judge, died in his home. He had been confined to his home for about 10 days. The illness came upon him about a year ago. Judge Vance for 15 years was judge of Probate court and he had a record of over 1,200 marriages.

Gaylord.—The county seat removal election held in Sibley county, resulted in a change of the county seat from Henderson to Gaylord.

The vote was the largest ever cast in the county, 2,200 voting for removal and 1,512 against. Gaylord won by a majority of 688, or 158 votes more than the 55 per cent required.

Minneapolis.—Maurice I. Flagg, director of the Minnesota Art commission, credited the state of Minnesota as being the first government in the world to spend money to help farmers have more comfort and beauty in farm homes, when he spoke at the meeting of the Farm Women's congress in the "Hall of Fame" at the fair grounds.

Minneapolis.—Minnesota's state fair board will ask the next Minnesota legislature for an appropriation of $200,000 for a new stock barn and an additional appropriation of $40,000 for enlarging and extending the roof of the new grandstand building, according to an official announcement at the fair grounds. It is said both improvements are absolutely necessary.

Minneapolis.—Minnesota wool growers made an excellent showing at the State Fair, and their booths in the Agricultural building attracted scores of visitors daily. The exhibit not only contained dozens of varieties of wool, but also showed the cloth made of it, under the co-operative system put in practice only a few years ago by the wool growers of the state.

St. Paul.—"Accept our interpretation of the Cashman law amendment or fight." Briefly put, this summarizes the urbanely worded, but none the less deliberate ultimatum served on the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission by the railroads at the hearing on the tentative order issued some time ago by the commission, establishing the Twin Cities, Hopkins and St. Louis Park as a common rate point and providing that the shortest mileage to or from any part of this common center shall be the rate basis.

Brainerd.—Indications point to a rising iron ore market and it is reported that a contract for 70,000 tons has been placed at an advance in price. A big tonnage will undoubtedly be mined on the Cuyuna range next year. The figures this season will run from 1,250,000 to 1,500,000 tons. Of extreme interest to the Cuyuna range was the visit of the Lake Superior Mining Institute, 200 of whose members had the opportunity to view the mines. Carl Zapffe took exception to the idea that much water is encountered in mining operations.

Minneapolis.—After leaping 94 feet off the Washington avenue bridge into 16 feet of water, then subconsciously swimming to shore, sustaining only minor injuries, Miss Elsie L. Bassett, 26 years old, a former employe in the University library, was unable to give any plausible motive for her act at the city hospital. "I did not wish to die," Miss Bassett said, but in the next breath declared that she knew what she was doing when she jumped from the bridge. She said that she was glad she was saved and that she would not try to end her life again.

Winona.—Father Louis M. Lesches, charged with having shot Bishop P. R. Heffron on Aug. 27, waived examination in Municipal court. Attorney J. J. Fitzpatrick appeared for the accused priest. The charge against the prisoner is assault in the first degree and the complaint is signed by Sheriff W. E. Parr. The courtroom was well filled. Lesches was bound over to the grand jury, which convenes on Sept. 20. If he is given a hearing by a court to determine his sanity the move will come from the side of the prosecution, according to Lesches' attorney.

New Ulm.—In a decision by Judge I. M. Olsen, Redwood county remains dry by a majority of only two votes. The county option election was held June 7. The wets contested the election, but the result again favored the drys. The wets were not satisfied with the recount and appealed to the district court.

Pipestone.—Charging that Judge Quinn erred when he refused to count all the ballots voted by legal voters as ballots cast in the county option election here June 7, the wets of Pipestone county have appealed to the state supreme court.

MANKATO SCHOOL LOSES STATE AID

BIBLE TEACHING TO COST $10,000—COURT ACTION MAY RESULT.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.—By persisting in using the Bible in its schools and giving religious instruction to pupils, the Mankato high school will lose $10,000 aid from the state.

C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of education, explained that the school was entitled to $2,200 annual state aid, $1,800 industrial aid and about $6,000 as its share of the apportionment for attendance.

The school authorities have been notified of the resolution adopted by the State High School board which denied the Mankato high school further state aid, until it stopped religious instruction.

The board acted in accordance with an opinion given by former Attorney General H. W. Childs, that no religious instruction could be given in the publis schools.

Mr. Schulz said there was no way to tell what action may result from the board's resolution to withhold state aid. The school board may start court proceedings in the endeavor to compel the state superintendent to pay over the state aid or find a means of commencing a friendly action to test whether the use of the Bible in the schools is constitutional.

The situation was placed before the high school board by Inspector R. N. Phillips, who investigated and found religious instruction was being given in the Mankato schools.

Prepares Hog Cholera Serum

With the erection of a $10,000 building at the University of Minnesota agricultural college, now under construction, the plant for the manufacture of hog cholera serum will be complete in every detail and the work of manufacturing the serum, whose use may be the means of saving millions of dollars to Minnesota farmers, can be conducted on a scale adequate to meet the demands of the hog raisers in the state, Dr. H. Preston Hoskins, assistant veterinarian in charge said.

The building, which is of brick, is to be used as the serum laboratory of the plant. There are five other buildings now in use, two of them big hog sheds where the hogs used in manufacturing the serum and virus are kept. Much of the work since the manufacture of the serum began in 1908 has been done in other buildings at a disadvantage, but at the recent session of the legislature, $10,000 was appropriated for the final addition and $20,000 for maintaining the plant for two years.

The first manufacture of hog cholera serum began at the university farm in 1908. In that year, 25,000 cubic centimeters of it was manufactured. This amount was trebled in 1909, while in 1910 there was manufactured 150,000 c. c., in 1911, 240,000 c. c., and in 1912, 250,000 c. c.

An epidemic of hog cholera swept over the middle western states in 1913. At that time the losses in Minnesota alone were estimated to be $5,000,000.

Governor Returns to Capitol

Governor W. S. Hammond has returned to the capitol after an absence of two weeks during which he attended the conference of state governors at Boston. "It was the most successful meeting of the kind that has been conducted since there have been annual meetings of governors," said Governor Hammond. "There were 36 present. The entertainment was on a princely scale, including the mobilization of the national guard of Massachusetts at a cost of $25,000, and a review of a portion of the United States navy. We attended a dinner given by the Boston city council at which every guest had a private telephone, on which we listened to a long distance conversation between Governor David I. Walsh of Massachusetts and Governor Hiram Johnson of California."

Salaries of Secretaries

An idea of what former private secretaries to Governors of Minnesota earned from notarial commissions in addition to their salaries of $1,500, was gained when J. A. O. Preus, state auditor, figured out the amount received by the state since January 1. The total is $4,116 for eight months. This would indicate the secretaries received in previous years about $7,000 or $8,000, or more than the Governor's salary. Beginning January 1, the fees were turned into the state treasury.

Health Boards May Unite

A movement for union of the state sanitary conference and the Minnesota Public Health association was begun at a meeting of the directors of the association at Millard hall, University of Minnesota. Resolutions expressing approval of the plan were passed unanimously. The state sanitary conference will meet at Rochester, September 28, when it is probable that the plan will be further discussed. A combination of the two organizations could not be effected until after January 1, 1916.

Keen Financiering.

Lady—What will you charge me for the use of a horse and buggy for a few hours?

Liveryman—It will cost you two dollars for the first hour and one dollar for each additional hour.

Lady—Well, I'll use it for two additional hours. I've got some shopping to do and will not require it for the first hour.

Easily Settled.

"What's the trouble about the program?"

"This prima donna insists that her name be in larger letters than that of the trained chimpanzee."

"Let her have it that way," directed the vaudeville manager. "The monk is intelligent, but he hasn't arrived at the point where he is going to kick about the way we print his name."

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Tune Aids Mastication.

Mr. Beecham has declared music at meals a nuisance. Such was not the opinion of Michael Mail in "Under the Greenwood Tree." "Truly now," he said, "there is a friendly tie of some sort between music and eating. I was once sitting in the little kitchen of the Three Choughs at Casterbridge, having a bit of dinner, and a brass band struck up in the street. Such a beautiful band as that were! I was sitting eating fried liver and lights—I well can mind. Ah I was! and to save my life I couldn't help chewing to the tune. Band played six-eight time; six-eight chews I willy-nilly! Band plays common; common time went my teeth among the friend liver and lights as true as a hair. Beautiful 'twere. Ah, I shall never forget that there band!"—London Chronicle.

Would Outlaw Canoes.

Burning of the canoes at Camp Tekakwitha is a good example. The use of these extremely frail, unstable and therefore dangerous craft should be everywhere restricted to expert swimmers. Any others who go out in them risk their lives, since the least incautious movement is likely to cause an upset even when the water is quiet.

While canoes may still be used by those who are fitted and ready at any moment to swim ashore, it would be better if they were put out of use altogether. There is always the danger, as long as they are kept at hand, that boys who cannot swim may seize an opportunity to venture out in them.

They serve no purpose that is worth while. An expert may derive some pleasure from paddling a canoe about, but to persons who want to enjoy a ride upon the water they offer neither security nor comfort.—Albany Journal.

Covering Cream Cans.

A great part of the value of keeping cream cool on the farm and at the station or creamery is lost if the cream is exposed to the direct rays of the sun while being hauled from the farm to the point of sale. Far too few people stop to realize the importance of covering their cream cans when bringing them in to town. Expensive jacketed cans are not a necessity to keep the cream cool. In summer weather just an ordinary piece of wet burlap thrown over the cans will keep the temperature of the cream as much as 20 degrees below what it would rise to if left uncovered while being transported over the average hauling distance.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 31 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

The sending of the Austrian Minister home, was a move in the right direction, as we can not tolerate the interference of any other nation with America's business interests.

The Red Lake River still remains a little above its banks, and we only know of one way to cause it to go down so you could jump across it, and that would be to try to run boats on it.

The raid of air ships is more barbarious warfare than submarine warfare, as it kills women and children in their homes. Surely the European nations are more savage than the American Indians ever were.

The Pioneer Press is authority for the statement that Beltrami Republicans were booming Eberhart for U. S. Senator at the State Fair, and the Bemidji Sentinel arises to inquire who they were.

The U. S. Army will attend to the Mexicans on the Texas border, in the future, as they discovered that the civilians were killing off the Greasers too fast to insure a continuation of their raids onto American soil.

Judging from some of the talk we heard over in Mayfield township last Saturday, it would not be much safer for Stephen Singer to travel through that territory, than it would be for ex-Governor Slayton to travel through Georgia.

Thief River Falls is to have a re-assessment of the entire city by an assessor appointed by the Minnesota Tax Commission. This additional expense will undoubtedly cause that city to elect an assessor who is qualified for the position next year.

Wheat is way below the price expected by the farmers at seeding time last spring, and it would be well for those who can hold their wheat to do so, for the raise in price after the bulk of the grain passes out of the producers hands.

President Wilson's troubles with Germany, reminds us of a ten cent novel Indian story, where the hero is no more than out of one difficulty than he gets into another one, until the one-hundredth page is reached. We will bet that President Wilson wishes that he had reached the ninety-ninth page, but he may not be half way through the book yet.

On last Saturday ye editor drove over the mail route from Sunbeam, through the town of Mayfield to Rhoda post office. The road is not in the best of condition, especially where it passes on the line between Mayfield and Kratka, which has not had the brush cut out of it. We find that a number of farmers on the route are subscribers for daily papers and are justly indignant that their petition for mail service was reversed, so as to have all their mail he over two days at Sunbeam post office; and they propose to continue their fight for mail service until they get it, if it takes them until a year from next March when the mail routes will be laid out by a new man in the position, if their votes will help to remove the mail service of this territory from the Bob Singer rule.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1913, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1914, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1915, and each of which said sums are now past due and payable upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charley Clark and Resella Clark, his wife, Mortgagors to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of August, 1912, and with a Power of Sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of September, 1912, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., in Book 1 of Mortgages, on page 163.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to John Higbothom, by written assignment, dated the 3rd day of August, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said County, on the 5th day of August, 1915, at 8:00 o'clock A. M., in Book of Mortgages, on page 605. And,

Whereas said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of Seven Hundred and Fifty ($750.00) Dollars upon the same land, or any installment of interest due thereon, that the Mortgagee in this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same, and have a lien therefor under this mortgage, and default having been made in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1913, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1914, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1915, upon said prior mortgage, the same was paid by said Mortgagee and by the undersigned Assignee of Mortgagee, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon this mortgage herein foreclosed, the sum of Seventy-Five ($75.00) Dollars, with interest upon said amount at the rate of Ten Per Cent per annum from the 1st day of August 1913, and the further sum of One Hundred and Thirty-Five ($135.00) Dollars, the interest paid upon the prior mortgage, and interest upon each of the three items making up the same from the above mentioned dates when the same became due, amounting in all to the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Three and 60—100 ($233.60) Dollars, due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage containing a provision that the non-payment, when due, of any installments upon the note which this mortgage was given to secure, causes the note to become due at once, and the assignee of the mortgagee having elected to declare the whole sum due: and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by either of the mortgages in this notice referred to or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: The West half (W½) of the North East quarter (NE¼) of Section Number Thirty-one (31), in Township Number One Hundred and Fifty-three (153), North of Range Number Forty [40], West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Pennington County, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 9th day of October, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Two Hundred and Thirty-three and 60—100 [$233.60] Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on the said premises, and Twenty-five [$25.00] Dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, August 20th 1915.

On Church and State

The recent action of one of the leading churches of this nation, in annual convention, demanding that the laymen vote only for candidates for office whose views coincide with those of the clergy on one of the leading political issues, and direct and indirect efforts of other church organizations to interfere with the freedom of the ballot, make one of the greatest perils of this age, and present a problem that should receive thoughtful consideration of both laymen and citizens.

Suckling babes may well squirm in their cradles when ministers in convention assembled release the hearts of men and grab them by the throat, for Christianity has broken down, religion has become a farce and the pulpit a failure. When the church substitutes force for persuasion, command for conviction and coercion for reason, the sheriff had as well pass the sacrament, plain-clothes men take charge of the altar and policemen bury the dead, for why a church?

It is as dastardly a crime against government for a minister to undertake to deliver the votes of his parishioners to a candidate, as it is for a ward heeler to deliver a block of votes to a political boss, and both ought to be prosecuted, for the law should be no respecter of persons.

It is as objectionable for a convention of ministers to seek by canonical law to control the votes of church members as it would be for a convention of manufacturers to issue orders for their employees to vote for a certain candidate. Such conduct is offensive to decency, business morals and a crime against society. Any convention, whether composed of saints or sinners, rich or poor, white or black, that seeks to prostitute power and coerce conscience ought to be broken up by the police and its leaders arrested for treason.

A crime by any other name is a crime just the same. An ecclesiastical robe cannot sanctify treason, authority to preach does not carry with it license to become a political ringster, or the right to teach us how to pray give a permit to tell us how to vote. No man in joining the church should sacrifice his citizenship, forfeit his constitutional liberties or subordinate his duty to the state. The earth many times has been drenched with the blood of our forefathers fighting to throw off the ecclesiastical yoke from the state, and the suggestion of a return to these medieval conditions with their horror and their torture should not be tolerated for a moment.

Laws should be passed prohibiting any preacher, or combination of preachers, from delivering or attempting to deliver their membership or congregation to any candidate for office, and suitable legislation should be passed preserving the sanctity of the pulpit from political vandalism. It is as much a menace to church and state for a politician to occupy the pulpit as for a minister to preach a political sermon. He has no more right to preach his politics from the pulpit than a teacher has to teach his politics to his pupils. A preacher cannot make political trickery righteous by usage any more than he can make profanity respectable by practice. It is one of the ironies of fate that a preacher may become a scandal as well as a glory to civilization.

NOTICE!

R. R. Johnson of the Goodridge Meat Market will visit Highlanding on Mondays and Fridays with a full line of choice fresh meat for sale. Do not forget the days Mondays and Fridays.

There will be a monster petition gotten up to Postmaster General Burleson, and an appeal made direct to him by the people of Mayfield township, to give them mail service, which has been denied by the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General.

Hennepin county votes on county option October 4th, and county option is pretty sure to win out in that county, which means that there will be something doing in temperance legislation at the next session of the legislature.

There is some talk of sending Bryan over to make peace in Europe. If he can establish peace over there he may want to run for president again, but we fear he would not get any more votes than Stephen Singer got when he ran for county commissioner.

Halvor Olson, of Kratka, met with a serious accident on Wednesday, He jumped from the top of a thrashing machine and lit on the end of a fork handle, making a serious wound on his hip, which will lay him up for some time. Looking before jumping from a stack or a machine would save accidents of this kind.

There is some talk of getting a law passed to protect prairie chickens for two or three years. The present game laws are all right if they were enforced, but the game wardens spend about all of their time watching for violations of the game laws in the cities, while the young ducks are slaughtered before they can fly, and the prairie hens are shot off of the nests.

The present mail routes of eastern Pennington county, are put in to favor individuals, instead of to accommodate the people. The farmers of Mayfield are being compelled to let their mail lie over two days at Sunbeam Post office, so the carrier can go by their way going out, to gather up cancellation for the Rhoda post office. The route was put in to please Stephen Singer postmaster at Kratka instead of to accommodate the people.

Flax is turning out rather poor but wheat and oats are turning out much better than was expected.

The matter of getting the grade levelled on Ditch 42, as far as the ditch is completed will be taken up by the board of county commissioners at their next meeting. The farmers of that locality want to use this grade for a road, and want it levelled down and made passable.

HOLD YOUR NOSE

On last Saturday a monster petition was sent in to the Fourth Assistant Post master General by the former patrons of Malone post office, to change the route of the driver on the Sunbeam-Rhoda route, so as to give them mail service. It can hardly be expected that these people will obtain justice, as it would be against the interests of the Singers, the dictators, to give them justice. These people are not asking for any additional expense to the government, but are just asking that the mail driver drive by their way on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, so as to give them the same mail service that the patrons of Sunbeam post office have, and we never heard of a more flagrant abuse of the wishes of the people than there has been in this case.

The distance from Sunbeam post office to Rhoda is five miles, direct road, and by way of Malone it is ten miles. The petition requested the driver to return from Rhoda postoffice by way of Malone, after the arrival of the mail from Plummer. But instead of granting their petition, the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General issued an order for the carrier to drive by Malone going to Rhoda and return direct to Sunbeam, which leaves all of these people's mail lie over two days at Sunbeam post office. It is very apparent that this deal was fixed up by Stephen Singer post master at Kratka, from the records that we have on file in this office, and it was not made in the interest of economy for the government but in the interests of father, post master at Rhoda, who wanted all the cancellation from the route.

There has been several other slick deals made in the line of establishing mail routes in this territory, so as to have all routes lead to Kratka, Rhoda or Erie post offices, and discontinue other routes and offices. George Singer (the old man) is post master at Rhoda. Stephen Singer the worthy elder son is post master at Kratka, and Edward the one whose head slants towards a peak is the post master at Erie, and "mine poy Stephen fixes the mail routes." But the publisher of this paper proposes to show up some of this work and put the facts before the people.

Poor old George postmaster at Rhoda is failing to rake in the cancellation that he fondly hoped for, by having "mine boy Stephen" deprive the people of Mayfield township of mail service, as they are making preparations to do all of their mailing on the Plummer line, so they are sure their letters will reach their destination, and there is some talk of a weekly private individual mail line from that locality on Mondays of each week.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE SAFETY HABIT

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, it's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

Otto Kahn

On Financial Farm Loans

Every citizen who desires to become capable in business should study banking, and every farmer who wants to see the business of agriculture properly financed should study diligently the financial systems of other industries. All other lines of industry have developed financial facilities adapted to their needs. We have all sorts of financial syndicates authorized by law or custom to deal in a certain line of securities, but in none of these financial channels will farm securities travel without a bonus in the way of an excessive rate of interest or heavy discounts.

The most powerful financial institutions in America are private banks and they are the most important to the financial life of industry. In no line of business does honesty, efficiency and stability make more imperative demands than upon private bankers, whose greatest asset is the confidence of the buying public in his business judgment and integrity. Mr. Otto Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, when asked to state the relation of the private banker to the business of the nation, said in part:

"One of the most important functions of the private banker is to be the instrument for providing the money needed for the efficient conduct and development of railroads and other industries. He does this by buying securities in bulk from those needing capital, for which purpose he usually associates himself with a large number of other financial houses, great and small, thus forming what is called a syndicate. Having in this way concluded the buying transaction he offers to the public the securities purchased by means of advertising, circularizing and through the facilities of the retail houses included in the syndicate, many of whom employ traveling salesmen. Of course the banker and the syndicate count on a reasonable profit for their services; on the other hand they run the risk of the securities, which they have definitely bought and paid for at a fixed price, remaining on their hands wholly, or in part, if the public, for one reason or another, should be unwilling to buy them. The selling of securities is a highly specialized trade, requiring much experience, organization, machinery and scrutiny. This is one of the reasons why corporations do better in offering securities to the public through bankers than if they offered them direct. The willingness of the public to buy depends upon their confidence in the integrity and the judgment of the banker who makes the offer, and a banker who attempts to mislead the public, or who is deficient in care or judgment, would very soon find himself without customers and, therefore, out of business. In many European countries, the functions of the private banker include the placing of bonds secured by farm mortgages. Bonds of this nature are issued in large quantities by mortgage banks who buy mortgages on farms and other real estate and deposit them as security for their own bonds, which in their turn are sold to bankers. It is to be hoped that similar institutions will, in course of time, be created in America, thus placing the farming industry on a par with other important industries in facilities to obtain capital."

TEUTONS IN VILNA; SLAVS SURROUNDED

CZAR'S FORCES MUST FIGHT WAY OUT OF RAILWAY TRIANGLE.

WOULD CATCH PART OF ARMY

Hindenburg Works in Co-operation With Prince Leopold to Trap Enemy—Bulgarians Call Macedonians to Colors.

London, Sept. 21.—The Germans have occupied Vilna, and by a wide sweeping movement to the north of that city have succeeded in almost, if not entirely, surrounding a portion of the Russian army, which is fighting in the railway triangle between Vilna, Lida and Vileika.

At any rate, the Russian forces in this district either must fight their way out eastward or retire in a southeasterly direction, for the only railway left entirely in their hands is that which runs from Vilna to Lida and thence to Baranovitchi.

Would Trap Russians.

The army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, which took Vilna and has reached Vileika, to the east of Vilna, is working in close co-operation with that of Archduke Leopold of Bavaria in an effort to catch a part of the Russian army, an operation which has been so often tried without success since the Austro-Germans commenced their drive in Western Galicia in early May.

The Russians express confidence in the outcome of the battle which must be decided before complete success falls to one side or the other, but with their northern armies closely held along the Dvina and the German flank well protected by their cavalry, which recently occupied Widsy, across the Vilna-Petrograd railway, it seems impossible that any aid can come to them from that direction.

Holds Off Mackensen.

The battle seemingly must be fought out between the troops, now in the district between Vilna, Lida and Slonim, with the assistance of any reinforcements that can be spared to hold the German force which has reached Vileika.

At the southern end of the line, General Ivanoff is still keeping Field Marshal von Mackensen at arm's length from the fortress of Rovno, the key to the route to Kiev, and in counter-attacks has retaken a number of villages both in Volhynia and Galicia.

Both the Germans and the French claim minor victories on the western front, but neither there, in the Italian theater nor in the Dardanelles, have any events of great moment been reported.

Warlike Feeling in Bulgaria.

The political situation in the Balkans is still shrouded with considerable mystery. The Bulgarians, having secured what they wanted from Turkey in the cession of a railway line, appear to be well satisfied for the present. But there is now talk in Berlin of the Bulgarians taking by force, if they cannot get it otherwise, the portions of Macedonia taken from them by the Serbians and Greeks during the last Balkan war. It is asserted that the Bulgarians have called to the colors all the Macedonian recruits now in Bulgaria and that generally there is a warlike feeling in existence among the Bulgars.

CALL NEUTRAL POLICY FATAL

Bulgarian Leaders Recommend Formation of Coalition Cabinet and Summoning of Parliament.

London, Sept. 20.—A dispatch to Reuters Telegram company from Sofia, Bulgaria, says:

"The opposition leaders at their audience with King Ferdinand declared that it would be fatal for the country to continue its neutral policy and, in order to safeguard the country against a policy which would be contrary to the interests and sentiments of the nation, they recommended the formation of a coalition cabinet and the immediate summoning of parliament.

Mrs. Drummond Dies in England.

Chicago, Sept. 20. — Mrs. Maldwin Drummond, who died in England, was once a social leader in Chicago as the wife of Marshall Field, Jr., who died some ten years ago of a pistol wound inflicted while he was preparing to go camping. She was Albertine Huck, daughter of Louis Huck, a wealthy real estate dealer, and neighbor of the Field family. After the death of her husband, who was the only son of Marshall Field, Sr., she traveled a great deal in Europe and there met Mr. Drummond, an officer in the British army.

Peace League for Defense.

New York, Sept. 20.—The League to Enforce Peace, of which William Howard Taft is president, in a statement issued here, declared efficient preparation for adequate national defense in no way is inconsistent with the purpose of the league, but is essential thereto. This view was expressed by the executive committee in a resolution and was made public, because of the receipt of many inquiries regarding the league's attitude toward the question of military preparedness.

CARRANZA SENTIMENT GROWS

RECOGNITION SEEMS CERTAIN IF NO MILITARY CHANGES.

Villa Party Plans Extensive Guerrila Warfare to Show Strength to Pan-Americans.

Washington, Sept. 21. — Prospects for the recognition of General Carranza, it was admitted in official quarters, are much more favorable than they have been at any time since the United States began to exert its influence toward the establishment of a central government in Mexico.

The decision of the Pan-American conference of diplomats in New York to study within the next three weeks "the material and moral capacity" of the elements aspiring to recognition, has led to the general belief here by officials, that unless the military situation in Mexico was much changed in that period, the recognition of the Carranza movement practically is certain.

To Investigate Mexican Affairs.

The United States and the several governments which have taken the situation under advisement intend, however, to investigate carefully the physical state of affairs in Mexico.

To demonstrate in the meantime that the Carranza movement does not control the territory it claims in Mexico will be the object of a delegation of Villa-Zapata followers expected to arrive here this week. They will be heard by Secretary Lansing, as will the representatives of Carranza. To supplement their arguments here the Villa party is planning an extensive guerilla warfare, it is said by Enrique C. Lorente, Washington representative of General Villa.

WILSON WITH POSTMASTERS

President to Participate in Big Convention at Washington, Oct. 20-22. —Special Railroad Rates.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Postmaster General Burleson, President Wilson and many other Washington statesmen and prominent officials will participate in the activities of the annual convention of the national association of postmasters, according to an announcement made by the program committee here today. The convention will last three days, beginning Oct. 20. A series of entertainments have been arranged for the visitors by the Washington commercial organizations, and these will be divided with the business sessions. Postal efficiency will be the keynote of the convention. A number of conferences on postal matters between Washington officials and postmasters have been arranged.

First and second class postmasters of every state in the union will be in attendance. It is stated that the convention this year will be the biggest gathering of postmasters ever held. Special railroad rates from all points have been announced.

MEXICANS ATTACK TROOPS

Exchange Volleys With American Soldiers—Several Houses in Brownsville, Texas, Are Struck.

Brownsville, Texas, Sept. 18.—Twenty-five American soldiers exchanged volleys for half an hour with Mexicans entranched across the river in Matamoros. Several houses in Brownsville were struck by bullets, but no casualties were reported.

Brownsville, Sept. 18.—Another fight between United States soldiers and Mexicans has been reported.

A United States cavalry patrol was fired on from the Mexican side of the river, near the Brownsville city limits. About 500 shots were fired. The cavalrymen had gone to the river to investigate the shooting of a Mexican's horse on the American side.

Mexicans entrenched in front of the electric power plant at Matamoros fired across the river into Brownsville, killing a horse. Troop C of the Third cavalry has been ordered to the river to investigate.

GERMANS TO ANNEX BELGIUM

Geneva, Sept. 20.—The Lausanna Gazette says it has learned that the German government has decided to issue a declaration annexing to the German empire the occupied territories in France and Belgium.

The Gazette says this measure has been determined upon for the near future because it now appears impossible that the war will be ended as had been hoped, before winter.

According to this newspaper, the German government intends to organize the conquered territory from a political and administrative standpoint which is expected to strengthen Germany's moral position.

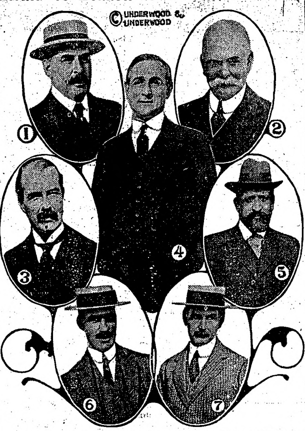
Austria to Recall Dumba.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The Austrian government intends to recall Ambassador Dumba for consultation, according to intimations given to Ambassador Penfield when he delivered the note from the United States asking for the return of the ambassador to Austria. Several cablegrams reached the state department from Ambassador Penfield. Secretary Lansing went to the White House and it was believed he had taken the Penfield dispatches with him to submit to the president.

TRYING TO BORROW A BILLION FOR ALLIES



Representatives of England and France, who are in the United States for the purpose of negotiating a loan of a billion dollars for the allies, are shown in this illustration. J. P. Morgan (1), as financial agent of the British government, is acting as their host. The others are: (2) Sir Edward Holden of the London City and Midland bank; (3) Sir Henry Babbington Smith; (4) Lord Reading, lord chief justice of Great Britain and head of the commission; (5) Octave Homburg of the French foreign office; (6) Basil B. Blackett of the British treasury; (7) Ernest Mallet, regent of the Bank of France.

HILL SAYS BIG LOAN WILL SAVE MARKETS

DECLARES BILLION DOLLAR DEAL WITH ALLIES CERTAIN TO BE GRANTED.

REFUSAL WILL HURT NATION

Railroad Magnate Reiterates Establishment of Credit Means Marketing of 400,000,000 Wheat Surplus This Year.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—James J. Hill upon his arrival here said. "The billion-dollar loan sought by the Anglo-French financial commission is certain to be granted. Such is my opinion. It is possible that it might not come up to the billion-dollar mark originally set, but the negotiations for the establishment of the credit are bound to be successful. It is a question of protecting our markets with us. If the loan should be refused we would find they could get along much better without us than we could without them."

Mr. Hill paused in Chicago on his way back to St. Paul from New York, where he has been championing the cause of the Anglo-French commission. He spent the day at the country residence of J. Ogden Armour at Lake Forest, and at the Chicago club, where he dined, before taking a train for his home and expounded his views on the question of the billion-dollar loan.

Must Find Wheat Market.

"It is a marketing question," reiterated Mr. Hill. "With us it is simply the matter of having something to sell and finding a customer for our goods. It is the simple every-day matter of buyer and seller. Think of it, we will have a 400,000,000 wheat surplus this year. We must find a market for that or suffer disaster. It will be far better for us to sell it on credit than to store it up and let our markets go to smash.

"I saw this thing coming 30 days ago. Why, this year all records for grain production in the United States have been excelled. The Anglo-French commission has come here with a proposition that we give them credit. Give the loan and we save our markets. Decline to grant it and what would happen?

Big Surplus of Farm Products.

"Why, they would simply go elsewhere to get their grain. They could get all they need from India, Argentina and Canada. They could get at least 500,000,000 bushels. They could get at least enough to tide them over until next April, and if in the meantime the Dardanelles should be forced—just think of what would happen to our markets.

"We've got a big surplus of farm products and we've got to be in a position to compete with the other countries that have grain to sell. Canada, India and Argentina can get along, because they are debtor nations to Europe. They owe the buying nations money. But we are in a different position. We are now substantially a creditor nation, and to protect our markets this loan becomes expedient. It is simply an establishment of credit, a credit proposition.

"I've made two trips to New York. My purpose was to see that the loan should be confined to purchases of grain, provisions and cotton.

"There are other questions of import, too. If this country is prudent it will not wait until the end of the European war to place itself in a position to realize the maximum amount of advantage from the conditions that will then exist."

BANKERS WOULD EXCLUDE WAR MUNITIONS EXPORTS

New York, Sept. 20.—The Anglo-French financial commissioners who are seeking to establish a mammoth credit loan here, and American financiers, who expect to supply the money, are reported to be at odds over the burning question of including munitions of war among exports to be paid for by the proceeds of the loan.

On several details of the loan the commission and the bankers have agreed, but on this major question it was said their views are diametrically opposed. Further, it developed there is an apparent split on the question in the ranks of the American financiers.

The commission's attitude, so far as it can be interpreted from a canvass of such bankers conferring with it as would talk, is that the big credit, whether a billion dollars or less, should provide funds for all exports and that munitions of war certainly should be included.

British Seizure Stirs Washington.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Extreme displeasure over the British prize court decision confiscating $15,000,000 worth of American meats pervades administration circles. Whether a sharp protest will be made by the state department depends upon the injured American shippers. Officials privately admitted that the decision was of great diplomatic importance, as affecting public sentiment in the negotiations for modification of England's order in council.

Packers to Appeal Seizure Cases.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Appeal to Great Britain's privy council from the decision of the admiralty prize court, which has ordered seized over $2,000,000 worth of meat cargoes, will be followed by insistence that the state department protest the action on the ground that it is a violation of international law and a blow to the freedom of the seas as contended by President Wilson. These were the two steps decided on by Chicago packers who were hardest hit in the ship seizure cases.

STEFANSSON SAFE; FINDS NEW LANDS

EXPLORER LOST FOR YEAR AND A HALF SENDS MESSAGE TO GOVERNMENT.

TO CONTINUE EXPLORATIONS

Dispatch Says Party Will Continue to 145 West and 82 North if Northerly Course Is Secured—New Territory Is Discovered.

Nome, Alaska, Sept. 18.—Vilhjalmar Stefansson is safe on Banks Land. The schooner Ruby arrived here with dispatches from him to the Canadian government. Stefansson succeeded beyond all expectations in his explorations. He discovered new land southwest of St. Patrick's land. He is now on Banks Land outfitting for continuance of explorations to the westward to ascertain the full extent of the new land.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 18.—First definite tidings that the world has had from Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the arctic explorer, for a year and a half were received by the naval department, which sent him and his companions on their perilous trip to the frozen north. The advices from the explorer were meager, but sufficient to show that he and his companions are safe.

Near Polynia Islands.

New York, Sept. 20.—Satisfied by Vilhjalmur Stefansson's announcement that he is alive and well on Banks Land, in the Arctic, explorers and geographers directed attention to the new land he reports he has discovered in the far north.

In Stefansson's own report the newly discovered land is located near 78 degrees north latitude and 117 degrees west longitude. He actually saw about 100 miles of coast line running in an easterly direction and apparently penetrating to a distance of 20 miles inland, where from a hilltop the explorer saw mountains at a distance of 50 miles.

Cyrus C. Adams, president of the Association of American Geographers, declared in a statement that Stefansson's new land lies about 100 miles to the north of Prince Patrick island, and that the most southerly part of the land which the explorer visited is considerably to the east of the most eastward extension of Prince Patrick island.

The lands nearest to it, Mr. Adams said, are the Polynia islands, a little group north of Prince Patrick island, about 75 or 80 miles from the new land.

Tested Theories.

The expedition was undertaken by Stefansson to test the theories which had been set forth by Dr. Nansen and others that the unexplored portion of the Arctic ocean is a deep basin virtually devoid of land. Other explorers had asserted that land of considerable area lay undiscovered there.

The southern wing of the expedition is pursuing its scientific work in the McKenzie delta and reports no mishap except the death of Engineer Daniel Blue of the power boat Alaska. This is the 13th death among the members of the expedition. Eight men perished on the ice while trying to reach Wrangel island and another accidentally shot and killed himself there. Another in the McKenzie country went insane while lost and committed suicide by shooting.

DARDANELLES CRISIS NEAR

Kings of Bulgaria and Roumania Confer While Germans and Allies Race for Constantinople.

London, Sept. 20.—The situation in the Balkans and at the Dardanelles has reached a crisis.

Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria and the king of Roumania are reported to be holding a conference at a place on the Danube, the location of which is kept secret. It is believed that this conference will decide the action of the Balkan powers. The chief interest lies in the fact that the action of the Balkan league will decide the all important Dardanelles campaign.

So desperate is the plight of the Turks that Enver Pasha is reported in dispatches from Rome as having declared Constantinople in a state of siege.

Every ounce of Allied strength is being brought to bear against the Dardanelles and the Turks are nearing a total collapse, it is stated in authentic dispatches. It has become a race between the Allies and Germany as to which will get to Constantinople first.

Erb Resting Comfortably.

New York, Sept. 20.—Newman Erb, financier and railroad reorganizer, who swallowed two poison tablets by mistake Tuesday, is reported to be resting comfortably.

Bulgaria Wont Aid Allies.

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 18.—(via Berlin and London)—"The Allies know that in no case may they count on Bulgaria's help on the Gallipoli peninsula," says the semi-official Independance Roumaine in an article dealing with the Turco-Bulgarian agreement. "They have lost that part of their diplomatic contest in the Balkans. It remains to be seen how the other part will come out. King Ferdinand has left for a week's vacation. This fact completely disposes of reports concerning the activities of Roumanian troops."

NEW CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Woman Who Had Suffered for Many Years Is Cured by Bolt of Lightning.

The medical faculty was put to shame by a bolt of lightning which the other night struck the farmhouse of Charles A. Burdick, on Washington Ridge, says the Berlin (Conn.) correspondent of the New York Herald. The electric bolt destroyed articles in all the eight rooms of the house and did damage exceeding $1,000, but it cured Mrs. Burdick of rheumatism, from which she had suffered for many years.

Mrs. Burdick was about to put wood in the kitchen stove when the bolt struck her, knocking her down and rendering her unconscious. One of her feet was on zinc beneath the stove. The lightning took a nail out of the sole of her shoe and her foot was severely burned. Dr. Thomas Mulligan of New Britain soon revived her.

Today Mrs. Burdick, although suffering from the burns on her foot, was free from rheumatic pains. She does not think the price her husband must pay in repairs to the house too high, but Mr. Burdick is discreetly silent.

Naturally.

"Wasn't that a terrible fight among the animals in the zoo?"

"Yes; one of the keepers told me it was a beastly row."

Building Master Men

Potash, sodium, lime and iron are some of the vital mineral salts necessary to proper nourishment of muscle, brain and nerves, but are not found in proper abundance in white bread and many other foods.

Grape-Nuts

—made from whole wheat and malted barley—richly supplies these needed mineral elements and is a delicious dish served with cream or rich milk.

Grape-Nuts food is splendid for brain workers, and ideal for school children. Being partially pre-digested, it is quickly absorbed by the system—going directly to the up-building of sinew, brain and nerves without overloading the stomach.

STATE BREVITIES

Brainerd.—At the Mission Lake Farmers' club harvest home picnic C. E. Brown, of Elk River, spoke on "The Needs of a Potato Market."

Swanville.—The Morrison county Sunday school convention was held here. State Secretary Locker and department officers were present.

Rush City.—The 44th annual Chisago county fair was held in Rush City. Aeroplane flights and a racing program were presented. Special trains were run from all nearby towns each day.

Bemidji.—Nymore, a suburb of this city, may be annexed to Bemidji. Business men of both places favor the proposition and at a meeting of the city council of Bemidji, a committee was appointed to take the matter up with the village officials of Nymore.

St. Paul.—While the harvest of corn in Minnesota this year will yield not more than half of a normal crop, that which will be gathered will net the farmers a fortune in good sound seed, according to Albert F. Woods, director of the department of agriculture, University of Minnesota.

Duluth.—Fred E. Ganzaw, 57 years old, assistant chief of the Duluth fire department, was killed when a motor truck on which he was riding collided with a touring car while making a rapid run to a small fire in West Duluth. The touring car belongs to R. F. Cochran of Cloquet.

Faribault.—The vestry of the Cathedral of Our Merciful Saviour has arranged for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the coming of Major William Milligan to Faribault. In all the years since, Milligan has been connected with the cathedral or St. Mary's hall, both of which he helped to build.

Madelia.—Edna Hall, 9-year-old daughter of A. M. Hall, was burned fatally by the flames from a gasoline lamp. She attempted to turn down the wick, but turned it up instead. Frightened, she picked up the lamp and started for the doorway to throw it outside. Her face, hands and neck were burned.

Duluth.—Suspicion that the steamer Onoko was destroyed by agents of the German-Austrian alliance, because the wheat was for export to England, is discredited here. Captain John Monaghan, government inspector of hulls here, declares that in his opinion the sinking was due to the breaking of a plate under the floor of the engine. The plate, he says was eaten away by rust.

Mankato.—Lack of confidence in banks has cost August Weigelt $700. He became suspicious about 10 days ago and drew out his money. When he went to the cellar one day after an absence in town and looked for the pail in which he had placed the money, it was gone. The officials do not know whom to suspect, unless it is some person who induced him to withdraw his money from the bank.

Osseo.—Directors of the State bank want $900 for the automobile belonging to the bank, which was wrecked and burned while driven by S. F. Nelson of Minneapolis, assistant bank examiner. They have served notice on A. H. Turrittin, state superintendent of banks, that they consider the car worth $900 and want that sum paid into the bank's cash drawer.

Minneapolis, Minn.—With prompt acceptance of Mayor Nye's challenge to produce facts to support his assertions concerning "blind pigs" in Minneapolis the Rev. J. M. Cleary, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, gave out a statement in which he offered to give names and addresses of 265 places in Minneapolis which could not be accounted for on a legal basis.

Duluth, Minn.—Two judges, both claiming to be the duly authorized instrument of the law, kept the municipal courtroom in an uproar while jurors and lawyers looked on perplexed, and a crowd of curious spectators enjoyed the spectacle. Judge Windom, who claims to be the "holdover" judge, rapped with his gavel for order. Judge Smallwood appointed to fill the "vacancy" by Governor Hammond, not to be outdone, used his crutch for the same purpose.

Duluth, Minn.—The steamer Onoko, belonging to the Steinbrenner interests in Cleveland, O., loaded with 111,000 bushels of wheat, consigned to Buffalo, by the Capitol Elevator company, sank while off Knife Island, about 14 miles out of Duluth, almost without a moment's warning. None of the crew was lost. Captain Dunn reported to G. A. Tomlinson, agent of the Onoko at this point, that he did not know the cause of the vessel's sinking.

St. Paul.—George H. Hazzard, as secretary of the Minnesota Pioneers' association, now believes that all differences of opinion between his association and the State Fair association will be adjusted, and that the Log Cabin at the State Fair will be open next year as usual. The opinion is based upon a recent conference Mr. Hazzard had with C. P. Craig of the State Fair association, and upon a letter received from E. W. Murphy of the board of managers of the fair.

Buffalo, Minn.—His skull crushed, and his feet and hands securely tied with telephone wire, the body of C. E. Vern Bergman, former Minneapolis jitney bus driver, was found half covered with leaves and brush in a lonely wood six miles northeast of Buffalo. The body, which evidently had been there for about two weeks, was found by a boy. Mystery surrounds the crime, and no motive is known. The man's money and valuables were intact, and so far as known, he had no enemies. Theft of his Ford car, which is missing, is the only motive suggested by the known circumstances.

FOR RURAL SCHOOL WEEK IN OCTOBER

STATE SUPERINTENDENT INVITES SUGGESTIONS FROM COUNTY EDUCATORS.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.—To bring the rural schools in closer touch with the remainder of the state's educational system, C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of education, is arranging for a "rural school week," October 11 to 16.

He has addressed notices to the county superintendents inviting their assistance and suggestions.

"The five normal schools, the University of Minnesota, the college of education, the school of agriculture and the inspectors and assistants in this department," said Mr. Schulz, "have arranged to give their services to visiting rural schools under direction of the county superintendents."

The objects of this suggested cooperative visiting are to offer support of the educational institutions and state department to the rural schools to establish a closer relationship and to observe conditions in the rural schools with a view of such changes and betterment as a study of this kind may suggest.

To Organize Boosters.

Governor Hammond has a plan to cement into one organization the various booster elements of Minnesota.

He said he expects to call his proposed development meeting in St. Paul as soon as possible after the county fairs have closed, probably in October or November.

"At present there are booster organizations in all sections of the state," he said. "There should be some way in which they could work together. My idea is to have the organizations send representatives here.

"Each man will know definitely what his particular section of the state needs. Then when they are assembled let suggestions be made. When these are all received let the conferees get together and concentrate their efforts on those things which will aid in the development of the state as a whole.

"As a result the attention of the 1917 Legislature should be called to what is needed most over the whole state in the way of development."

* * *

To Discuss Health Needs.

"The Newer Public Health and Minnesota Health Needs" will be discussed by Governor Hammond and President Vincent of the university at the state sanitary conference and public health convention at Rochester, September 29. A call announcing the importance of the sanitary conference, issued by Governor Hammond, points to the death of 1,800 people in Minnesota during the past year from preventable diseases.

"Clean Milk," as a means of preventing the spread of disease, will be one of the leading topics of the convention. Dr. R. W. Archibald of Winona will tell how his city solved the problem of obtaining clean milk.

Dr. A. T. Laird, superintendent of the Nopeming sanitarium, will talk on "Community Control of Tuberculosis;" Miss Alma Wrestling, school nurse at Albert Lea, will discuss school and municipal health nursing.

State May Enter Fight.

The state's legal department may take a hand in the fight over the municipal judgeship in Duluth to settle whether Judge W. L. Windom or Judge W. H. Smallwood is the legal incumbent.

Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith said he is studying the statutes to see if he cannot bring quo warranto proceedings in the supreme court to summon both judges there and have them show by what warrant they expect to hold the municipal judgeship.

Judge Windom clings to the bench with the argument that he is judge until his successor has been elected and qualified.

Judge Smallwood argues that he is the judge because the Governor appointed him to the office.

For Teachers' Pension Fund.

Answering an inquiry from State Auditor J. A. O. Preus, Assistant Attorney General W. J. Stevenson has ruled that all taxable property in the state outside the three cities of the first class, which have their own systems for teachers' pensions, is liable for the tax of one-twentieth of a mill for the state teachers' pension fund.

Would Abolish Boards.

Abolition of the state Drainage Commission, the state Board of Immigration, the Board of Audit and the position of clerk of government surveys was recommended by Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, to the Efficiency and Economy Commission, which has sent letters to the heads of all departments asking suggestions. Mr. Schmahl recommends that the licensing of chauffeurs be separated from his department, and that the issuance of such licenses be made by a state civil service commission.

PERCHERONS IN FAVOR

Best Adapted to Demands of User of Draft-Horse.

They Do Well in Cotton Fields of South and Wheat Fields of Canada—Stand Hard Work Better Than Any Other Breed.

(By E. E. HENDERSON.)

The Percheron has proved himself to be the breed most adapted to the demands of the user of the draft-horse, in all sections of the country.

They do well on the cotton fields of the South and in the wheat fields of Canada. They are popular in the East and in the West. On the farm they are the farmers' mainstay.

In the city they are able to withstand the hard work better than any other breed, witness the fact that dealers often pay as much as $20, in the hundred, for horses bearing that indelible Percheron color, gray, more than for horses of similar quality but lacking that trade-mark.

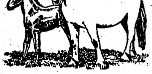
The demand of today is for a horse that can stand the strain of long hours, pulling heavy loads over all kinds of roads, for a horse that is prompt and yet quiet, one that can move the heaviest of loads and yet, when the occasion demands it, can get up and go. The Percheron seems to be the one horse that can fully fill these requirements.

A thing that is much desired by the corn-belt farmer is economy of maintenance. The horse to be desired is not only one that can do a large day's work, but one that will do it on a minimum of feed. A case in point: We have in one of our teams a purebred Percheron mare of 1,900 pounds.

Her team mate, carrying a large percentage of the blood of another popular breed, weighs about the same.

These two mares do exactly the same work, have the same attention and yet the grade mare eats 20 per cent more feed daily than does the purebred Percheron. Even then she is not in the condition of her mate. While the Percheron is smooth, and in fine condition, the other is thin and, to the eye, unlovely.

I have a communication from one of the leading importers in the United States, in which he states that he can keep his Percherons in show-yard condition on the same feed that it requires to keep his Shires and Clydesdales in good condition.



Percheron Mare and Foal.

Surely here is a subject worthy of consideration by the intending purchaser.

The thing that most serves to arouse my admiration for the breed is their wonderful disposition. We find in them a combination of almost all the best traits of horseflesh.

They are ever on their mettle, yet not nervous or fretful. They are free, prompt workers and always willing. They always keep their "heads." It is very seldom we find one that is overheadstrong.

We have reached an age when the demands of the times are for the large, yet early maturing animal. The Percheron comes very near to filling this bill.

LOOK AFTER FEET OF SHEEP

While Some Breeds Are More Susceptible to Trouble Than Others, None Are Exempt.

It is important that the feet of the sheep should be looked after daily at this season of the year, because during the winter months many of the sheep pens may have become foul, or the yards in which the sheep have been running have been muddy, and the continual tramping in foul pens or muddy yards tends to produce sore feet in the sheep, which, if let go, is liable to become a serious trouble in the flocks.

The feet should be thoroughly cleaned if there is the least doubt that the feet may become sore. While some breeds of sheep are more susceptible to this trouble than others, none are exempt from it. After the feet have been cleaned, they should be washed with an antiseptic. A wash that we have used with success is prepared by dissolving one pound of blue vitriol in one and a half gallons of water. A good carbolic acid wash is also effective.

Whether the feet are sore or not, they should be examined to see if the soles have turned under. Sheep like rolling land best to graze on, and there is a good reason for this, as they abhor moist lands over which they are to graze, and if placed on wet lands, with most breeds, the sheep are very likely to have trouble with "foot rot."

Increase Food Digestibility.

It costs nothing to soak hard grain in warm water, and when fed to pigs its digestibility is increased.

Many Trees Neglected.

By far too many of us seem to think that after fruit trees or shade trees are once set out, they need neither care nor cultivation.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 25 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

About the only way that peace can be talked to the Mexicans along the Texas border, is to have the argument made by the man behind the gun.

Ordinary years farmers are well pleased with twenty bushels of wheat to the acre, but this year if a man don't get from thirty to forty bushels he is out of date.

This is the time of year that the salaried state expert arranges his neck tie, and pulls up his pants to keep them from wrinkling at the knees, sits down and writes long winded articles to advise the farmers how to stack grain, do early fall plowing and destroy weeds.

It begins to be hard for the European countries to get money to continue their war, and another year will see complete exhaustion, then the capatilists will foreclose the mortgage and they will all have to go to work to pay up their war debts. The nations at war are all so evenly matched that no one can foretell what the outcome will be.

Governor Hammond does not propose to be side tracked by becoming a candidate for U. S. Senator next year, but will undoubtedly file for re-election for Governor, Hammond has made a fairly good governor, but there is not much chance for his re-election, as Minnesota will go Republican with one of its old time majorities next year.

We hear a great deal of talk now days about, "Back to the Farm," but one of our Deer Park farmers reversed this and went back to the city, Mike Kolski one of the early settlers of Deer Park township sold his farm and stock this summer and returned to Chicago, after a residence of ten years on the farm. He had money enough to buy him a six thousand dollar house in Chicago and will make that his future home. We wish him prosperity in the city, but fear that he may see the day that he would again like to hear the low of the cows in the pasture, and have the monthly cream check to cash.

LAST OF THE "MINNESOTA"

The Seamen's Bill has finally accomplished its worst to American shipping on the Pacific. The grand old passenger liner, "Minnesota," which hundreds of westeners have journeyed miles to see, has made its last voyage across the Pacific under the American flag, and has been sold to England. It will now journey round the horn and enter into carrying trade on the Atlantic.

The grand old ship, a monument to American enterprise, is the last of the first-class ships flying the American flag on the Pacific, and its owners have been compelled to sell it by the Seamen's Bill which Mr. Wilson persisted in signing against the most earnest and eloquent pleas of his official advisers, who foretold precisely the disastrous effects on American shipping which the bill would have. Westeners, who will not permit Japanese to own land within their states, must now go hat in hand, to the Japanese owners of the trans-Pacific ships to apply for the transportation which his pernicious legislation makes it impossible for Americans longer to supply.—Crookston Daily Times.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1913, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1914, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1915, and each of which said sums are now past due and payable upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charley Clark and Rosella Clark, his wife, Mortgagors to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of August, 1912, and with a Power of Sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of September, 1912, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., in Book 1 of Mortgages, on page 163.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to John Higbothom, by written assignment, dated the 3rd day of August, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said County, on the 5th day of August, 1915, at 8:00 o'clock A. M., in Book of Mortgages, on page 605. And,

Whereas said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of Seven Hundred and Fifty ($750.00) Dollars upon the same land, or any installment of interest due thereon, that the Mortgagee in this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same, and have a lien therefor under this mortgage, and default having been made in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1913, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1914, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1915, upon said prior mortgage, the same was paid by said Mortgagee and by the undersigned Assignee of Mortgagee, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon this mortgage herein foreclosed, the sum of Seventy-Five ($75.00) Dollars, with interest upon said amount at the rate of Ten Per Cent per annum from the 1st day of August 1913, and the further sum of One Hundred and Thirty-Five ($135.00) Dollars, the interest paid upon the prior mortgage, and interest upon each of the three items making up the same from the above mentioned dates when the same became due, amounting in all to the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Three and 60-100 ($233.60) Dollars, due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage containing a provision that the non-payment, when due, of any installments upon the note which this mortgage was given to secure, causes the note to become due at once, and the assignee of the mortgagee having elected to declare the whole sum due: and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by either of the mortgages in this notice referred to or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: The West half (W½) of the North East quarter (NE¼) of Section Number Thirty-one (31), in Township Number One Hundred and Fifty-three (153), North of Range Number Forty [40], West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Pennington County, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 9th day of October, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Two Hundred and Thirty-three and 60-100 [$233.60] Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on the said premises, and Twenty-five [$25.00] Dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, August 20th 1915.

J. J. Brown

On Farmers' Union Invites Co-operation

Co-operation is a mighty word that is ringing from ocean to ocean, reverberating from field to factory and echoing down the corridors of business. It is the slogan of the Farmers' Union, the guiding star of progress and the corner-stone of a new civilization. No man or organization can prosper without co-operation. Mr. J. J. Brown, president of the Georgia Farmers' Union, in his annual address, extending to the business interests an invitation to co-operate, said in part:

"The time has come when it is absolutely necessary for the business men and the farmers of this country to get together and stand for the best interests of our country, in order that we may change the conditions that now exist in the handling and marketing of farm products. For that reason the Farmers' Union is holding public meetings throughout the country and we are cordially inviting the business interests to co-operate with us in our efforts to build up our agricultural interests.

"At the beginning of the government, from eighty to ninety per cent of all the wealth of this country was in the hands of the farmers. Since that time they have gradually lost in the great race of life until today the farmers of this country own less than thirty per cent of the wealth. And while the farmers of the United States produced last year ten billion dollars' worth of new wealth, they received, in round numbers, about forty per cent of this wealth, while those who manipulated and speculated in their product received sixty per cent.

"What would you think of the merchant who, knowing the cost of his goods, would allow a consumer to walk into his store and tell him at what price he must sell his calico? My friends, that is exactly what we farmers have been submitting to for the last half century. We do not blame the merchant, neither do we blame the man who takes advantage of the infamous system of marketing our products, thereby making millions of dollars in a business called legitimate, but we farmers are to blame for submitting to such outrages.

"I believe in scientific farming, intensive farming, diversified farming, and every kind of good farming. I swallow the hog and hominy proposition. But all these things are matters of putting the cart before the horse and the whole farming machine simply cannot get anywhere. We must meet the basic economic conditions first, then add to them these other things.

"We've had one palliative plan after another given us from every source under the sun, but until we organize and demand, as organized, enlightened citizens demand and obtain, we may expect the tidal wave of failure to engulf the entire South and the land of our inheritance may pass from us forever."

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1915 NO. 29

THE LOCAL NEWS

Clearwater river is now good crossing at all the bridges.

The Myrum school district has been unable to secure a teacher for their school up to the present time.

Eddie Hyland is breaking for Even J. Sund, with his gasoline power plows this week.

The weather has been very unfavorable for thrashing the past week, as it has been damp and rainy.

This is the time of year that the postmaster has to make their quarterly reports to head quarters at Washington.

Unlucky is the man who wants to cross the river at Highlanding if all boats are on the opposite side.

Red Lake River still remains at a high stage of water, making the ferrying of teams at Highlanding a dangerous proposition.

Minneapolis is engaged in such a warm county option fight that the police are expecting a riot, in the Saturday night's parade.

There was a fairly good sized crowd that attended the Deer Park Young Peoples Society which was held at Ole Howard's residence.

It seems strange that our army officers continue to allow our American soldiers to get into range of those Mexican outlaws and get shot, when they could use the artillery at long range, and not have a man killed.

If the European war closes down this fall, which is now a possibility, wheat will go down below its present price, and by next fall it may reach the Grover Cleveland price of forty-five cents a bushel.

We sent a free sample copy of our last week's issue to Ed. P. M. at Erie. and he returned it as "not desired," and we should think he would, as "de gang" hate to read facts.

Can make you a farm loan at lowest rates. Write or see us befor you place your farm loan.

Houston & Bourdon,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

A petition will soon be gotten up by the people living along the Red Lake River asking Congressman Steenerson to pass an act declaring this a non-navigable river.

We have sent out a large number of subscription statements this week, and we are badly in need of the money due us at this time, and we hope that these notices will meet with a prompt response.

The matter of appropriating money to build a crossing across the Red Lake River at Highlanding was up for consideration before the county board this week, but we have not heard if they done anything or not, but we suppose they did not.

Cold weather will soon be here and the fur coats will soon have to be taken out of their hiding places. If you have not got one you might be fortunate enough to have one left with you for safe keeping, which you could appropriate to your own use, by having the collar changed.

County Commissioners Wold and Peterson are not representing the wishes of the people who elected them, by not getting that resolution passed by the county board declaring the Red Lake River a non-navigable stream. It seems queer that a board of county commissioners would refuse to make this plain statement of facts as they exist.

It will soon be time of year to start breaking land for next years flax crop. The fall of the year is the best season to break moskeg land.

If Hennepin County goes dry, next Monday, Ramsey county will have a big increase in population for the next year, as the saloon keepers and breweries must move.

Singers Mail Route

For the past two years there has been a continual re-arranging of mail routes in this part of the county so that all lead to deliver all cancellation to either Kratka, Rhoda or Erie post offices. This has led to the starving out and the discontinuing of the post offices of Malone, Hilda and Torgerson. Highlanding post office was discontinued for a time but they re-established it, with the mail routes so arranged that the post master can give out mail, but about all the cancellation of the territory must go to either Kratka or Rhoda post office. These post offices that have been discontinued were established to accommodate the people and give them mail service, and not to favor certain individuals, and the discontinuing of them shows plainly that there is something wrong, as there are just as many and more people in this territory than there was when these offices were established. To take the place of these the Department has employed a man, called a rural mail carrier to go out three days in the week, and gather up cancellation for the Erie post office But they did not show their schemes up proper until they ignored the petition of the former patrons of Malone post office to give them the same mail service that Sunbeam post office has of three times a week. They promptly turned down the petition of the people, and issued an order to have the driver drive by way of Malone, and return direct to Sunbeam, which of course makes all of these people's mail lie over two days at Sunbeam, so as to gather up the cancellation for the Rhoda post office, but if this deal works, it will be after the matter is placed before the head of the postoffice department, Postmaster General Burleson. A large number of people are inclined to blame the party in power for abuses of this kind, and it is not any more than just to them that the matter be placed before a higher authority than an acting Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and this last unjust ruling will be appealed, with the people's petition to the head of the post office department.

ALLIES MAKE BIG DRIVE; CAPTURE 20,000 GERMANS

PIERCE TEUTON POSITIONS IN NORTHERN FRANCE ON FRONT OF MORE THAN FIFTEEN MILES.

KAISER ADMITS LOSS OF LOOS AND SOUCHEZ

Fearful Carnage on Both Sides Reported, Every Known Engine of Destruction Being Used in Terrific Conflict Which Is Still Raging.

London, Sept. 28.—The great drive of the allies has already carried them far into the German positions from the sea to Verdun, for a greater gain than they have registered since the battle of the Marne.

In two days the allies have taken more than 20,000 prisoners, more than thirty field guns, an unnumbered amount of machine guns and vast quantities of material. They have pierced the German positions in Champagne on a front of more than 15 miles to a depth ranging from two-thirds of a mile to two miles and a quarter, they have occupied Hill No. 70, only a mile north of Lens, in the heart of the mining section of Northern France, and threaten to outflank the Germans there; they have occupied the entire village of Souchez, north of Arras, and have broken the German front on both sides of La Bassee canal for a width of five miles and a depth of 4,000 yards after capturing the village of Loos.

Germans Admit Losses.

The German war office admits the loss of Loos and Souchez and the retirement of the Germans for more than a mile over a wide section of the front.

The losses on both sides are reported to have been fearful. Every known engine of destruction has been used by the Germans and allies in the terrific conflict which is still raging furiously with no signs of abatement. Thousands of bodies are lying unburied for more than 100 miles.

The allies are on the offensive everywhere, according to reports from Field Marshal Sir John French, in command of the British, and official communiques of the war office at Paris.

Cut Deep Into German Lines.

On every section of the front they have cut deeply into the German lines, menacing the Teuton positions around Verdun, where the crown prince spent thousands of lives, and before Lens, the great mining city.

In Champagne and to the north of Arras the French have made particularly heavy gains. Every yard taken in the former district adds perils to the dangerous German salient before Verdun, while in the latter sector the allies have already attained greater results than they did in a month of fighting last May.

Bombard Entire Front.

The terrific drive was launched after an unprecedented bombardment of the entire front which lasted in some places for more than 70 hours. Co-operating with the land batteries in this tremendous shelling, British and French warships off the Belgian coast poured tons of lead and iron into the German defenses, especially around Zeebrugge, the naval and submarine base and at Nieuport.

The most important gains have been made by the French who, directing their chief attacks against the Germans in Champagne and north of Arras have swept forward for smashing gains which utterly disprove the theory that both sides were so "dug in" on the western front that open field operations were impossible.

French Drive Germans.

Between Auberve and Ville Sur Tourbe the entire adanced system of German entrenchments and redoubts were swept away, the French, according to the Paris account, driving the Teutons more than a mile to the rear where their second line is now being attacked.

The Germans, fighting desperately to regain the offensive, are launching violent counter attacks.

Teuton Losses Heavy.

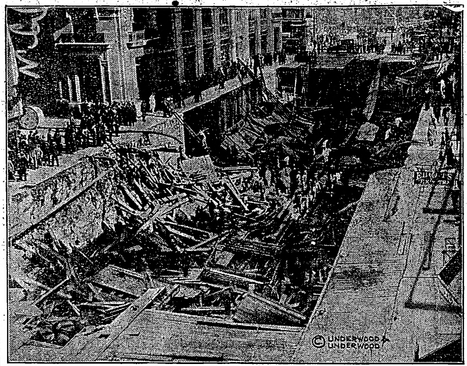
The British losses are reported by Berlin to have been particularly heavy in the fighting along La Bassee canal and in the region of Loos and Hulluch. The Germans admit, however, that their own losses were "necessarily large", and that a large quantity of material was lost when they were forced to evacuate their trenches.

Co-operating with their Allies, the Belgians during the day launched a heavy attack against the Germans on the right bank of the Yser, capturing an observation post, trench mortar and driving the Teutons out of 200 yards of trenches.

Farmer Killed in Collision.

St. Cloud, Minn., Sept. 27.—Stephen Zenner, a farmer near Luxemberg, seven miles west of here, was killed when the Great Northern flyer struck the auto in which he was riding at the Osseo crossing.

GREAT CAVE-IN OF THE NEW YORK SUBWAY



As a result of a blast of dynamite in the new subway under Seventh avenue in New York, an entire block of that thoroughfare, from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-fifth street, collapsed. A crowded street car dropped into the chasm. Seven persons were killed and nearly a hundred injured.

NEW YORK SUBWAY CAVES IN; 7 KILLED

SWALLOWS STREET AND CROWDED CAR, FOLLOWING BLAST—LABORERS CAUGHT.

78 ARE THROWN INTO CHASM

Passengers on Electric Car Fall 30 Feet—Pit Described as Veritable Inferno of Screaming Persons and Splintering Timbers.

New York, Sept. 23.—Swallowed up in a canyon which suddenly opened in Seventh avenue, at least seven persons were killed and upwards of 200 seriously or slightly injured here. The collapse of the street followed a dynamite blast touched off in the new subway under course of construction.

A streetcar dropped into the great hole. A brewery truck also plunged down in the tangle of timbers, steel and other debris.

A number of laborers at work in the excavation were buried under tons of debris.

Seventy-eight persons, a considerable portion of them being women and girls on their way to business, were on the surface car which dropped 30 feet into the excavation and was buried under concrete, rails, heavy timbers, dirt and rocks.

The street disappeared from sight for a distance of almost two blocks. The collapse extended from Twenty-third street almost to Twenty-fifth.

Street-car Telescoped.

The streetcar, most of whose passengers were women, was telescoped under the mass of heavy timbers and wreckage. Passengers were rescued through windows, many of them badly crushed.

Two minutes after the collapse the pit was a veritable inferno of screaming persons and splintering timbers.

Persons who were in a large office building close to where the car went down said there was a great roar as the pavement and portions of the sidewalks sank. This was followed a moment later by the cries of the partly entombed passengers and of pedestrians who were either thrown into the excavation or knocked down.

Men and women smashed the car windows with their bare hands in effort to escape, while pedestrians who had been thrown into the hole struggled to avoid the falling debris and regain the street level.

PALACE DAMAGED IN AIR RAID

Royal Residence at Stuttgart Struck by Bomb Dropped by Allied Aviators.

Geneva, via Paris, Sept. 25.—News has reached Romanshorn, Switzerland, that the right wing of the Royal Palace at Stuttgart was badly damaged in the air raid by allied aviators. The bomb exploded in the salon. It is known that several members of the royal family were in the residence.

Old Chicago Church Burns.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Grace Episcopal church, 1430 South Wabash avenue, a landmark erected in 1868 and one of the largest and best known churches in the Middle West, was destroyed by a fire which also razed a six story building occupied by the Western Furniture Exposition company, causing a property loss of more than $500,000. The blaze started in the furniture building shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning and was communicated to Grace church by falling walls.

SET CAR ON FIRE NEAR TORRES, SONORA.

Indian Deserters from Mexican Factional Army Derail Southern Pacific Train.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 28.—Eighty passengers of a Southern Pacific Mexican train were thrown into a car containing hay and the car set on fire by a band of Yaqui Indians near Torres, Sonora, according to radio advices received here from Hermosillo via Guyamas.

Only 20 passengers have been accounted for thus far, the others having been burned to death.

The Indians, according to the report, numbered about 60 and were deserters from one of the Mexican factional armies. They first derailed the train. Most of the passengers were women and children. No Americans were on the train.

U. S. Holds Up Ammunition.

Laredo, Texas, Sept. 27.—United States customs officials held up half a million rounds of cartridges and a large number of army rifles, destined for use by the Carranza forces, on orders said to have emanated from Washington. All shipments of ammunition will be so held pending further orders, it was said here.

Detained for Investigation.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Treasury department officials explained that the shipment of arms held up at Laredo had been detained merely for "investigation."

LOAN NOT OVER HALF BILLION

Credit for England and France Will Not Exceed Half of Sum Sought.

New York, Sept. 27.—The proposed credit loan to Great Britain and France will not exceed a half billion dollars—half of the original gigantic sum sought—American bankers and financiers plainly told the Anglo-French commission. In fact this amount is said to represent the hopes rather than the actual assurances of the commision and its American advisers at present.

Issuance of the proposed notes under par also indicates another victory for American capitalists. It was held that 5 per cent interest when buying at par would return too small a profit so it seems probable now that to insure the loan's popularity with investors the bonds will be issued on the new basis.

ITALY READY TO AID ALLIES

Will Send Wherever Necessary Contingent of Troops Sufficient to Influence Developments.

Rome, Sept. 27 (via Paris).—A meeting of the Italian cabinet ministers, which a prominent statesman said might be called a council of war, has just been held. Premier Salander presided. Italian military experts affirm that all preparations have been made to send wherever necessary a contingent of Italian troops sufficient to exercise considerable influence on developments.

HAITIENS ATTACK AMERICANS.

Forty Rebels Are Killed in Encounter With U. S. Troops—Refuse to Disarm.

Cape Haitien, Sept. 27.—In an attack by Haitien rebels on an American force, about two miles from Cape Haitien, 40 Haitiens were killed. Ten Americans were wounded.

The rebels have refused to disarm and the Americans are marching on Haut du Cap, in the Plain of the North

GERMANY YIELDS IN FRYE DISPUTE

LATEST NOTE DISCLOSES IMPORTANT VICTORY FOR THE UNITED STATES.

TO ARBITRATE INDEMNITY

Berlin Accepts Proposal to Fix Damages—Gives Assurances American Ships Carrying Conditional Contraband Will Not Be Molested.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Germany's latest note on the sinking of the American sailing ship William P. Frye, just published by the state department, discloses an important diplomatic victory for the United States.

Germany accepts the proposal to fix damages by commission and to let The Hague pass upon disputed treaty rights involved. She also gives assurances that no more American ships carrying conditional contraband will be destroyed under any circumstances.

American ships carrying contraband, however, still may be destroyed. What effect this can have in practical operation is problematical, because Germany and Great Britain in their retaliations have made absolute contraband, practically everything which was conditional under the Declaration of London.

To Visit Ships.

One thing seemed to officials certain—German naval commanders now are ordered to exercise the rights of visit and search with respect to all American ships to determine what cargo the vessels carry, thus making it practically sure that none will be attacked without warning or ample time for passengers and crew to be transferred irrespective of the cargo.

Considered with reference to the entire controversy between Germany and the United States, the Frye note is regarded as an indication that the Berlin foreign office is anxious to avert a break with the Washington government.

This increased the interest in Germany's attitude toward the negotiations over the Arabic.

German Note Friendly.

The German note is regarded by officials as evidencing a more friendly spirit on the part of the German foreign office. Following months of strained relations between the two countries, it was received as a very favorable development.

It practically insures American vessels against attack without warning, and even in the event that they are carrying absolute contraband, passengers and crew are bound, according to the declaration of London, to be removed before there is any destruction, which can occur only in the event of extreme necessity.

U. S. Soldiers Arrest Villa Leader.

San Antonio, Sept. 27. — General Raoul Madero of Villa's staff has been arrested by American soldiers near Marfa, Texas. Major General Frederick Funston received this report from Marfa.

German Socialists Demand Peace.

London, Sept. 27.—According to a Standard dispatch from Copenhagen it is reported from Berlin that the police have seized a large number of pamphlets edited by Dr. Liebknecht and other Socialists, entitled "War and the Proletariat," in which the demand is made that the war should end, on the ground that it is ruining the German working classes, industry and commerce. It declares also that Belgium must not be annexed. Two Socialist journalists, adds the dispatch, have been arrested.

G. A. R. GATHERS AT ENCAMPMENT

FORTY THOUSAND UNION VETERANS, GARBED IN FADED BLUE SUITS, IN WASHINGTON.

WILL REPEAT GRAND REVIEW

First Day Given Up to Careful Registration and the Finding of Old Comrades—Many Former Confederates Present.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The national capital today is the maneuvering ground of the men who half a century ago fought the battles that resulted in the preservation of the Union.

All day yesterday, last night and today the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic have been arriving at Washington to attend what may be their last reunion, and today there are at least forty thousand of them in the capital, garbed in faded blue suits, with bravely shining brass buttons.

Fifty years ago these same veterans marched down Pennsylvania avenue in the grand review that celebrated the fall of Richmond and the end of the Civil war. Next Wednesday they are to re-enact that scene and, with Col. David J. Palmer of Des Moines, Ia., at their head, will march again from the capitol to the White House, where President Wilson will review them. Colonel Palmer led the grand review at the close of the war.

All Carefully Registered.

There was no set program to be followed today. Time was allowed to permit the veterans to become settled in their lodgings and for registration. Registration has been made an important part of the reunion. Owing to the fact that at the Gettysburg reunion in the summer of 1913 great disappointment was felt by many of the veterans at being unable to find old comrades in arms, especial care has been taken to overcome any such difficulty at Washington. The registration devised is elaborate and will enable a veteran to get in touch on short notice with anyone present from his old corps, regiment, or even company.

The large brick building recently vacated by the bureau of the census has been turned over to the G. A. R. for use as a registration office and general headquarters for the veterans—a sort of clearing house for old soldiers.

Special committees have made arrangements for housing the veterans and comfortable lodgings have been provided for all of them. The old soldiers all pay their own expenses in attending the reunion, although citizens of Washington have raised a fund to be used in entertainment.

Old Wounds Are Healed.

Further evidence was given today that the wounds of '61 have healed. When the encampment was opened there were present among the "boys in blue" many Confederate veterans who fought against the North in that memorable struggle. In addition, Col. John McElroy, head of the committee on arrangements, had letters from many other southern survivors expressing their regrets that they were unable to come to Washington.

The following extract from a letter written by "one of Pickett's division of Virginia," is characteristic of the sentiment now prevailing between the Blue and the Gray:

"I love the life of a soldier and all things connected with it, and while the boys in blue and gray differed materially as to why they were soldiers, let it be said they were soldiers and true American soldiers. And irrespective of the cause espoused by either the blue or the gray, their hearts were in the right place and a helping hand was always extended to the vanquished with that nobility of soul that characterized the true, brave soldier of both armies. Now that our differences have been healed, let us leave to our children a heritage of the consolation of knowing their fathers fought for a cause near and dear to them as they saw it."

BRITISH OVERSIGHT OF WAR

Special Committee Appointed by Asquith to Assume Functions of Dardanelles Body.

London, Sept. 27.—Premier Asquith, it is announced, has appointed a special committee of the cabinet to be charged with general oversight of the war.

The committee, which is composed of the premier, Lord Kitchener, David Lloyd-George, Arthur J. Balfour, Sir Edward Grey, Lord Lansdowne, Andrew Bonar Law and Winston Spencer Churchill, will act as a sort of executive committee, absorbing the functions of the cabinet's Dardanelles committee.

Train Hits Auto; 3 Killed.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 27.—Three young men were killed when the automobile which they had taken without the consent of the owner, was struck by a limited train on the Chicago & Milwaukee electric railroad at a crossing a mile and a half north of here. The young men were Anthony Czarowski, 23; Fred G. Prott, 22, and Frederick Metten, 23. Czarowski was employed by a brewing company. He was speeding over a smooth road and the train was making 50 miles an hour when the crash took place.

WAS MISERABLE COULDN'T STAND

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lackawanna, N. Y.—"After my first child was born I felt very miserable and could not stand on my feet. My sister-in-law wished me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my nerves became firm, appetite good, step elastic, and I lost that weak, tired feeling. That was six years ago and I have had three fine healthy children since. For female troubles I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it works like a charm. I do all my own work."—Mrs. A. F. KREAMER, 1574 Electric Avenue, Lackawanna, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Feel All Used Up?

Does your back ache constantly? Do you have sharp twinges when stooping or lifting? Do you feel all used up—as if you could just go no further? Kidney weakness brings great discomfort. What with backache, headache, dizziness and urinary disturbances it is no wonder one feels all used up. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands of just such cases. It's the best recommended special kidney remedy.

A Minnesota Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

Mrs. E. Kroemer, 320 Rice St., St. Paul, says: "My back was so lame and painful that I could hardly bear to be on my feet. At night it ached worse and often I couldn't sleep. My kidneys were very irregular in action and I frequently suffered from intense headaches. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills gave such great relief that I got another. I took three boxes in all and today I am well."

The Point of View

By

FRANK FILSON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

That devil of a German aviator—how I admired him! The little wretch! I could not have found it in my heart to kill him, even if I had been able to do so. Once, indeed, when his Taube lost its balance in the vortex caused by a bursting shrapnel, I could have winged him. But before I had my automatic to my eye he had executed the most graceful maneuver imaginable, dipping sheer for five hundred yards, so that I could not believe but that he had sustained a mortal wound, and then soaring in spirals back to the hostile lines.

We had exchanged salutations, dipping the little French and German flags at our bows. We knew each other intimately—in the air. I had long since resolved to take him prisoner if it were possible not to slay him.

But this girl, this Belgian girl who stood before me—what was I to do? The little devil of a Boches had been making love to her! His exploits terrified her! She wanted him safe, a prisoner in the French camp, if necessary, but where he could return to her after the war.

At first I smiled at her with pity. "Mademoiselle," I said, "do you not know that they are all philanderers, those Germans? Undoubtedly the little lieutenant has a wife awaiting him at home, perhaps a child—two children—"

I was continuing in that strain when she flew out at me like a wildcat. "It is not so, and I can prove it!" she stormed.

"How, then, can you prove it, mademoiselle?" I demanded.

"I know that he is a single man, because he told me so himself," she answered.

I shrugged my shoulders. What was I to do? Here was this girl, who loved him, and she was pleading at my feet now.

He Had Opened on Me With a Quick-Firer.

"Ah, monsieur le lieutenant, you must save him," she begged, weeping. "Consider how perilous is the live of an aviator, monsieur. Some day he will fall and be killed. And everybody says that it is you whom he singles out to do battle in the clouds. Help me, monsieur. Make him a prisoner."

She extracted some sort of a promise from me. But it was more easily said than done.

Three days passed before I saw him again. Then one fine morning I perceived him, when I was aloft. He was coming straight as an arrow toward me, and there was no mistaking that unswerving flight. I dashed toward him.

During our months of enmity we had established a sort of code. Thus, when he sighted me, the German would rise vertically, dip, and rise again. For my part, I would describe the arc of a circle. It was much the flourish that duelists make before they thrust. So, seeing the signal, I turned and began to make my swift glide from south through west to north, calculating that this would bring me face to face with him.

How quickly I was undeceived. The German had risen above me, and, from that height, let fall a bomb. I heard it hissing past my wings, and saw the little cloud of white smoke rise underneath where it struck. Enraged by this breach of convention, I covered him with my automatic, and fired.

Naturally, I did not hit him. That one hardly expects to do. However, it struck me as strange, even then, that he did not make his customary reply. What seemed more singular was that the German, instead of endeavoring to rise above me, wheeled as if to retreat, then, returning, came at me as if he meant to collide with me.

An instant later—bang, bang, bang, bang! He had opened on me with a quick-firer. It was, in fact, a Maxim, which he had mounted on his machine.

My blood boiled at this unfair, diabolical contrivance. He had given me no warning. Glancing down, I saw a drop of blood splash from my sleeve. The arm of the coat was rent. The wings of my monoplane were riddled with bullets. My escape had been a miraculous one.

The impetus of his attack had carried him past me. I mounted at once. He mounted also. I had slightly the advantage of speed. I flew immediately above him and dropped a bomb. He eluded it almost by a miracle. An instant later we were flying side by side, I firing my automatic, and he endeavoring to escape me.

It was his purpose to pour another broadside from the Maxim, mounted to point forward on the chassis. I saw that, and I realized that his greater speed would enable him to have me at a disadvantage. I rose. We both rose, and now it was clear that my only chance of overcoming him was to get above him. The monoplane would climb faster. Would it climb higher? That had never been tested.

I rose until the earth curved underneath like the round of a ball. As I ascended the Taube seemed to drop away from me. Soon it was like a little speck far below. I began to circle, waiting the chance to drop a bomb. I meant to make sure of my aim this time. My purpose was forgotten. My antagonist had ceased to have personality for me; he was simply an enemy aviator whom it was my duty to kill. I watched him through my binoculars as he grew larger. He was almost immediately beneath me. I would let the bomb fall when there was no longer danger of missing him.

Suddenly, to my dismay, the deadly rattle of the machine gun began again. I had not suspected that it was capable of being fired vertically upward. The bullets hissed around me like angry bees. One lashed my face. One tore my tunic. A moment, and I was swooping downward. I had him at the disadvantage, but not on the direct line the bomb must traverse. I dived like a hawk. I shot past him with terrific velocity, and at the same time opened fire with my automatic again. I swooped back on my ellipse, loading as I flew. But a spurt of fire from the Taube showed me that I had pierced his tank.

The fire leaped upward in a dozen tongues. In a moment the biplane was fiercely burning. Against the glare of the flames the head and crouching body of the German were silhouetted like a fiend's. I saw him touch his rudder, and the biplane swooped toward earth. As it fell it blazed up more fiercely. The entire hinder part was now a glowing cinder. Each moment I expected to see the Taube buckle and go swooping earthward, to fall, an incinerated mass, beneath.

He had a wonderful head, that German. In spite of the hell of flames that surrounded him and raged above him, he dived like a bird, alighting with only the forepart of the machine, as gently as a bird alights, and sprang gracefully to the ground. There he awaited me with his fists clenched.

You see, he was armed only with a Maxim, for he had never anticipated this calamity, and he could not remove his gun from the burning wreckage at his side.

But he held up his hands reluctantly when I covered him with my pistol.

"Monsieur, there is no man in any army to whom I would sooner surrender than you," he said.

I marched him toward our distant trenches. We had alighted in a barren region between the lines, but nearer our own forces.

"Courage, comrade," I said to him. "I have sought to make you a prisoner for the sake of one who awaits you."

"Eh?" he inquired, looking at me with sharp scrutiny.

"For the sake of your love, monsieur," I said.

Would you believe it? The girl had watched the entire combat from the half-ruined farmhouse in which she lived. And at this precise moment I saw her coming toward us across the flats. It was impossible to mistake the gait of youth, the lightness and joy that seemed to animate her.

She saw us and broke into a run. In a few moments she was at our side.

"Embrace each other, then, my children," I said softly. "Monsieur le lieutenant, I trust you implicitly. I am well aware that you will not abuse my confidence."

The girl clung to him, but to my dismay there was no love on her face—only fury.

"Now will you pay me for that pair of chickens you stole!" she screamed at him, shaking him.

"But what does this mean?" I demanded angrily.

"He took two chickens from my yard three weeks ago and promised to come back and pay for them!" cried the girl, a veritable virago.

I flung her a piece of silver. "There take that!" I said disgustedly.

"How the deuce could I come back when the Frenchmen were in possession?" grumbled the lieutenant, looking at the girl, nevertheless with something of admiration.

"It's all one to me," she answered. "What I have, I pay for. What anyone has from me, he pays for, too."

The prisoner and I went on in silence. Presently he turned to me with a smile.

"What a wife she would make!" he murmured. "I shall certainly remember this place after the war. One does not often find a hausfrau of such economical virtues."

STATE BREVITIES

Luverne.—A new selling record for Rock county farm lands was established this week, when Jasper Christianson paid $44,400 for Lena Gertz farm of 240 acres in Kanaranzi township.

Duluth.—The heavy demand for boats to carry ore is rapidly being augmented by a demand for boats to carry coal. The supply of tonnage is fast being reduced by grain. Brokers sought boats to work on 3¼ cents for the last 10 days of this month and 3⅜ cents for the last half of October, grain cargoes.

Windom.—Samuel H. Kirkbride of Chicago, representing the American Bible society, appealed to the members of the Minnesota Methodist Episcopal conference for help in raising 1,000,000 nickels by Sunday school children in the United States to send 1,000,000 Bibles to soldiers on European battlefields.

Walker.—Walker was in darkness last week, while repairs were being made at the power plant. The city was without light for about ten days. The moving picture theater, barber shops and other places of business were forced to close at nightfall, and merchants enjoyed a rushing business in kerosene and candles.

Moorhead.—Ole Norby, Clay county, Minnesota, the farmer who was shot by William Brendemuhl, his brother-in-law and one of Clay county's wealthiest farmers, died at a Fargo hospital Brendemuhl surrendered to the sheriff. He says he acted in self-defense. A charge of assault in the first degree filed against Brendemuhl will likely be changed to murder.

Brainerd.—A new mine has been started four miles east of Brainerd and near Woodrow by the Abdar Development company, which will sink a lath shaft 100 feet deep. The mine will be under the supervision of Captain William J. Treloar, who will also have supervision of the Adams mine at Oreland. Directly in charge of the Abdar mine will be W. J. Nichols of Brainerd.

Duluth.—For five minutes every wheel on the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway system stopped turning and every office and shop activity ceased while funeral services took place at Marquette, Mich., for Colonel William Foresman Fitch. The general suspension was a tribute from the road's officials and employes to the line's former president and general manager.

New Ulm.—Speaking upon the topic, "Hints on Infantry Training," Major Arthur Johnson, federal inspector and instructor in the regular army, stated at the meeting here of the Minnesota National Guard association that Minnesota had a higher efficiency and better equipment than the Ohio National guard. Recruits for the guard were more easily obtained in this state, he said, because of a more kindly feeling toward the militia.

St. Cloud.—June has always been considered the month of marriages, but in Stearns county September will lead by 50 per cent, according to the estimate of the county clerk, who attributes the demand for marriage licenses to good crops. In the last 12 hours, 12 licenses were issued, a record breaking day for the local office. All but two of the couples were from the country and upon that fact the clerk bases his positive statement that good crops are an aid to Cupid.

Albert Lea.—As one result of the settlement by the courts last fall in the factional fight of the five Freeborn county Lutheran synod churches, two edifices, which will cost more than $15,000, are in course of construction. In the final settlement, the Hartland church was deeded to the Rev. Thor Strand forces while the parsonage went to the anti-Strand congregation. The anti-Strands will complete a new church this month and Rev. Mr. Lunde will have charge. Rev. Thor Strand is preaching in the old church.

Fergus Falls.—Judge Parsons handed down a decision in the district court here, vesting the sole management and control of the city water and light plants in the water and light commission. The charter says that the commission shall manage the plants and fix the rates, but that it shall make requisition to the council for all supplies and the council shall allow all bills. The commission wished to install water meters, and the council refused to approve the requisition on the ground that the people were opposed.

Fort Snelling.—A stone slab weighing about 250 pounds, upon the face of which is handsomely carved what appears to be the coat of arms or royal emblem of some reigning European house of the 16th century or earlier, was unearthed by Frank and Luther Gates while they were digging a well on their lot at 5345 Forty-eighth avenue So. near Minnehaha falls. The tablet is about 5 feet long, 2½ feet wide and 4 inches thick, and the carving reveals workmanship of a high type, being characteristic of many historical relics of the early centuries.

Winona.—The grand jury has returned an indictment against Rev. Father L. M. Lesches for assault in the first degree, charging that August 27 he assaulted Bishop P. R. Heffron with intent to kill. Father Lesches was not in court when indictment was returned. Bishop Heffron continues to improve from the wounds suffered when Father Lesches shot him.

Bemidji.—Francis, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Werth of this city, was severely scalded by falling backward into a tub of hot water. He probably will recover, physicians say.

SAYS STATE MUST ASSIST SETTLERS

STATE AUDITOR ADVOCATES LEGISLATION FAVORING DEVELOPMENT OF MINNESOTA.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.—Speaking to a large crowd at the annual Hubbard county fair, J. A. O. Preus, state auditor, advocated legislation favoring the development of northern Minnesota.

"Minnesota has more than 51,000,000 acres," he said; "44,000,000 are on the tax rolls and 27,000,000 are under cultivation. Nearly half of the state's lands are awaiting the plow. The greater portion of your county is still untilled."

Touching upon the great tide of immigration that has been turned toward Canada in recent years, Mr. Preus said:

"You need more people, more actual settlers—farmers—in your community, county and section of the state. And in this the state should assist you. Many people from the states east and south of Minnesota are being made familiar with the agricultural value of northern Minnesota lands. They must be made to stop here and not permitted to go on to Canada. You should vote for constitutional amendment No. 1. It provides that $250,000 may be set aside out of the state school fund to improve state lands.

"The state still has 2,000,000 acres for sale—considerable of it is in your county. In the cutover region it costs from $10 to $50 an acre to crop the land, and many a bona fide settler has come to this section of Minnesota with a family and too little money to 'stick it out' because this was so. It cost him too much to clear his first three or four acres and there was too much time taken before he could realize on his labors. Amendment No. 1 is intended to remedy this. It will make it possible for the state to clear three or four acres of each 80 acres sold. This, together with the easy terms of sale of state land should bring a tide of immigration to northern Minnesota that has been before unequaled."

Tax Levy Reduced.

The rate of taxation for state purposes as made public by State Auditor Preus will be 4.15 mills for that portion of the state outside of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth, and 4.1 for the three cities named.

The division of the rate is made necessary by the 1-20 mill tax ordered by the last legislature for the teacher's retirement and pension fund. This tax is collectable only in that portion of the state outside of cities of the first class.

The levy as fixed for 1916 by Mr. Preus is 63-100 of a mill less than last year's levy. The levy for 1914 was 3.52 mills. This reduction is made possible by the elimination of the levy for the Historical society building and also the levy for Itaska State park. Of the levies remaining, that for the armories is reduced .02 of a mill. The levy in detail, in terms of mills, is as follows:

State revenue fund	1.4
Soldiers' relief fund .0001	.1
State road and bridge .001	1.0
Prison building fund .0002	.2
National Guard armories, .00003	.03
Educational building fund, .000014	.14
	2.87

In addition to the levies named, there is one for state schools amounting to 1.23 mills. The state revenue tax is reduced two-tenths of a mill. The total for the various state expenses is 2.87 mills, which is a considerable reduction from last year.

The levy as ordered by Mr. Preus is based on this year's assessment and is collectable in 1915. It is the smallest levy for state purposes in some years.

* * *

Increases Capital Stock.

The Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis increased its capital stock by $3,000,000 with the filing of amended articles of incorporation with Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state. The flour milling corporation now is capitalized at $9,000,000.

* * *

Urges Neutrality.

Governor W. S. Hammond, who spoke at the Traverse county fair here, made a strong plea for neutrality in deeds if not in thoughts on the part of all citizens. He urged everyone to support President Wilson in his policies and said there would be no war while Wilson is president.

* * *

Reports Labor Disbursements.

State department of labor disbursements for the fiscal year of 1915 ending July 31 were $58,928.01, of which $43,680 was spent for salaries from the general fund and $5,627 for salaries from the contingent fund, according to the report of the state public examiner. Expenses for traveling were $5,709.33 and miscellaneous expenses were $9,911.68. The department's appropriations amounted to $64,680. The examiner's report comments on the fact that there were no unnecessary expenses.

COULD RECOGNIZE NUISANCE

Judge's Retort Set Courtroom Laughing and Gave Lawyer Something to Think About.

City Magistrate Krotel, who is noted for a characteristic brand of dry humor, occasionally manifested in utterances from the bench, turned a cruel shaft loose upon a pestiferous young attorney this week, to the supreme enjoyment of a crowded courtroom, says the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. The young attorney was prosecuting in a case where the maintaining of a nuisance was alleged. The rulings of Magistrate Krotel did not please him. His numerous objections became persistently controversial. "If your honor pleases," he said, "I would not presume to instruct the honorable court in a question of law, but I am impelled to observe that I doubt—in the present case only, of course—if the court properly conceives of what constitutes a nuisance."

"You are mistaken, sir," was the response from the bench. "This court has never had a more clear or exemplary idea of what constitutes a nuisance than in the present case at the present time. And for that, in a measurable way, the court thanks you, sir."

CURED OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Mrs. A. L. Crawford, Medfield, Mass., writes: "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Bright's Disease, and I am healthy and strong to-day and have been blessed with good health ever since my cure. When the doctors pronounced my case Bright's Disease I was in such a serious condition that they could not do anything for me. I kept getting worse. My limbs from my ankles to my knees swelled and my eyes were so swollen that I couldn't see. As a last hope I thought I would give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. I gradually improved and kept on taking them and they cured me thoroughly."

DIDN'T "RAISE" THE CHICKENS

But Evidently Dealer Hadn't Quite Comprehended Question Asked by His Customer.

Here is a little story that was told by Congressman William C. Adamson of Georgia when the conversation turned to natural misunderstanding:

A young housewife who lives in a suburban town went to the village store to make some purchases.

"These chickens look very nice," remarked the customer, pausing before the poultry counter. "How much are they?"

"One dollar apiece, madam," was the prompt response of the obliging proprietor. "You can't find better poultry for the money in the whole country."

"One dollar," thoughtfully mused the customer, and then added: "Did you raise them?"

"Oh, no, madam!" was the hasty assurance of the misunderstanding storekeeper. "That is the same price I offered to sell them for yesterday."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3,1879

The next thing to capital is credit to develop a farm, but the farmer who depends on the farm to furnish him credit to live on, is likely to reach the limit some fine day.

Moses E. Clapp declined to state on his recent visit to northern Minnesota, whether he would be a candidate for re-election or not. But Moses will not be hidden in the bulrushes when it gets time to show himself.

The cities must be overcrowded with Cheap John Fakes, that are trying to make a living by farming the farmers. Beware of circulars sent you that offer to give something for nothing, for you can be sure that there is "a wood chuck in the wood pile."

A southern Minnesota farmer wrote his name on a slip of paper so a stranger that he had hired to work for him could remember it. The next morning the stranger had disappeared, and there was forged checks loomed up for forty-four dollars with an exact copy of the farmer's signature, as he had written it on the slip handed to the stranger.

Should Hennepin County go dry, at the county option election on October 4th, there will certainly be some noted changes in the temperance laws at the next session of the legislature. It is admitted that Ramsey County will remain in the "wet" column, if all of the rest of the state goes "dry." There is now being claims made by the license forces in Minneapolis that if that city goes into the "dry" column, that St. Paul will rapidly forge ahead of them for population, which will certainly make the Hennepin delegation sit up and take notice that it is time to make a move to even up the cities when the next legislature meets.

INSANE REFORM.

Reform is not always desirable. Change may or may not better conditions. Reform more than any other movement must have common sense and logical thought back of it. The reformer has been described variously, one of the most popular descriptions being that he is a politician out of a job. Such a reformer--the reformer for revenue--is one of the most dangerous of men who seek political positions. Other reformers are dangerous often because they are ignorant. Mississippi steps into the limelight with one of this kind. He was a candidate for supervisor of Tate county. He opposed progress and was "agin" everything. Some of the planks in his platform were as follows: He would abolish the office of county farm demonstrator. county canning agent, county prosecuting attorney. He would reduce the salary of the county superintendent of education from $125 a month to $50 a month. He would require all county officers to buy coal for their offices, stamps and stationary, pay office rent, and remove all telephones and electric lights from the offices of the courthouse. He proposed to tear down the newly erected county agricultural high school and sell the bricks for fifty cents a thousand; abolish the contract system of working the roads and make it a felony, punishable with the death penalty, to drive an automobile over the public roads of the county or within sight or hearing of the county line. Fortunately this candidate was elected to stay at home.—Ex.

It appears that President Wilson and Bryan are fixing up their differences to get ready for the next campaign, but the president should take a little time to look over some of the doings of other members of his cabinet, who are tearing down fences more rapidly than he can build them.

What men prize most is a privilege, even if it be that of chief mourner at a funeral.—Lowell.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1913, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1914, and the further sum of Fifteen Dollars which became due August 1st 1915. and each of which said sums are now past due and payable upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charley Clark and Rosella Clark, his wife, Mortgagors to Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, bearing date the 1st day of August, 1912, and with a Power of Sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 7th day of September, 1912, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., in Book 1 of Mortgages, on page 163.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, Mortgagee, to John Higbothom, by written assignment, dated the 3rd day of August, 1915, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for said County, on the 5th day of August, 1915, at 8:00 o'clock A. M., in Book 8 of Mortgages, on page 605. And,

Whereas said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of Seven Hundred and Fifty ($750.00) Dollars upon the same land, or any installment of interest due thereon, that the Mortgagee in this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same, and have a lien therefor under this mortgage, and default having been made in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1913, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1914, and in the payment of Forty-Five Dollars, interest due August 1st 1915, upon said prior mortgage, the same was paid by said Mortgagee and by the undersigned Assignee of Mortgagee, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, upon this mortgage herein foreclosed, the sum of Seventy-Five ($75.00) Dollars, with interest upon said amount at the rate of Ten Per Cent per annum from the 1st day of August 1913, and the further sum of One Hundred and Thirty-Five ($135.00) Dollars, the interest paid upon the prior mortgage, and interest upon each of the three items making up the same from the above mentioned dates when the same became due, amounting in all to the sum of Two Hundred and Thirty-Three and 60—100 ($233.60) Dollars, due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, said mortgage containing a provision that the non-payment, when due, of any installments upon the note which this mortgage was given to secure, causes the note to become due at once, and the assignee of the mortgagee having elected to declare the whole sum due, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by either of the mortgages in this notice referred to or any part thereof.

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the Statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, to wit: The West half (W½) of the North East quarter (NE¼) of Section Number Thirty-one (31), in Township Number One Hundred and Fifty-three (153), North of Range Number Forty [40], West of the Fifth Principal Meridian and situated in Pennington County, State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Pennington County, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 9th day of October, 1915, at 11 o'clock A. M., of that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of Two Hundred and Thirty-three and 60—100 [$233.60] Dollars, and interest, and taxes, if any, on the said premises, and Twenty-five [$25.00] Dollars Attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated, August 20th 1915.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

F. A. Vanderlip

On The Business of Banking

The farmers of this nation to come into their own must study business. We must, as a class, understand the fundamental principles that underlie every industry, its functions to society and its relation to agriculture, for there can be no intelligent co-operation without understanding. Mr. F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, when asked "What is a Bank?" said in part:

"The first and most familiar function of a bank is that of gathering up the idle money of a community, small sums and large, and thus forming a pool or reservoir upon which responsible persons may draw as they have temporary use for money. It is evident that this makes large sums in the aggregate available for the employment of labor and the development of the community. But much more is accomplished than the use of the money actually deposited in the banks, for by the use of drafts, checks and bank notes the efficiency of money is multiplied several times over. A very large business, for example one of the great beef packers, may use very little actual money; on one side of its bank account will be entered the checks and drafts it is daily receiving from everywhere in payment for meats, while on the other side will be entered the checks it draws in payment for cattle, etc., its only use of money being for small payments, to labor and otherwise.

"If there were but one bank in a community and everybody paid all bills by drawing checks on that bank, and everyone receiving a check immediately deposited it in the bank, the amount of money in the bank evidently would not change at all and the entire business of the community would be settled on the books of the bank. And the situation is but slightly changed when there are several banks, for they daily exchange among themselves all the checks they receive on each other, which practically offset themselves, although the small balances are paid in cash. This is called 'clearing,' and in every large city there is a 'Clearing House' where representatives of the banks meet daily to settle their accounts with each other.

"A bank is constantly receiving from its customers, particularly those that are shipping products to other localities, drafts and checks drawn on banks in other cities, which it usually sends for deposit to a few correspondent banks in the central cities with which it maintains permanent accounts. In this way these scattered credits are consolidated and the bank draws upon these accounts in supplying customers with the means of making payments away from home. As each local community sells and buys about the same amount abroad in the course of a year, these payments largely offset each other. It is evident that the banks are very intimately related to the trade and industry of a country. The banker is a dealer in credit much more than a dealer in money, and of course his own credit must be above question. He exchanges his credit for the credits acquired by his costumers, and lends credit for their accommodation, but he must conduct the business with such judgment that he can always meet his own obligations with cash on demand. This is the essential thing about bank credit, that it shall always be the same as cash."

RHEUMATISM AND ALLIED PAINS—THEY MUST GO!

The congestion of the blood in its flow causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. The "man or woman who has rheumatism, neuralgia or other pain and fails to keep Sloan's Liniment in their home is like a drowning man refusing a rope." Why suffer. GET RID OF THOSE POISONS IN YOUR SYSTEM!

You will find Dr. King's New Life Pills a most satisfactory laxative in releasing the poisons from your system. Accumulated waste and poisons cause manifold ailments unless released. Dizziness, spots before the eyes, blackness and a miserable feeling generally are indications that you need Dr. King's New Life Pills. Take a dose to night and you will experience grateful relief by morning. 25c.—adv.

COUGHS THAT ARE STOPPED!

Careful people see that they are stopped. Dr. King's New Discovery is a remedy of tried merit. It has held its own on the market for 46 years. THE LOCAL NEWS

Charlie Sall of Garnes township is thrashing in the Malone neighborhood this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hammarsten were transacting business at Goodridge last Saturday afternoon.

We managed to jump our horses on and off the Highlanding ferry last Saturday to make a business trip to Goodridge.

Jesse LaBree of Thief River Falls, and P. P. Korstad of Highlanding, have our thanks for the payment of two years subscription each this week.

Houston & Bourdon,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Parties who have complaints to make about their mail delivery in mail boxes, should make them to this office who receive their mail from this office, and those who receive their mail from Rhoda post office should notify that office.

We always place the names of parties having final proof notices published, on our subscription list, and those receiving the paper who are having their final proof notices published, are not charged anything for subscription for one year.

There will be some farmers from the Clearwater river country attend the drainage convention at Thief River Falls next Tuesday, and they will be able to tell stories of being drowned out by floods, that will make the Red Lake River fellows think that they never had a flood.

If this river was not under government control, the supervisors of the town of Highlanding would grade up the approaches to the ferry, and make a good crossing at Highlanding, but as it is now they do not consider that they have a right to interfere with the river in any way.

A big lot of land in northwestern Beltrami county is going to be reclaimed by drainage. There is already a rush of homesteaders to that territory, but the man who goes there without means, depending on farming musskeg land for his living is likely to see some pretty hard times.

If Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls and the city of Crookston will make concentrative efforts, they had ought to be able to get the Red Lake River declared a navigable stream from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks. If they do that, Congressman Steenerson had ought to be able to get the river improved so they can run boats on it as far up as Thief River Falls. This end up here want to get it declared non-navigable, so we can get bridges across it.

There is a rumor out that the boss of mail routes Stephen Singer, of Kratka has been contemplating some extensive branches in star routes. One to start at Thief River Falls and go north six miles then east until on a direct line to Kratka, so as to gather up cancellation for that office. Another one to leave Rhoda and go west nearly to Hazel, then south nearly to Plummer; then return to Rhoda, and have the mail service on the Soo from Thief River Falls to Plummer discontinued, and the postoffice at Hazel discontinued. This would be about the same kind of a stunt that he has been pulling off in this end of the county for the past two years.

Read the advertisement for bids for supplying wood for schools published in another column.

Potatoes are rather a light crop in this locality this year, owing to the wet weather we had in June.

Red Lake Falls is to be the headquarters for the Crookston Brewery in the future, as they are not allowed to sell the products of their brewery in Polk county, owing to the county optioning it out.

All articles from the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General's office are signed acting assistant. We guess the assistant is on a vacation, and has Stephen Singer to run the mail routes for him up in this territory.

John T. Lattimore filed a contest on one of the finest claims up on Rapid river that there is in Beltrami county, which he is quite sure to win, and will try the ins and outs of homesteading. We have found it mostly outs in the eleven townships, but if John gets up a newspaper up there "[illegible] the land," he will undoubtedly prosper in his new location, as it is at present about all homestead land.

Hennepin County was carried by the wets by a majority of over 9000 votes. This means that Hennepin county and the city of Minneapolis will have the licensed saloon for the next three years. There was the usual howl of fraud by both sides; but the voters have spoken and the above is what they said. There was 66,000 votes cast. This will place the Hennepin members of the next legislature in the opposition to State Prohibition.

Singer's Mail Routes.

The act of the Post Office Department in establishing a Star route between Mavie and Goodridge is an uncalled for injustice to our village, with three trains daily over our Electric line and their willingness to carry the mail daily at regular rates, we fail to see that the expense will be less by establishing a star route besides it will not give us the service to which we are justly entitled. —Eleven Towns.

The act was undoubtedly created by the advice of Stephen Singer, the director of mail routes for this territory. It is not Stephen's intentions to allow decent mail service for any other post offices except Rhoda, Erie and Kratka, which are presided over by the trio of Singers and the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General's office seems to be under his complete control, and the people are beginning to realize the fact, to such an extent that they will vote pretty near solid to clean up that Fourth Assistant Postmaster General's office, at the first opportunity. Stephen has got star routes running parallel to railroads and driving their routes wrong end to, and in fact any other kind of a way that will deliver cancellation to Rhoda, Erie and Kratka post offices. He has got a man employed by the government to go around the country and gather up mail for the Erie post office, and has the driver on the Highlanding route drive around by Brunkeburg to gather up mail for Kratka, and the driver on the Sunbeam route drive around through the town of Mayfield to gather up the cancellation for his dad at Rhoda, and compel all of those people to allow their mail to lie over at Sunbeam for two days; all of which facts are plain and apparent to all of the people, and we have just got nerve enough to publish the facts as they exist.

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, it's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset, safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

Economizing Labor.

Two laborers were engaged to deepen a well which had become dry. One of them sent his mate down into the well while he sat at the top and directed the work. He first ordered the other man to "dig a bit on this side," then "dig a little more on that side," until the latter, tired of both the work and the orders, exclaimed, "You sit up there and use your tongue, while I have to do all the work!" "One man here giving directions," said the man at the top, "can do as much as ten men down there." Thereupon his mate threw down his pick and climbed up beside the other man. "What are you doing here?" inquired the latter. "Two men up here," answered his mate, "can do as much as twenty men down there."—London Strand.

ANOTHER NOTE ON ARABIC FAILS TO SATSFIES AMERICA

COMMUNICATION FROM BERLIN IS UNDERSTOOD TO AFFORD A NEGOTIABLE BASIS FOR SETTLEMENT OF QUESTION.

SECRETARY RECEIVES MEXICAN DELEGATES

Takes First Step In Policy That U. S. Government Is to Pursue In Deciding What Faction Is Deserving of Recognition—Case of Von Papen Is Disposed of.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Germany has failed to satisfy the request of the United States that the sinking of the Arabic with a loss of American lives be disavowed and liability for the act assumed by the imperial government. This became known after a conference between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing at which the latter submitted a note given him in New York by Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador.

New York, Oct. 4.—Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, has delivered to Secretary Lansing a note from the German government concerning the Arabic case, which it is understood, affords a negotiable basis for the settlement of the question.

The ambassador was closeted with Secretary Lansing for only a few minutes, leaving with him a note, the contents of which was not disclosed. Both the secretary and the ambassador decided that nothing concerning it would be announced. It is understood that the secretary will take the note with him to Washington and after discussing it with President Wilson will indicate whether or not it is satisfactory.

Basis for Negotiations.

It was learned reliably that the note furnishes a basis for further negotiations and from this it was inferred that, while admitting the principle that merchantment would not be torpedoed without warning, Germany was anxious to submit to arbitration the question of fact as to whether or not the Arabic was engaged in a hostile act at the time she was torpedoed and how much indemnity must be paid as a consequence if the verdict is against the German commander.

It was the first conference between the representatives of the two governments for two weeks, during which time the German ambassador has been given an opportunity to communicate to his foreign office the evidence gathered by the United States tending to prove conclusively that the Arabic was torpedoed without warning and was not engaged in a hostile act, as Germany claims.

Von Papen Case Ended.

The case of Captain von Papen, military attache of the German embassy, was disposed of.

Secretary Lansing took the first step in the policy that the United States government is to pursue within the next week in deciding what faction in Mexico is deserving of recognition. He received Luis Cabrera, minister of finance for the Carranza government, and Roberto Pesqueira, another prominent adviser of General Carranza.

Next week Mr. Lansing will receive delegates from the Villa cause and other independent groups.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR DEFENSE

Prominent Men Meet in Washington in National Conference on Preparedness for War.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Prominent men from all parts of the country interested in the present movement for more adequate preparation for war, gathered here today in the first national defense conference ever held.

The conference is under the direction of the National Defense league, and among the organizations officially participating are the Navy league, United Spanish War veterans, Army and Navy union and National Rifle Association of America. The conference is presided over by Representative Kahn of California, chairman, and Senator Robert F. Brussard of Louisiana, vice-chairman.

Women will play a prominent part in the conference. The women of the Navy league have organized especially for the occasion and the various women's patriotic organizations also are showing their desire to further the cause of national preparedness.

Militia Goes to Strike Scene.

Phoenix, Oct. 4.—Adjutant General C. W. Harris and an expeditionary force of 48 state militiamen are en route to Clifton, Ariz., where copper miners are on strike. Unless order is restored at once, it as said, the entire Arizona militia will be ordered to the strike district. The militiamen were ordered to Clifton by Governor George W. P. Hunt, upon receipt of an appeal from Sheriff J. C. Cash, who said he feared the situation was beyond his control.

MEXICANS FLEEING TO THE UNITED STATES

The long and bloody warfare among the various factions in Mexico has caused many families who lived near the Texas border to abandon their homes and flee across the Rio Grande to the United States.

160 ARE DEAD IN HURRICANE AREA

HUNDREDS OF PERSONS ALONG MISSISSIPPI AND INTERIOR POINTS ARE MAROONED.

DAMAGE IS ABOUT $12,000,000

Dunbar, La., Virtually Is Swept Away and Many Are Drowned—Tidal Wave Twelve Feet High Strikes Chef Menteur.

New Orleans, Oct. 4.—Reports from scattered sections of hurricane area in Louisiana and the Mississippi gulf give 160 known dead, 100 reported dead and 113 reported missing. Hundreds of persons along the Mississippi and interior points are marooned in flooded sections.

The known dead in Louisiana included: New Orleans and environs, 24; Rigolets, 21; Lake Catharine, 22; near Frenier, 25. Eight drowned in sinking of packet Hazel near Grand Isle.

Reported dead and missing in Louisiana: Shell Beach, St. Barnard parish, 16; Island De La Croix, 22; Yolosky, 15 (negroes.)

Tremendous Property Loss.

Couriers by boat and train as well as mail advices brought in reports of tremendous property loss and rumors of many drowned along both sides of the Mississippi river south of here.

Boat passengers arriving from Empire, near the Doulloth canal, about 50 miles down the Mississippi, reported that only four large houses still stood at Empire and that about 200 persons were marooned in them. The state conservation commission here started a rescue vessel for that point. Many inhabitants of the flooded sections on both sides of the river were reported marooned and some are said to be clinging to tree tops.

Relief Vessels Sent.

Relief vessels were sent to rescue them.

The property damage in the two states is roughly estimated at $12,000,000.

Telegraphic communication between New Orleans and the outside world, cut off since Wednesday noon, was re-established at 7:38 p. m.

The town of Dunbar, La., near the Mississippi state line, virtually was swept away, according to W. O. Powell, a survivor from that section, who arrived here. He could give no estimate of the number of dead at Dunbar. The railroad drawbridge at Rigolets was wrecked, he said, and the track, built on embankments and fills across the marshes, was washed out for miles.

Whole Country Inundated.

Only meager reports have been received from the delta section south and southwest of New Orleans. A wireless message from a staff correspondent of a New Orleans paper said:

"Whole country between Poydras and Buras inundated. Levees gone, property loss appalling. Life toll probably heavy. Conditions worse than ever before. Relief needed."

Reports from Chef Menteur, directly south of this city, indicated that a tidal wave from 9 to 12 feet high struck that section.

Petrograd, Oct. 4.—The Duma will be reassembled on Nov. 8 for action on the budget and financial affairs.

Two Villages Wiped Out.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 4.—Rigolets and Dunbar, La., villages on a narrow strip of land between Lake Borgne and Lake Ponchartrain, northeast of New Orleans, have been wiped out with large loss of life by a tropical hurricane, according to a statement given out here by officials of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. The announcement said train service over the road into New Orleans would be impossible for weeks, the tracks from Pass Christian to Bay St. Louis having been completely destroyed.

SUBMARINE WAR STOPPED?

BRITAIN BELIEVES GERMAN UNDERSEA CAMPAIGN CRUSHED.

Washington Learns Between Fifty and Seventy U-Boats Have Been Sunk by New Discovery.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Great Britain has discovered and put into effective operation means of combatting the submarine which, according to official reports to the United States government, already have resulted in a loss estimated at between 50 and 70 German submarines.

The reports declare that the British admiralty confidently believes it has crushed the German undersea campaign.

New methods of offense and defense that may revolutionize naval warfare have been adopted and high British naval officers are of the opinion that unless the effectiveness of the submarine is increased it will no longer constitute the menace that it has to commerce and battle fleets.

Develop Submarine Telephone.

While the greatest secrecy is thrown around the means employed, the United States government has information concerning the principal methods which have been successful in meeting the German war zone campaign. A submarine telephone has been developed by which it is possible to detect the approach of a submarine by sound from observation boats or stations planted off shore, connected with points on the mainland.

Armed Motorboats Guard.

But the greatest single factor, it is said, has been a newly designed and built fleet of small sea-going motorboats, armed with one or two three-inch guns, and possessing very high speed. These boats literally swarm over suspected expanses of the waters and by an effectively worked out system of patrol, cover almost every mile of the surface in channels of commerce adjacent to Great Britain.

ENTOMBED MINERS RESCUED

All Terribly Weakened by Long Waiting—Work of Rescue Forces Is Checked by Flow of Water

Lansford, Pa., Oct. 5.—Nine miners, gaunt and near starvation from being entombed for six days in the Foster Creek tunnel of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, were rescued after 200 men had chopped a way through 300 feet of fallen rock and debris which had cut off escape from the interior of the mine.

The contents of one dinner pail which one of the men had miraculously preserved and a few cakes of fish oil composition partaken of in small quantities was all that had kept them alive during their imprisonment.

They were found on top of a chute in which they had crawled to escape a flood of water that had broken from an abandoned working and caused more than 300 feet of gangway roof to fall, shutting off means of escape. The men are now in the hospital and it is said all will recover.

Sailor Kills Two and Suicides.

Erie, Pa., Oct. 4.—Angered because she refused him money, Charles Hanson, 49, a sailor, killed his wife, a servant and himself with a revolver. The servant, Teresa Sins, died while being taken to a hospital. Hanson and his wife had apparently been instantly killed. According to neighbors, Hanson had had trouble with his wife frequently. Her father, the late Andrew Ziegler, who died a year ago in Cleveland, left $93,000 to be divided between Mrs. Hanson and a brother, who lives in Buffalo.

To Dissolve "Movie Trust."

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 4.—The United States government won a sweeping victory in one of its important anti-trust cases when Judge Dickinson in the United States district court here handed down an opinion dissolving the alleged moving picture trust on the ground that it was violating the Sherman anti-trust laws regulating interstate commerce. The decision was rendered against the Motion Picture Patents company, and the General Film company.

ARE INDICTED ON PERJURY CHARGE

THREE OFFICERS ACCUSED OF MAKING UNTRUE STATEMENTS IN McADOO CASE.

ALLEGATIONS ARE DISMISSED

Defendants Charged Treasury Officials Conspired Jointly to Harass and Cripple Institution With Regulations.

Washington, Oct. 2.—Charles C. Glover, president of the Riggs National bank; William J. Flather, vice president, and H. H. Flather, cashier, were indicted on charges of perjury in connection with the bank's recent suit against William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, and John Skelton Williams, controller of the currency.

The indictments allege the three officials swore to false statements concerning alleged stock operations of the bank.

Statement Is Issued.

The bank has issued a statement prepared in anticipation of the indictments, in which it set forth a finding by the American Audit company of New York that the statement in question, denying stock operations by the bank, was true.

Attorneys for Secretary McAdoo and Controller Williams contended at the trial of the bank's suit that the books of Lewis Johnson & Co. showed many transactions in the names of the bank officials named. The case soon afterward was laid before a grand jury. Vice President Milton E. Ailes and Joshua Evans, Jr., assistant cashier of the bank, were called to testify. They are not mentioned in the indictments returned.

Bank's Charges Dismissed.

The district supreme court dismissed all the charges the bank made against the secretary and the controller, but left undecided the question of a $5,000 fine for failure to make a report demanded by the controller.

A decision on that point is expected at the fall term of court. Meanwhile the treasury officials are enjoined from forfeiting certain interest on government bonds held by the bank as payment for the penalty.

The Riggs bank, in its suit, charged Controller Williams and Secretary McAdoo jointly with having conspired to harass and cripple it with excessive regulation. Mr. Williams was charged with having a personal grudge against the interests in control of the bank, and with making it his business to order extraordinary examinations and demand unusual reports from the bank.

VILLA CHIEFS TO SURRENDER

Go to Vera Cruz to Arrange Terms, According to Announcement from Carranza Agency.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Three former Villa officers, according to an announcement from the Carranza agency here are en route to Vera Cruz, commissioned to arrange for the surrender of many of the chiefs of Villa's army.

"It it stated," says the announcement, "that they are traveling incognito because Villa is ignorant of their intention and of this recent action of his subordinates, and secrecy must be preserved in order to avoid assassination of such of them as still remain within his reach."

Score Arrested In Chicago Strike.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—A score of arrests, a dozen cases of disturbance and near riot, and bitter criticism of Mayor Thompson by the strikers and their sympathizers marked the day in the garment workers' strike. Representatives of the strikers called at the mayor's office to protest against treatment of strikers by the police. The union men charge that the police have made unwarranted attacks on peaceful congregations of strikers, and that they have shown brutality in their treatment of union members.

IN STERLING LIVES A GIRL

Who Suffered As Many Girls Do—Tells How She Found Relief.

Sterling, Conn.—"I am a girl of 22 years and I used to faint away every month and was very weak. I was also bothered a lot with female weakness. I read your little book 'Wisdom for Women,' and I saw how others had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and decided to try it, and it has made me feel like a new girl and I am now relieved of all these troubles. I hope all young girls will get relief as I have. I never felt better in my life."—Mrs. JOHN TETREAULT, Box 116, Sterling, Conn.

Massena, N. Y.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I highly recommend it. If anyone wants to write to me I will gladly tell her about my case. I was certainly in a bad condition as my blood was all turning to water. I had pimples on my face and a bad color, and for five years I had been troubled with suppression. The doctors called it 'Anemia and Exhaustion,' and said I was all run down, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me out all right."—Miss LAVISA MYRES, Box 74, Massena, N.Y.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why That Lame Back?

Morning lameness, sharp twinges when stooping, or a dull, all-day backache; each is cause enough to suspect kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans overdo, overeat and neglect our sleep and exercise, and so we are becoming a nation of kidney sufferers. 72% more deaths from kidney disease than in 1890, is the story told by the 1910 census. If annoyed with a bad back and irregular kidney action, modify the bad habits and use Doan's Kidney Pills.

STATE BREVITIES

Crookston.—The Northwest school of agriculture at Crookston opened its tenth year on Oct. 5. The teachers' training course, which runs for nine months, opened Sept. 7 with Miss Grace B. Sherwood, instructor.

Herman.—James J. Hill delivered a characteristic address at the Grant county fair in this place. He spoke from an automobile in front of the grandstand. Other speakers were Mr. Smith of St. Paul, and F. W. Murphy of Wheaton.

St. Cloud.—Stephen Zemer, a farmer, was killed when the Great Northern flyer struck the auto in which he was riding at the Osseo crossing. Joe Pohl, son-in-law and driver of the car, rode the pilot several car lengths before dropping off at one side as the train came to a stop.

Rochester.—More than 200 physicians and surgeons from throughout the state were registered here to attend the joint meeting of the Minnesota Public Health association and the Minnesota State Sanitary conference, and 500 were expected to attend the meetings of the Minnesota State Medical association.

Winona.—Children of Peter Speltz, pioneer of Winona county, arrived here to celebrate his 77th birthday. Instead they attended his funeral, for an acute attack of heart disease caused his death. A family reunion had been planned and the guests were met at the stations by Winona relatives, who informed them of Mr. Speltz' death. The funeral was held Friday.

Winona.—Two watches about 400 years old have been brought to Winona by Louis Tell Burkholder, a Swiss watchmaker. One of the watches was made in Paris by Mallet, who died in 1452, and the other was made in Liverpool, Eng., by Hans Hardmann, who died in 1529. The construction of both watches is crude and neither has a lever of escapement. The works are of solid gold.

Perham.—The Perham annual agricultural fair was a success, considering unfavorable weather conditions. More than 1,100 entrance tickets were sold. The cash prize on cattle was awarded to J. L. Sawyer of Butler, the cup to J. W. Kimball of Butler, and the cup for hogs to F. Mattfield of Gormantown. Great interest was shown in all the stock exhibits. The amusements were furnished by carnival companies.

Duluth.—Mrs. Andrew Streem, wife of an Ingleside farmer, is dead with the top of her head blown off by a charge of buckshot and Streem is in jail here charged with murder. John Messner, a neighbor, the only witness, told the police Streem was drunk and said he was going to shoot at his wife to frighten her. Messner left the doorway where he had been standing and heard the shot fired as he turned his back. Streem says the gun was accidentally discharged.

Duluth.—As the cashier of the Duluth Street Railway company turned away from a window at the First National bank with the semi-monthly payroll, he was jostled by two men and a leather sack containing $1,600 was snatched from his hand. It was handed to a third man and he disappeared. The cashier grappled with the man who snatched the sack and held him until the police came. The captive gave his name at headquarters as Ralph P. Miller.

Faribault.—The city council has let the contract for the installation of an electrically driven pump at the city waterworks, and also for the furnishing of the current to run the pump. Councilman Pomadt has been fighting the proposition from the start, and an injunction was served to prevent the council from letting the contract. The matter was in court several days, and was finally set aside by the judge. The contract for the current was let to the Consumers' Power company and runs for a term of 10 years.

Rochester.—Rochester's university faculty in connection with the high school has been completed and the university work is now in progress. First year studies only are offered this year. The faculty includes W. C. Bolcom of the University of Minnesota, instructor in history and English; Miss Belle Comstock, a university graduate, instructor in French, Latin and German; Miss Jane Nesbit, botany, and James B. Mack of the University of Syracuse, instructor in chemistry, physics, and university mathematics.

Duluth.—Six Duluth men had a narrow escape two miles east of Two Harbors when the tug F. W. Gillett, owned by the Jeffrey Towing company of Duluth, sprung a leak, and, becoming unmanageable, had to be abandoned. John Wanless, diver, Captain William Jones and the other four members of the tug's crew saved their lives by rowing through the heavy northeast gale that prevailed, to a scow which the tug was towing. Their distress signals were answered by the tug Edna G., which took off the shipwrecked men.

Brainerd.—The concentrator of the Cuyuna-Sultana mine is working full blast, and shipments of manganiferous ores are under way. The June Lake property in section three, inside the village limits of Ironton, is being prospected. The Breitung company is sinking a shaft under the supervision of Captain Jule.

Winona.—Rev. Louis M. Lesches entered a plea of not guilty to the indictment charging assault in the first degree. The plea was entered through counsel before a crowded courtroom. Father Lesches is accused of having shot Bishop Heffron.

ASKS STATE'S AID FOR LEPROSARIUM

GOVERNOR REFERS CALIFORNIA HEALTH BOARD REPORT TO DR. BRACKEN.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.—Minnesota's aid was asked through Governor Hammond in having established a federal leprosarium. Governor Hiram Johnson of California transmitted a copy of a report of the leprosy committee of the California board of health suggesting establishment of the institution. All the states are being asked to co-operate. The letter of Governor Johnson was sent to Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the state board of health. The federal leprosarium is suggested as a means of reducing the cost to the separate states of caring for lepers.

For Fire Prevention.

R. W. Hargadine, state fire marshal, has sent to every school superintendent in Minnesota a copy of Governor Hammond's proclamation setting aside Saturday, October 9, as the fourth annual observance of Fire Prevention day. As the schools will be closed on that date it is suggested the exercises be held on Friday, preceding.

C. G. Schulze, state superintendent of education, is a firm believer in the benefits which will accrue as a result of the observance of Prevention day and has given his sanction to the distribution of prevention literature among the schools. He also has included a program of exercises.

Mayors of cities and towns, fire chiefs and civic organizations and clubs have been asked to lend their aid. A number already have answered in the affirmative.

High in Health Work.

That Minnesota stands high in public health work, but that the state should have a full-fledged department of health, held aloof from political influence, is the contention of Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the Minnesota state board of health, in a statement made public by him. Dr. Bracken has been in public health service for 18 years. "Methods of state health regulation," said Dr. Bracken, "may be grouped under these three heads: A board or department which has to do purely with public health matters. A state health commissioner acting alone or with a board. A board which has charge not only of public health matters, but also the licensing of physicians."

Corn Grower Wins Medal.

Arthur Hoese of Mayer has won honors at the Panama-Pacific exposition as champion corn grower of Minnesota, says a letter to Governor W. S. Hammond from Charles F. Mills, secretary of the National Topnotch Farmers' club. Mr. Mills reported exposition authorities would forward a medal for Mr. Hoese. Mr. Hoese grew 135.14 bushels of corn on an acre said to be a new high mark for Minnesota.

Calls In $1,435,000.

Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, called on Minnesota banks to turn in to him $1,435,000 on deposit in the banks, with which to meet the October school apportionment. This represents the total deposits outside of the active checking accounts. About $1,500,000 is expected to be apportioned to the schools from the general school fund. The apportionment will be made by C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of education.

State Treasurer Replies.

Nothing is wrong with the state treasurer's department, Walter J. Smith, treasurer, has announced in a letter written to Miss Jessie E. Scott, secretary of the efficiency and economy commission. The letter is in answer to a request by the commission for recommendations in reforming the state administration. Neither does Mr. Smith believe that any of the present boards should be abolished.

One-half of Deaths Preventable.

The twenty-fourth conference of the State Charities and Correction association came to a close with addresses by Dr. H. M. Bracken, executive officer of the state board of health, and C. C. Stillman, secretary of United Charities. Dr. Bracken discussed the "Economies of Preventive Medicine." About one-half the deaths in Minnesota yearly, he said, are due to preventable diseases.

Opposes Phone Rate Increase.

Mayor Day of Long Prairie appeared before the state railroad commission to oppose the petition of the Long Prairie Telephone company, for permission to increase its rates. The manager asserted the company has spent $12,700 to put in a full metallic circuit and the old rates of $1 for residence and $2 for business telephones are no longer compensatory. The proposed new rates are $1.75 for one-party and $1.25 for four-party residence phones, and $2.75 for one-party and $2.25 for two-party telephones.

Muldoon's Mistake.

There was no doubt about it, Michael Muldoon had lost his five-pound note. How, then, was he to get back to Dublin?

But, sure, the London police would find it for him! Into a station marched Michael and told his sad story to the sergeant.

The officer was inclined to be sympathetic.

"I suppose you wrote down the number of the note?"

"And Oi did that, sorr!" said Mike, proudly.

"And what is the number, then?"

"And isn't that just what I don't know myself?"

"But you said you wrote it down!" exclaimed the officer, testily.

"That's the worst of it. I wrote it on the back of the note!"—London Tit-Bits.

Safe Retreat.

"Yassah, I likes dis jail!" cheerfully said a colored citizen who was in durance vile. "I sho' likes it fine! De lookout fum dat winder dar am elegant and de bars acrost it adds to its 'traction. Inside it's as comfortable and cozy as—"

"Look here! What in the world are you in for?"

"Bigamy, sah. I done got three wives."

Helped Considerably.

"I presume there was a Lovers' lane at the summer resort you visited?"

"I think not."

"But, surely, there were some accommodations for spooning?"

"Well, the power plant was defective and the lights went out two or three times in the course of an evening."

A DOCTOR'S EXPERIENCE

Medicine Not Needed in This Case.

It is hard to convince some people that coffee does them an injury! They lay their bad feelings to almost every cause but the true and unsuspected one.

But the doctor knows. His wide experience has proven to him that, to some systems, coffee is an insidious poison that undermines the health. Ask him if coffee is a cause of constipation, stomach and nervous troubles.

"I have been a coffee drinker all my life, and when taken sick two years ago with nervous prostration, the doctor said that my nervous system was broken down and that I would have to give up coffee.

"I got so weak and shaky I could not work, and reading an advertisement of Postum I asked my grocer if he had any of it. He said, 'Yes,' and that he used it in his family and it was all it claimed to be.

"So I quit coffee and commenced to use Postum steadily, and in about two weeks I could sleep better and get up in the morning feeling fresh. In about two months I began to gain flesh. I weighed only 146 pounds when I commenced on Postum and now I weigh 167 and feel better than I did at 20 years of age.

"I am working every day and sleep well at night. My two children were coffee drinkers, but they have not drank any since Postum came into the house, and are far more healthy than they were before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Awarded Medal of Honor and Gold Medal

At Panama-Pacific Exposition

Warm and Happy

The NEW PERFECTION Heater is an agreeable source of comfort to grown people—but it is a positive necessity when there are children in the house. You can't let the baby shiver and take cold.

With the NEW PERFECTION to take off the chill mornings and evenings, and to dry out dampness, you can delay starting winter fires until real cold weather begins.

With everyone warm and happy, free from colds developed from lowered vitality, there is no need of a furnace.

The NEW PERFECTION is the greatest comfort you can install in your home, an aid to good health, a means to economy, the cleanest heat you can use.

Easy to care for; ready by striking a match; burns 10 hours on one gallon of oil; can't smoke. No trouble to re-wick because wick and carrier are combined—the fresh wick all ready to put in, clean, smooth and ready to light. For best results use Perfection Oil.

At the Panama-Pacific Exposition the many points of superiority of the NEW PERFECTION line won a medal of honor, while a Gold Medal was awarded the NEW PERFECTION Heater—a sweeping victory.

Your dealer has the NEW PERFECTION Oil Heater on exhibition. Look for the triangle for warmth, comfort and good cheer. He will be glad to show you the different models. (414)

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3,1879

The police of Fargo and Moorhead report that they have been making more arrests for drunkenness among the harvest and thrashing laborers, who visit the cities, than they did when the saloons were running in Moorhead, and it is a mystery to the police where they get their booze.

Samuel Iverson will again be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year. Sam would be the strongest candidate that the party could put up, and if he keeps out of elimination conventions we believe he will be the next Republican governor of this state, January 1st, 1917.

The Democratic party are busy hunting up Republican Presidential timber for next year, and at the same time advertising the cause of Progressive Republicanism. Do not worry before the time comes gentlemen, but you can be sure that President Wilson will only have one Republican to defeat next year instead of two, and that the cats will not be fighting while the monkey runs off with the cheese.

That Drainage Meeting.

There is to be a big drainage meeting at Thief River Falls next Tuesday the 12th, to talk dredging of Red Lake River. The people of Thief River Falls are taking a very active interest in this project, which of course is detrimental to having the Red Lake River declared a non-navigable stream, so the people living in this part of the county can get bridges across it. Now if it is a good thing to have the Red Lake River remain a navigable river from the eastern line of the town of Highlanding, from which point west it is admitted that the river does not need dredging, why not have Congressman Steenerson get an act through Congress declaring the river navigable from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks? Why not treat all the people alike? If the people of Thief River Falls want the Red Lake River navigable, for God's sake let them have what they want. But do not let them sit down there with their end of the river non-navigable and holler to keep this part navigable, as there is just as many boats running between Thief River Falls and Grand Forks as there is between Thief River Falls and Highlanding.

The people came onto this reservation and bought this land, and now they are hindered from developing it by this government fence.

We challenge any one to produce a single instance in the history of the state of Minnesota, where the people have settled in and improved a country for ten years and have not been able to get a bridge across a river of this size.

Now you good people of Thief River Falls, if you are anxious for a navigable river, show your honesty by getting your part declared navigable, or stop your opposition to declaring the river non-navigable from Highlanding to Thief River Falls, for if it is such a GREAT thing for government dredging to have this part remain navigable, it would be a much GREATER help to have your part declared navigable so you would have to build a bridge thirty-two feet high to get across it.

Now that the base ball season is over the people can devote more attention to the European war.

Kaiser Wilhelm and the Czar of Russia are now beginning to get nearer to the fighting line, than they did at the beginning of the war.

It is now conceded that the European war will not end until one side or the other gets their men all killed off, so they can not fight any more. This must be a pleasant prospect for the common soldiers.

As it now seems to be the determination of the European kings to fight until they get all their soldiers killed off, the common soldiers may as well apply for their iron cross, and get into the front ranks, and be slaughtered before they have to suffer all winter, in the trenches. Nothing like having an iron cross pinned on you when you are shot.

Treatment Of Peat Land.

Professor Smalley of the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., is this week visiting the peat lands and farms of eastern Marshall county with the view of instituting a federal movement to determine the best method of cultivation to adopt for the peat farms. He informed Mr. Werner that an application of potash to the peat lands of Indiana had made them wonderfully productive. He advices thorough drainage. His report will be awaited with interest.—T. R. Falls Times.

This part of Pennington county has quite a large amount of this peat land, that can be broken up and farmed, as it is well drained. The peat is not very deep on the greater portion of it, but it seems to lack something to produce crops. When it is well rotted it has the appearance of a well rotted manure heap, and if it is potash that it lacks, let us try potash.

We have been devoting considerable time and expense to experimenting on this land, and this season we tried manuring portions of it with good results. But the best and most satisfactory results that we have had, was to seed it to timothy at the same time that we sow the flax seed on the new breaking. So satisfactory is this proving that we propose to have heavy timothy hay growing on all of the land that is now growing bulrushes and wire grass, within the next two years.

NOTICE.

The Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association will meet in annual session at Thief River Falls on Thursday and Friday, November 4th and 5th.

A comprehensive program, including every feature of educational activity, is under preparation and will be announced at an early date.

Commissioner Claxton of Washington, D. C. and several other prominent educators from this and adjoining states will be present. The state department officials will attend and confer with school officers and also appear on the several programs.

Suitable local entertainment will be provided and ample provision will be made for rooms and meals for all in attendance.

Teachers and school officers are requested to give this important event wide publicity and make definite arrangements to attend. Further and fuller information will appear week by week.

COUGHS THAT ARE STOPPED!

Careful people see that they are stopped. Dr. King's New Discovery is a remedy of tried merit. It has held its own on the market for 46 years. Youth and old age testify to its soothing and healing qualities. Pneumonia and lung troubles are often caused by delay of treatment. Dr. King's New Discovery stops those hacking coughs and relieves la grippe tendencies. Money back if it fails. 50c. and $1.00.—adv.

RHEUMATISM AND ALLIED PAINS—THEY MUST GO!

The congestion of the blood in its flow causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. The "man or woman who has rheumatism, neuralgia or other pain and fails to keep Sloan's Liniment in their home is like a drowning man refusing a rope." Why suffer. Get a bottle of Sloan's. 25c. and 50c. $1.00 bottle holds six times as much as 25c. size.—adv.

GET RID OF THOSE POISONS IN YOUR SYSTEM!

You will find Dr. King's New Life Pills a most satisfactory laxative in releasing the poisons from your system. Accumulated waste and poisons cause manifold ailments unless released. Dizziness, spots before the eyes, blackness and a miserable feeling generally are indications that you need Dr. King's New Life Pills. Take a dose to-night and you will experience grateful relief by morning. 25c.—adv.

A GOOD WORD FOR THE CROW.

Despite the Damage He Does He Is a Good Scavenger.

In spite of the crow's instinct to feed on the eggs and young of other species (which he shares in common with several other birds), who would really wish to see him quite exterminated even if it were possible to exterminate so resourceful a fellow?

His destruction to crops is certainly far less than that of the bobolink in the southern rice fields. He is an efficient scavenger, and his destruction of white grubs, cutworms, wireworms and grasshoppers is of great value. Above all, however, his place in our landscape is such that his passing would leave a dreary void.

Winter or summer we are conscious of him against the sky, against the fields or sentinel on a patriarch pine. In the misty mornings of summer when the sun has not yet rolled up the curtains of cloud from the mountains we hear his voice far off in the woods, rousing us from slumber, and when autumn has come and our sugar groves are a glory of crimson he is still there, his distant call floating down sweetly from the upland woods and testifying in some strange way the height of the peaks beyond.—Harper's Magazine.

LAY OF THE NIGHTINGALE.

Why It Stops When the Little Birds Come Out of the Shell.

It is generally assumed that a bird sings because he is happy, but science goes deeper for an explanation of the why and wherefore of the bird's song. Nature's optimistic joy in constructive progress is expressed in the singing of the male birds who charm their mates to further their wooing and continue after eggs are laid to encourage the fulfillment of hatching.

The song stops when the little birds come out of the shell. The nightingale for weeks during the period of nest building and hatching charms his mate and human ears near him with the beautiful music of his love song. But as soon as the little nightingales come from the eggs the song changes to a sort of guttural croak, implying anxiety and sense of responsibility.

If the nest and contents were destroyed the nightingale would at once resume his beautiful song to inspire his mate to help him build another nest and start all over again the loving work of being fruitful and multiplying.—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

Houston & Bourdon,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

We have been having fine Indian summer weather this week, which is being improved by the farmers getting their falls threshing done.

There was quite a large number of the Clearwater farmers that attended the Drainage meeting at Thief River Falls Tuesday, and a number of business men from Oklee.

All the roads are now in good passable condition for the marketing of grain, but some of the farmers will wait for the ice bridge to get onto Red Lake River before they haul their grain out to market.

Among the people who attended the meeting at Thief River Falls, were Walter McAndress Wm. A. Swanson, Sever Nelson, A. C. Tveit, W. G. Hunt, and many others who were interested in the development of eastern Pennington County.

Tower, N. Dak., have their jail over crowded with "blind piggers." Next fall they may have to enlarge the present Pennington county jail to accommodate the gentlemen who may try to make a few extra dollars by "boot legging."

The partridge crop seems to be as light this year as the prairie chicken crop, which was undoubtedly caused by the loss of their eggs by the wet weather in June. None of these birds should be shot this fall, but should be allowed to try and see if they can not produce a better crop next year.

All the business houses at Thief River Falls seem to be doing a good business at the present time but there will soon be a lot of vacant "to let" buildings that are now occupied by saloons. There does not seem to be any lack of grocery and candy stores, and these buildings will undoubtedly be used for drug stores, as there is always a big trade for drug stores in dry territory.

Some of the mail routes from Thief River Falls to eastern parts of the county are very poorly arranged. A letter mailed on Friday morning at the county seat will not reach a farmer living in the town of Mayfield until the following Tuesday evening, while a letter mailed from Goodridge to Thief River Falls goes as far west as Mavie, then turns back and lays over night at Erie, then is sent on to the Falls the next day.

FOR SALE: Two fine two and one-half year old steers, in prime condition, weight about 1200 lbs. each. Inquire of W. G. Hunt, Sunbeam, Minn.

Scheldrupe seems to have some difficulty in getting laborers on ditch 42. Two men that he brought out from Thief River last week, quit work before they started.

Reson and Yohn, seem to be doing a flourishing business in their livery and feed barn at Goodridge. By courteous treatment they have built up an extensive business in their feed barn, which is nearly always filled with farmers' teams.

It seemed to be the unanimous opinion of the farmers who attended the drainage meeting at Thief River Falls, that they did not want any steps taken for the improvement of Red Lake River that would increase their burden of taxes, as the farmers of this territory are already taxed to about the limit of their ability to pay by the drainage ditches that they now have.

The Representative from Bemidji who attended the drainage convention, wanted the Red Lake river dredged, so as to lower the level of the lake, while the Grand Forks people wanted it dredged so they would always be sure of of a supply of water. Our Congressman Steenerson will undoubtedly receive assistance from the Representatives from both ends of his district when the matter is brought before Congress.

COWBOYS OF SPAIN.

Splendid Horsemen, but They Use Spurs Without Mercy.

The perfection of Spanish horsemanship is to be seen among the vaqueros, gainaderos and garrochistus, by which various names the mounted herdsmen of the Andalusian plains are known. In brief, what we should call a cowboy. Every farm seems to maintain a large number of these, for each herd, flock or drove has its own herdsman, goatherd or swineherd, as the case may be. The vaqueros are a fine looking lot of men. Tall, thin, light and loosely made, they look ideal horse men, as, in point of fact, they are, though their mounts are poor.

The vaquero rides very high on a huge saddle, with a long stirrup and straight leg, using a single rein and a very heavy curb, but he has such beautiful hands that, although using this barbarous bit, he never cuts his horse's mouth about. It is different with the animals' sides, however, for he uses his spurs without mercy, and the white horses—of which there are a large number—all have ominous red stains behind the girths.

All the herdsmen who look after cattle carry a long lance, called a garrocha, of thick and heavy wood, which, except when standing still, they always carry "in rest" and not "at the carry," presumably on account of its great length and possibly its weight. With this weapon, in the use of which he acquires amazing dexterity, the garrochista is able to control the most unruly brutes in the herd, not excepting the savage fighting bull.—Wide World Magazine.

Japanese Child Jugglers.

Among the itinerant street entertainers in London are a number of tiny Japanese children, usually boys. They make their way into hotel and public house bars, saloons and restaurants and, producing a sheaf of knives from their pockets, suddenly begin juggling with them in the most expert manner, accompanying the performance with a monotonous singsong which seems to be inseparable from the exhibition. Being very small, they seldom depart without receiving a shower of coppers, to which they respond at the doorway with a little chant of thanksgiving. It is difficult to guess the age of Japanese children, but none of the tiny tots engaged in this business appear to be more than seven years old.

He Got the Apples

"Once upon a time," began the teacher, "two little brothers started to Sunday school one Sunday morning. Their way led past a fine orchard, where the trees were bending down with ripe, luscious apples. One of the brothers proposed going into the orchard and getting some fruit, but the other refused and sped away, leaving his companion greedily devouring the apples.

"Now, it happened that the owner of the orchard saw them, and the next day rewarded the good boy who refused to steal his apples by giving him a shilling. He got a prize for his honesty, and what do you suppose the other boy got for his dishonesty?"

"He got the apples!" yelled every member of the class.—Exchange.

Wiles of the Waiter.

"I know I am looking like a fright tonight," the woman said.

The man studied her dress, her hair and her complexion closely.

"I don't see anything the matter with you," he said. "So far as I can see, you are looking as well as usual."

"But I am not," she insisted. "There is something wrong, and that head waiter saw at a glance what it was. If I had been up to the mark he wouldn't have put us away over here in this out of the way corner. He would have given us a table right under the chandelier in the middle of the room.

"All the best dressed people are always seated in the most conspicuous places, so as to make the restaurant look more attractive. I am glad to say that that is where I usually sit. The plain people are ranged along the sides of the room, just as we are tonight.

"That is why I know I am not looking well."—New York Times.

THE SAFETY HABIT

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, It's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

THE NATION'S DINNER TABLE

When the dinner bell of this nation rings there have been slaughtered for the repast 13,000 beeves, 21,000 hogs, 4,600 sheep, 2,000 hundredweight of poultry and other meats, and there have been 700,000 bushels of cereals and 540,000,000 pounds of vegetables prepared for the feast. Multiply these quantities by one thousand, representing approximately the number of meals per annum, and we have the annual contents of the nation's larder. But with all our immense quantity, superb quality and wide range of products, the American housewife, like the wife of King Nebuchadnezzar, longs for variety and she goes marketing in foreign lands. She buys abroad $200,000,000 per annum of farm products that can and should be produced in the United States.

Stammered to Himself.

To those who stutter or stammer let me suggest my personal cure. At about fourteen I was attacked by a bad habit of stammering and couldn't start a remark without it. The other boys laughed at me, and elders projected complicated cures. But the absurdity of the situation appealed to me. Why couldn't I say "I" at once without the preliminary stammer?

It was obviously necessary to stutter, often before saying "No." Well, why shouldn't I stutter to myself? The method was adopted. When a sentence had to be started the stammer was carried out in silence—if a dozen "n's" had to start a "No." And after a few days of deliberate speech, with the stammer done in silence, I was delivered entirely from the habit.—London Standard.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

HAD REAL IDEA OF ECONOMY

Jap Explains How Family Was Enabled to Use One Fan Two or Three Generations.

Among the Japanese economy is held to be a high virtue. Two old misers of Tokyo were one day discussing ways and means of saving.

"I manage to make a fan last about twenty years," said one, "and this is my system: I don't wastefully open the whole fan and wave it carelessly. I open only one section at a time. That is good for about a year. Then I open the next, and so on until the fan is eventually used up."

"Twenty years for a good fan!" exclaimed the other. "What sinful extravagance! In my family we use a fan for two or three generations, and this is how we do it: We open the whole fan, but we don't wear it out by waving it. Oh, no! We hold it still, like this, under our nose, and wave our face!"—Everybody's.

"You remember selling me some hair-restorer when I called the other day to get shaved, you hoary-headed old thief?" roared the indignant customer. "You sold it under false pretenses, sir. You said it would restore my head to its original condition."

"Well, didn't it work?" asked the barber.

"Work? No. It's taken off what little hair I used to have, and I am as bald as the pavement now."

"That's quite right, sir. No false pretense about that. I said it would restore your head to its original condition, and you know, sir, most of us are born bald."

A writer gives a little sketch of black and white in Natal. He tells how he came across a white boy, some fourteen years old, and a group of raw natives playing a game. They were shooting with an old muzzle-loading shotgun at a bottle on the top of a case. When the youngster smashed a bottle he received a "tickey" (a threepenny bit) from the natives. When a native hit it he received threepence from the boy.

"That seems a funny sort of game," remarked the witness to the boy.

"Oh, the game's all right, sir," replied the lad. "You see, I load the gun."

MINNESOTA RICH IN AUTOMOBILES

PROSPERITY OF PEOPLE IS EVIDENCED BY LARGE NUMBER OF MACHINES.

NEARLY 100,000 REGISTERED

Secretary of State Schmahl Predicts Citizens Will Own 160,000 Cars Before 1917 Closes, or One Auto to Every 17.

By Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State.

I know of no better criterion of the wealth and prosperity of all classes of the people of Minnesota than that of the automobile. In 1907, when the Legislature first provided for a state registration of automobiles, 7000 were registered. The following year it jumped to 12,000. In 1909 the registration was 19,500; in 1910 the registration was 28,500; and the year 1911 closed with a registration of about 45,000. The 1911 Session of the Legislature provided for a three year period with January 1, 1912, and when the department closed business on December 31, 1914, the records showed there were 68 500 licensed automobiles in Minnesota and in addition there were a large number in the hands of dealers licensed under what is known as the Dealers' Registration Act. The new triennial period commenced on January 1, 1915, and at this writing, September 20, 1915, the registration, exclusive of dealers, has reached 88,000, and there are undoubtedly a thousand or two more in the hands of the 450 dealers throughout the state that have either not been sold or applications have not been received at this department.

People Invest $84,980,000.

The Wall Street Journal, the orthodox financial paper of the United States, published in New York City, in an issue circulated during the month of August, made the statement that the average price of an automobile owned throughout the United States is about $989, over one-half of the cars produced selling for less than $700. Using this responsible statement as a basis, the people of Minnesota now have $84,980,000 invested in automobiles. It can be positively stated that there is practically little or no charge as a credit against these machines and that the entire item is one that is exclusive property of the owners.

This stupendous amount and growth shows better the prosperity of Minnesota than any other one item that I can think of and inasmuch it has come from the soil of the state within the last eight years, people from other states desiring to invest in Minnesota real estate and make homes in this state, will not ponder long in their reflection as to the actual wealth of the soil of the state. From the applications on file in this office I can make a safe estimate that about thirty per cent. of the total registration has been made by the farmers of Minnesota. This latter registration as a whole does not cover many of the high priced machines but it does show a safe, conservative policy on part of the farmers in purchasing good and durable machines and machines that will answer all purposes.

One Auto to Every 17 Citizens.

At the present time the registration comes largely from that section of Minnesota south from a direct line across the state from Brainerd but the applications from the Northern section are coming in quite rapidly and indicate that rapid strides are being made in both the agricultural wealth of that section as well as in the improvement of roads.

Minnesota is now about the ninth state in the Union in the number of licensed automobiles. The people of the state are calling for them faster than they can be delivered from the factories. Before 1915 closes Minnesota will have very near 100,000 machines registered and before the triennial period closes on December 31, 1917, the people will own in the neighborhood of 160,000 machines, equivalent to about one machine to every seventeen citizens of the state.

MINNESOTA'S BANK WEALTH

Deposits More Than $492,000,000; or $232 for Every Man, Woman and Child in State.

By A. H. Turrittin, Superintendent of Banks.

The prosperity of Minnesota is best evidenced by the condition of the banks of the state.

We have 917 banks, 275 national banks, 10 savings banks and 8 trust companies; a total of 1,210 banks and trust companies. The deposits in these financial institutions is over $492,000,000.00 or $232 for every man, woman and child in Minnesota.

Five years ago there were 970 of these financial institutions with a total deposit of over $340,000,000.00 or a per capita deposit of about $164.

This shows an increase of 240 in the number of banks, $152,000,000.00 in deposits and a per capita increase of $68.80.

Minnesota produced 33.6 per cent of white pine timber cut in the United States in 1909.

The capital invested in Minnesota manufacturing plants is $375,416,000.

GROWTH OF DAIRY INDUSTRY

MINNESOTA TAKES FIRST PRIZE IN NATIONAL CONTESTS.

State Has 950 Establishments That Produce Butter and Cheese, Supplied by 1,215,000 Cows.

By J. J. Farrell, Dairy and Food Commissioner.

Minnesota has 950 establishments that produce butter and cheese approximately 700 of which are upon a cooperative basis. These factories are supplied in part by 1,215,000 cows producing $72,125,000 worth of milk annually and $8,750,000 worth of calves. The by-products of the dairy are, at a conservative figure, worth $20,000,000, making a grand total or more than $100,00,000.

The rapid growth of the dairy and creamery industry in Minnesota is without a parallel in the history of the country. Quality, as well as quantity is evidenced by the fact that for ten consecutive years Minnesota has taken first prize in all national contests. At the last National Convention, held in Mason City, Iowa, in 1915, in competition with twenty-three states Minnesota won first and second place, as well as the grand sweepstakes. No other state can show such a record.

CONTROLS RATE AND SERVICE

Railroad and Warehouse Commission Prevents Discriminations by Railways and Telephone Companies.

By Charles E. Elmquist, Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner.

One of the important branches of our state government is the Railroad and Warehouse Commission. This department has been in existence since 1872, and consists of three members who are elected for a term of six years. Originally its jurisdiction was confined to the supervision of common carriers, but succeeding legislatures have increased its duties. At the present time its activities extend to the control over the rates and service of railroad and express companies, telephone companies and storage warehouses. Broadly speaking, no corporation can change a rate, rule or regulation without the consent of the Commission, and the Commission can after investigation make and require the publication of reasonable rates.

Prescribes Lower Rates.

The Commission prescribed class and commodity rates in 1906 representing an average decrease of 16⅔ per cent in the former and 10 per cent in the latter. These were litigated and sustained in the Minnesota Rate Cases, as a result of which the people enjoy lower rates and the shippers have been paid refunds amounting to about $2,750,000.00 up to the present time.

In 1913 the Commission made and published distance tariff freight rates for all classes and commodities moving within the state and they are now being used by all of the railroads except the Chicago Great Western and the Minneapolis & St. Louis.

Regulates Telephone Service.

Many questions arise affecting stations, agents, spur tracks and the service given by freight and passenger trains. The control over telephone companies was effective on July 1st and over storage warehouses on October 1st. The law is very broad and gives the Commission ample power to regulate service, prevent discriminations and enforce reasonable charges. Some of the large telephone companies raised their toll rates before the law went into effect, and this placed the burden upon the Commission of determining a reasonable rate after an investigation and hearing. In respect to telephone and storage companies the work of the Commission is necessarily in a formative state, but there is no question but what the regulation will be beneficial to the public and corporations.

Controls Weights and Measures.

All scales, weights and measures used commercially in the state, including track scales and the scales upon which grain is weighed, are under the control of the Commission. Skilled men travel over the state testing platform and smaller scales and weighing devices; railroad track scales are examined by experts who travel with 100,000 pound test cars and sufficient heavy weights. Grain scales in the terminals are constantly supervised to insure their accuracy. The Commission through its grain inspection department grades and weighs all grain that enters or leaves the terminals and also gives the same service at many mills and elevators at interior points. The employes are obliged to get fair, average samples of grain from the car and the inspectors pass judgment upon the sample without knowing the ownership thereof. The grain is weighed by men who are under a $5,000.00 bond to the state and who are under close supervision. Information concerning the loss of grain in transit is furnished shippers. This service is of utmost importance to the producers and dealers because it insures fair and impartial grades and weights. Practically the same service is given to hay and straw which reaches the terminals. All commission merchants who deal in grain and agricultural products are licensed by the state and the Railroad and Warehouse Commission is permitted by law to investigate any complaints that may be filed by interested parties and to make such decision as justice and equity require.

NOT AS HE EXPRESSED THEM

Teamster's Words Would Have Required Adjustment Before Their Use in the Pulpit.

A man was brought before a police court charged with abusing his team and using loud and profane language on the street. One of the witnesses was a pious old darky, who was submitted to a short cross-examination.

"Did the defendant use improper language while he was beating his horses?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, he talk mighty loud, suh."

"Did he indulge in profanity?"

The witness seemed puzzled. The lawyer put the question in another form:

"What I mean, Uncle Aus, is—did he use words that would be proper for your minister to use in a sermon?"

"Oh, yes suh," the old man replied with a grin that revealed the full width of his immense mouth; "but dey'd have to be 'ranged diff'runt."—Everybody's Magazine.

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 84 Progress Avenue, Providence, R.I.

From Mrs. Maria Irwin, Peru, N.Y.

PERU, N.Y.—"Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was very irregular and had much pain. I had lost three children, and felt worn out all the time. This splendid medicine helped me as nothing else had done, and I am thankful every day that I took it."—Mrs. MARIA IRWIN, R.F.D. 1, Peru, N.Y.

From Mrs. Jane D. Duncan, W. Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. DUNCAN, Forest Avenue, West Quincy, Mass.

Message to the Northwest.

By Cyrus Northrop,
President Emeritus, University of Minnesota.

I am an old man now, and have seen many things in the world. I have seen this great country that we speak of as the northwest come, in my lifetime, to be populous and rich. The forest has fallen before the farmers, the field has blossomed and the cities have risen to greatness. If there is anything that an old man 80 years of age could say to a people among whom he has spent the happiest days of his life, it is this: We live in the most blessed country in the world. The things we have accomplished are only the beginning. As the years go on, and always we increase our strength, our power and our wealth, we must not depart from the simple teachings of our youth. For the moral fundamentals are the same and unchangeable. Here in the northwest we shall make a race of men that shall inherit the earth. Here in the distant years, when I and others who have labored with me shall long have been forgotten, there will be a power in material accomplishment, in spiritual attainment, in wealth, strength and moral influence the like of which the world has not yet seen. This I firmly believe. And the people of the northwest, moving ever forward to greater things, will accomplish all this as they adhere always to the moral fundamentals, and not otherwise.

Warrior of Today.

George Wharton Pepper said at a luncheon at the Pittsburgh training camp for officers:

"The methods of warfare have changed enormously in the past year. The sword, for example, is no longer carried. The sword has quite disappeared from war.

"A story comes from the Argonne about a French chasseur who took a German officer prisoner. The chasseur, a boy, a tyro, said to the officer:

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Minnesota

Northern Minnesota is one of best localities in the United States for the man of moderate means to get a start on a farm, as crop failures are unknown in this region. Although corn and flax were a very light crop this year, owing to the wet season, wheat and oats were a very heavy crop. Land in the newer parts of this county can be secured at as low a rate as $20 per acre, and it is superior to land that is now selling in older states for from $100 to $150 per acre. This part of Pennington county is now well drained with good graded roads on nearly every section line. There is one notable draw back to the development of this part of Pennington county, which is the Red Lake River being a navigable river under the control of the War Department, a condition which prevents the building of bridges across it, An effort will be made to have this river removed from under the control of the government at the next session of Congress

Land is rapidly raising in value in this part of the state, as the people from older parts of Minnesota and other states are beginning take advantage of the low priced lands, and are rapidly buying them up. There is a limited amount of homestead land in northern Beltrami county, which can be taken as homesteads, but people must not expect to find graded roads and school houses in the locality that is open for homestead entry, but they will have to build their school houses, and grade their roads the same as the pioneers of this locality have done.

TEACHING CITIZENSHIP.

It is announced at Pittsburg that the public schools will establish this month a department for training in citizenship. This is probably designed for children and aliens. But many leading citizens need very much to attend such a course.

If they obey the laws, many people think they are good citizens. When the caucuses and primaries come around, they forget all about it. Some small knot of politicians thereby becomes able to "put over" hand picked nominations.

Not more than 10 to 25 per cent of the voters usually take part in making nominations. This suits the political rings very well. If they can control the nominations, the elections will take care of themselves. Those who stay at home give as excuse that they are too tired. have other engagements, or that the machines have set up the whole proceeding so that it is a farce. That just suits the machines, who base their fabric on these indolent habits.

It is not enough to attend primaries and elections, if no attention is given to the issues thereof. A man will deliberate for days over a business deal involving only a small sum. But he will prepare for his act as an elector merely by reading newspaper head lines. Or he will depend on chance conversations with men he sees on the street. These men may be as ill informed as himself. Consequently many voters at the polling booth find the names of candidates entirely unfamiliar. They know nothing for or against them, good or bad. Thus they vote hit or miss. Is it any wonder that all forms of government are inefficient and costly?

An attempt to teach citizenship in schools, then, should not be merely imparting facts. Knowledge of the civic structure amounts to little. What is needed is an idea of government needs. The pupil should be taught about the evils of existing government, and given a desire to help on better things. He should be taught that no man is a good citizen who does not vote regularly and intelligently.—Crookston Daily Times.

NOTICE.

The Northwestern Minnesota Educational Association will meet in annual session at Thief River Falls on Thursday and Friday, November 4th and 5th.

A comprehensive program, including every feature of educational activity, is under preparation and will be announced at an early date.

Commissioner Claxton of Washington, D. C. and several other prominent educators from this and adjoining states will be present. The state department officials will attend and confer with school officers and also appear on the several programs.

Suitable local entertainment will be provided and ample provision will be made for rooms and meals for all in attendance.

Teachers and school officers are requested to give this important event wide publicity and make definite arrangements to attend. Further ad fuller information will appear week by week.

Why Milk Sours.

We are told by those who study the ways and ravages of the mischievous microbe that he is very fond of sugar and that he delights to gratify this liking by turning the supply in milk into an acid which sours the milk. These microbes are constantly in the air, alive though invisible, and ready to drop into the milk when they can. If it were possible to keep the milk from the air after the cow is milked it would not turn sour. Warm milk is particularly inviting to the microbe and favorable to his operations. He does not get along well under chilling conditions, and that is why the sweetness of milk can be preserved if it is kept cold. Boiling fresh milk changes the sugar in such a way that the microbe cannot feed upon it.—Baltimore American.

COUGHS THAT ARE STOPPED!

Careful people see that they are stopped. Dr. King's New Discovery is a remedy of tried merit. It has held its own on the market for 46 years. Youth and old age testify to its soothing and healing qualities. Pneumonia and lung troubles are often caused by delay of treatment. Steenerson Represents the People.

RED LAKE RIVER WILL BE DECLARED A NON-NAVIGABLE STREAM FROM HIGHLANDING TO THIEF RIVER FALLS.

A BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT HIGHLANDING

As soon as Congressman Steenerson can get action, at the next session of Congress he will introduce a bill to declare the Red Lake River a non-navigable river from the eastern line of Highlanding to Thief River Falls. The people of Thief River Falls seemed to be unanimous in favor of this proposition, and great credit is due to the Commercial Club of that city to bring about a meeting with the farmers of this district and their representative in Congress. Congressman Steenerson is deeply interested in the welfare of his constituants, the farmers living along the Red Lake and Clearwater Rivers, and will use his best endeavors to get these rivers improved straight and dredged by the government.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY,

THE SUNBEAM

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1915. NO. 32

THE LOCAL NEWS

Frank and Louis LaCounte returned home from the Dakota threshing fields last Saturday.

K.M. Kratzer is building a new granary for T. S. Jacobson this week.

Ole Giving has been threshing in the Henry Arndt and the P. C. Wold neighborhood this week.

Charley Sall from Garnes has been threshing for the Mayfield farmers this week.

Oats are very heavy in weight this year, as any ordinary sack, weighs out three bushels.

Henry Hyland has been doing the fall plowing on the Johnson farm with a bull tractor engine this week.

K. M. Kratzer raised thirty-two bushels of No. 1 Marquis wheat to the acre on eight acres of land this year.

The report was circulated at Thief River Falls last Friday that James O'Brien was dead, but Jim is as well as usual, thank you.

Work is progressing fairly well on ditch 42, and it will be completed this fall, if the season does not close down earlier than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ellingson and family, of Highlanding, visited with Mrs. Ellingson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ljot Sigurdson, of Grygla, on Sunday last.

It is getting dry enough so that the messkeg begins to burn in the swamps, and it would be well to be a little careful about setting out fires.

The weather this week has been ideal Indian summer weather, and the farmers have been improving it by getting their falls work done.

Christoffer Nisson has sold his farm near Erie, and has removed to the Ljot Sigurdson farm south of Highlanding, which he will farm the coming year.

Can make you a farm loan at lowest rates. Write or see us befor you place your farm loan.

Houston & Bourdon,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

The farmers living along ditch 42 are anxious to have the road grading done this fall, as they want to use the road, as they have been paying taxes for it for some time.

J.O. Hartz, Ben Strom and P. J. Hegseth, of Litchfield, Minn., have been taking down the dredge on ditch 42 this week. We hope that if it is ever set up again that it will make a more successful run of ditching than it did on 42.

We have a quantity of young poplar timber which we will give anyone that will grub it out, as we desire to clear the land for breaking. This will be a good opportunity for any one that is short of fire wood to obtain a supply easy, as it is not much more work to grub a poplar tree from five to ten inches through than it is to cut it down. Inquire at this office.

Donough O'Brien died very suddenly of heart faliure, at his home in the town of Goodridge, last Friday morning. He was apparently as well as usual when he went out to the barn to do his morning chores, but returned to the house without finishing them, remarking to his wife that he was not feeling well. Mrs. O'Brien went to finish some of the chores and when she returned he was lying on the bed dead. We have not learned any further particulars of his death.

Confirmation services will be held in the Mayfield church next Sunday.

S. L. Holm is supplying the fire wood for the Highlanding School.

A fair sized crowd attended the dance at Erie last Saturday evening.

A Young Peoples Society will be held Sunday, at the residence of G. Anderson's, in Deer Park township.

FOR SALE: Two fine two and one-half year old steers, in prime condition, weight about 1200 lbs. each. Inquire of W. G. Hunt, Sunbeam, Minn.

Just consider how long it is since you paid any subscription to THE SUNBEAM. We must have at least a portion of the money due on subscription this fall, and ask our friends to give this matter their attention.

We heard this week that the people of Goodridge were contemplating fixing the approaches to the Highlanding ferry in a passable condition so the ferry can be used by loaded teams. This had ought to make the Supervisors of the town of Highlanding blush.

We received a letter from our brother in Oklohoma this week, stating that he had been selling fine peaches for 25 cents a bushel, pears 50 cents a bushel, and apples 50 cents. By comparing these prices with what we pay here, it is very easy to see that there must be a lot of middle men, between the producer and consumer who are growing rich.

NOTICE.

The second half of the Real Estate taxes must be paid before the 1st of November to avoid penalty. Since the 31st of October falls on Sunday taxes will be collected on the 1st of November which will be the last day on which to pay the 2nd half without penalty.

Respectfully,
Theo. H. Liden,
County Treas.

From the present way that the mail routes are being arranged in this end of the county, it would not be at all surprising if assistant 4th Assistant Postmaster General Singer, should get an order issued for the Thief River Falls mail to come by way of Goodridge, and lie over a couple of days, as it appears that he is the boss of all mail routes in this locality, and that would be just as sensible an order as the one issued on the Sunbeam and Rhoda route to deprive people of mail service.

Patrons of mail routes who are supplied by mail box delivery should provide themselves postage stamps to fully prepay all postage mailed in mail boxes. The post office department does not require mail carriers to collect money from boxes and buy stamps at the next postoffice. Star Route drivers don't sell stamps, and if you leave money and letters in a mail box, the driver is not compelled to take them out of the boxes, but may do so as an accommodation occasionally, for people who do not make a practice of dumping pennies into mail boxes regularly for them to gather up.

The Oklee Herald seems to be of the opinion that the Clearwater farmers did not receive much encouragement at the Drainage Meeting, only advice to help themselves. All the difference between them and Red Lake River farmers is, that they can at least get bridges by paying for them, and the Red Lake River farmers cannot even do that, while thay have had the same amount of government assistance for the past ten years that we have had, and if we ever get any more for the next ten years we will promptly let you know.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR REAL BARGAINS.

We have some bargains in lumber which positively cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

If you contemplate building at all this fall or winter, it will pay you large returns to visit our yard and see the big bargains we can offer you, and at rock bottom prices.

We can offer you 6 inch flooring and dropsiding at $20.00 per M and up. 2x4x6 dimensions at $22.00 per M and up.

And we have other bargains equally as good in items too numerous to mention,

Remember if you do not figure your bills with us, we will both lose money.

Two Ways to Put It.

This is how Johnny wrote his composition in the public school class:

"The cow is a good animal. She has two horns and two eyes and gives milk, which is good to drink. She has four legs and eats grass and hay. Some of them are red, and they have long tails."

And this is how the teacher says he ought to have written it:

"The female of the bovine genus is a beneficent mammal. This ruminant quadruped is possessed of corneous protuberances, projecting from the occiput. Her vision is binocular, and she yields an edible and nutritious lacteal exudation. She is quadrupedal and herbivorous, assimilating her food in both the succulent and exsiccated states. Some of them chromatically correspond to the seventh color of the spectrum, and they are endowed with caudal appendages of exaggerated longitudinality."—Pittsburgh Press.

THE SAFETY HABIT

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, it's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

Trick of a Collector.

Collectors are—in short, they are collectors. It was a dealer in antiques not long ago who was, or professed to be, in search of new quarters. He inspected an oldtime mansion fallen upon evil days. In one room was a carved marble mantel, an imported piece, and he opened negotiations to lease the room which contained it. The lease signed, he told the landlord that he desired a new mantelpiece put in in place of the old one. The landlord, of course, demurred.

"If you don't want to put in a new mantelpiece I will at my own expense," replied the collector.

That satisfied the landlord.

The fine marble mantelpiece was accordingly replaced by a cheap and snowy horror and the carved antique carefully taken down and carted to the collector's shop, set up there to admirable advantage and eventually sold to somebody who could afford to pay the very stiff price asked for it. As for the room with its new chimney decoration, the collector cannily contrived to sublet it.—New York Post.

An Unearned Assist.

"One day while I was catching for the Dallas (Tex.) team," said Claude Berry recently, "a runner on first started to steal second. I pegged toward the base, but our pitcher—Walker—had moved out of the box after he delivered the ball and walked right into the throw.

"The ball hit Walker on top of the head, and as Walker dropped to the ground the ball bounded high in the air. The runner had reached second by that time and, not seeing the ball in play, raced for third. But our shortstop saw the ball, caught it as it came down and whipped it to third in time to put out the runner.

"The official scorer credited three men with an assist. He gave me an assist because I had made the original throw, he gave one to the pitcher because his head had deflected the ball to the shortstop, and, of course, he gave one to the shortstop for making the throw to third."—Exchange.

BULGARIA INVADED BY ALLIED FORCES; STRUMNITZA TAKEN

FRENCH AND BRITISH TROOPS FROM SALONIKI BEGIN OPERATIONS WITH UNEXPECTED ZEAL.

SERBIANS BEING HELPED BY COLD, WINTRY WEATHER

Rains Set In and Impede Movement of Austro-Germans, Which at Best, Must Be Slow—Teuton's Advance Against Riga Capturing Prisoners.

London, Oct. 19. — Strumnitza in Bulgaria has been occupied by the allied armies of Great Britain, France and Serbia, according to official advices from Saloniki telegraphed by the Reuter correspondent at Athens.

London, Oct. 19.—The allied forces from Saloniki have begun operations against the Bulgarians with unexpected zeal and already the Serb-Anglo-French forces have penetrated into Bulgarian territory just north of the Greek boundary and the Bulgarian stronghold of Strumnitza, according to advices received from Saloniki by Reuter's Telegraph company by way of Athens.

Although there is heavy fighting on the eastern fronts, the Austro-German and Bulgarian invasions of Serbia and the efforts of the British and French generals to bring help to their little ally before it is too late, continue to occupy the chief attention of the people of the belligerent countries.

Weather Helps Serbiants.

The Serbians are being helped by the weather which is cold and winterlike. The rains have set in and are impeding the movement of troops and guns, which at the best, must be slow, over what answer for roads in the Balkan states.

The Germans, however, claim to have taken the heights south of Belgrade, while along the Danube the army of General von Gallwitz is pushing the Serbians back.

The Bulgarians also lay claim to a a rapid advance into Macedonia, although the French are already reported to be in contact with them at Glevgeli, while both the French and British continue to land troops at Saloniki.

Neither Russians nor Italian assistance has yet developed, but the Italians have begun a more vigorous offensive along their frontier and have captured Pregasina, an important advanced point of the fortified Riva group on Lake Garda. This will be of indirect aid to Serbia, preventing as it does, the movement of any more Austrian troops from that frontier.

Germans March on Riga.

The Germans have taken the offensive south of Riga and forced the Russians out of their positions, capturing a large number of prisoners and some guns. On the rest of the eastern front the offensive remains in the hands of the Russians who are attacking west of Dvinsk, in the center and to the south of the Pripet river.

On the whole, it appears to observers here as if the Germans were satisfied merely to hold their present line except in the north, where they have made repeated attempts to take Dvinsk. This would mean the fall of Riga and would compel the Russians to withdraw behind the Dvina river. This ambition has already cost the Germans many thousands of men but they keep on trying, first in the north, then in the south and then on the Dvinsk front. At present their attacks are developing the greatest force in the north.

BRITAIN NEEDS 3,000,000 MEN

Recruiting Director Says If England Raises this Number Germany Will Consider Fighting Fruitless.

London, Oct. 18. — "Great Britain needs 3,000,000 more men by spring." This declaration was made by Brigade General Sir Eric Swayne, director of recruiting in the northern command, in a speech at Hull. General Swayne estimated that Germany still has 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 men between the ages of 18 to 45 and that therefore it was useless to talk about wearing out Germany.

In the spring, said he, Germany would lose more men than the Allies, which would balance the numbers of the Allies and the central powers, but if Great Britain should raise 3,000,000 additional men, Germany probably would recognize that it would be fruitless to continue.

For Miners' Peace Conference.

El Paso, Texas, Oct. 18.—The stage has been set for a peace conference which may end the Arizona copper miners' strike.

The conference will be different from the usual labor mediation. It will be held 200 miles from the scene of the strike, in a city to which the mine managers fled for fear of violence. The strikers are represented by a committee selected by the mine owners from a list of names submitted by the miners. Only one of the members of the committee is a miner.

COURT MARTIAL FOR LITTLE

FAILED TO INSPECT PROPERLY SUBMARINE K-2, IS CHARGE.

Trial of American Rear Admiral Ordered by Secretary Daniels—Court to Meet at Boston.

Washington, Oct. 18. — Secretary Daniels has ordered the trial by court martial of Rear Admiral William N. Little, retired, on "charges involving neglect and careless methods in the conduct of his duties while inspector of machinery at the Fore River Shipbuilding company, Quincy, Mass., in connection with the construction of the submarine K-2.

Court Members Named.

The court will meet at the Boston navy yard Oct. 18 and will be composed of Rear Admirals Fiske, Helm, Parks, Worthington, Gleaves and Dunn and Paymaster General Cowie, with Lieutenant Commander A. W. Johnson as judge advocate.

"The action of the department in this case," says the statement issued by Secretary Daniels, "of ordering the trial by general courtmartial of an officer who has been retired after attaining the highest naval rank, on charges relating to duties performed prior to retirement, is somewhat radical and arrests attention.

Demands Careful Inspection.

"It can be accounted for only as an evidence of the department's determination that the inspection of ships under construction for the navy shall be conducted with the greatest care and thoroughness.

"The K-2 was accepted in January, 1914, and troubles with her storage batteries have developed since that time, navy officials say."

CRUISER SUNK OFF FINLAND

Naval Battle Between Russian and German Warships Has Occurred Belief—Zeppelin Raids Coast.

SECOND GERMAN SHIP SUNK.

London, Oct. 18.—Dispatches to the evening newspapers here say that a second German torpedo boat was sunk by the British submarine E-19 near Faxe.

London, Oct. 16.—War's interest turned for the moment from land to sea. Copenhagen reports told of the sinking by a British submarine of a German destroyer, after a battle with a cruiser and two destroyers. The cruiser and remaining destroyer fled. The action took place in the Sound, a narrow strait between Denmark and Sweden.

At the same time, a Stockholm dispatch told of a sea battle in the Gulf of Finland off Porkala peninsula, 20 miles southwest of Helsingfors, in which one cruiser was reported sunk and another badly damaged.

It is presumed that the action was between German and Russian warships.

No details of the engagement were received.

The account of the British-German naval battle from Copenhagen, says:

Craft Moved in Circles.

"The German craft moved in circles to avoid the attack of the submarine, which was bombarded heavily. This continued for some time until the submarine lodged a torpedo in the destroyer, which sank with a terrific explosion. The other German warships are said to have retreated.

"A sharp lookout from the Danish coast is being kept, but no survivors have been found."

VILLA'S CHIEF GENERAL DEAD

LONDON, ENRAGED BY LATEST ZEPPELIN ATTACK, PROPOSES RAID ON TEUTON CITIES.

Night Attack Is by Far the Most Costly In Human Life of Any Made by German Airships in England Thus Far.

TOLL OF AIR RAID.

	Killed.	Injured.

Male civilians	27	64
Women	9	30

Total losses to date in air raids over England:

Killed	177
Wounded	463

London, Oct. 16.—The proposal of replying to German air raids by "bombing his sleeping towns as he bombs ours" received an enthusiastic indorsement at a mass meeting held in the great hall of the Cannon street hotel in the financial district of London.

Lord Willoughby De Broke and William Joynson-Hicks, members of parliament, were the principal speakers at the meeting.

"We are here," said Lord Willoughby De Broke, "to urge upon the government that they have got to take steps to stop the kind of thing that has just happened. The only way to do is to treat them as they treat us. Oherwise they will continue in their policy while we sit still and suffer and become the laughing stock of Europe."

Would Stop Zeppelin Raids.

Joynson-Hicks made a demand for reprisals which was couched in more lurid language:

"Let the kaiser be made to realize what it means for his own people to be subjected, as we have been subjected, to cold-blooded butchery in the dead of night and there will be a demand from one end of Germany to the other to stop the butchery in England in order that they may be safe.

"We must prepare to send 200 machines, at the very least, circling over Cologne, Coburg and other German towns in order that the Germans may be made to realize the destruction they wrought last night and on other nights in our midst."

ITALY TO FLOAT LOAN IN U. S.

Arrange to Place Issue of $25,000,000 One-Year's Notes to Pay For Supplies.

New York, Oct. 18.—Announcement has been made that the Italian government has arranged to place an issue of $25,000,000 one-year notes in the United States. This will be the first direct loan negotiated here by Italy since the beginning of the war and it will be used in payment for the heavy purchases of war and general supplies now being made by the government in this country. Heretofore these have been largely paid for through London.

The notes will have convertible bond privileges and, although not definitely announced, it is thought they will bear about 6 per cent interest.

Slavs Bend German Line.

London, Oct. 18.—The Russian attacks in the east have bent the long Austro-German line into the shape of an enormous bow, now stretched to the danger point by the Slav gains to the south in Galicia and to the north around Dvinsk. Berlin admits the Russians have broken through the German lines before Dvinsk "to the width of a battalion," but asserts the attacks further south were repulsed with heavy losses. General Zupelli, the Italian minister of war, has left Rome for the front.

GRAHAM WHITE IS EXECUTED

FAMOUS AVIATOR REPORTED SHOT AS GERMAN SPY.

Wife Is Said To Have Been Given Ten-Year Sentence As His Accomplice.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 19.—Graham White, aviator, is reported to have been shot in the Tower of London as a German spy, and that his wife is reported to have been given a ten-year sentence as his accomplice, in a letter received by a Winnipegger from his sister, a Winnipeg girl who is nursing in London in a military hospital.

The letter follows:

"Every one believes that the unknown German spy, shot in the Tower of London, was none other than Graham White, the aviator, and that his accomplice, who got ten years, was his wife, Mrs. Graham White. No one seems to have heard of them since the trial. Before that the papers were full of information about both. You know, of course, that Graham White was of German descent and that his wife was German born and bred. Everyone seems to believe it over here."

Incidentally the British government has persistently refused to divulge the names of either the man executed or the woman sent to jail for ten years.

15 DEAD IN RAILROAD WRECK

Message Says Coach Sank End Down Into Twelve Feet of Sand and Water—Carried Women

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 18.—At least 15 persons were killed and many were injured when motor train No. 579 on the Union Pacific railroad plunged down an embankment near Randolph, Kan. A washout caused the accident. One of the cars on the train was submerged in Fancy creek, a local stream, and most of the dead were drowned.

According to a message from Randolph the wreck was caused by the washing out of the abuttment of the bridge across Fancy creek. As a result of heavy rains the stream was running bankful.

SERB PRINCE NEARLY TAKEN

Alexander Personally Directs Defense of Belgrade, Leaving Only as Hungarians Enter.

Amsterdam, via London, Oct. 18.—Crown Prince Alexander of Serbia narrowly escaped capture when Hungarian troops entered Balgrade, according to a Bucharest dispatch to the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung.

The dispatch pays high tribute to the prince's bravery in personally directing the defense of the city up to the last moment and not leaving until the Hungarians were entering.

Several of the prince's staff officers were captured and others were killed.

ROUMANIA REMAINS NEUTRAL

Cabinet Makes Announcement After Going Over War Situation—German U-Boats at Varna.

Bucharest, Wednesday, Oct. 18.—The cabinet after again going over the war situation made a pronouncement in favor of Roumania maintaining neutrality. All necessary military precautions have been taken on each of Roumania's frontiers. The presence of two German submarines at Varna, Bulgaria's chief seaport on the Black Sea, has been confirmed.

British Recruiting up to Civilians.

London, Oct. 18.—Recruiting is to be taken entirely out of the hands of the military authorities and entrusted exclusively to civilian organizations. This, in a nutshell, is the scheme by which the Earl of Derby, director of recruiting for the army, hopes to secure a sufficient number of voluntary enlistments to render recourse to conscription unnecessary. He will describe the new system at a private conference with the parliamentary recruiting committee and the joint labor recruiting board.

CONTINENTAL ARMY 400,000 STRONG, IS PLAN OF GARRISON

CITIZEN RESERVE, A REGULAR ARMY OF 140,000 AND MILITIA OF 125,000 WOULD GIVE U. S. FORCE OF 650,000.

PROGRAM FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE IS COMPLETED

Proposes Total Expenditure on Army and Navy Next Year of About $400,000,000—Secretary Daniels' Naval Construction Program Is Approved.

PLAN FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

NAVY.

Five-year program — 10 dreadnaughts, 6 battle cruisers, 70 submarines, 50 destroyers, 10 scout cruisers, host of auxiliary craft.

First year—2 dreadnaughts, 2 battle cruisers, 25 coast submarines, 5 seagoing submarines, 12 destroyers, 3 scout cruisers.

ARMY.

Regulars, 140,000 men; continental army, 400,000; increased national guard.

AVIATION.

Two new detachments.

EXPENDITURES—1916.

Estimated at $400,000,000.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The administration program for national defense to be recommended to the forthcoming session of Congress, proposing a total expenditure on the army and navy next year of about $400,000,000, is practically completed.

Secretary Garrison's plan, approved by the President, calls for an increase of $75,000,000 in the war department's annual appropriation to be used for augmenting the regular army to 140,000 men and the creation of a new continental army of 400,000 men, which, together with the militia of 125,000, would give the United States a military force in time of need of 665,000.

$500,000,000 For Navy.

Approval also was given to the proposal of Secretary Daniels and the general board of the navy for a five-year naval construction program to cost $500,000,000, giving the navy 10 new dreadnaughts and six battle cruisers, as well as more than 70 submarines, 50 destroyers, 10 scout cruisers and a host of auxiliary ships.

Discuss Number of Ships.

Secretary Daniels and members of the general board were in conference until late at night, discussing the exact number of ships to be recommended for the first year and a scheme for equalizing the expenditures over the five-year period.

The program for the first year, which seemed likely of adoption, called for two battle cruisers, two dreadnaughts, 25 coast submarines, 5 seagoing submarines, 12 destroyers, three scout ships and 8,000 increase in personnel.

Secretary Garrison has carefully guarded his plan for strengthening the military establishment and organizing a great continental army for defense.

The program proposes:

First—Regular army 140,000 men, an increase of more than 50,000 men in the present establishment.

Second—A continental army, 400,000 strong, enlisted for six years for service within the continental United States. These men would serve two months a year for the first three years with the colors, undergoing a period of intensive training. The remaining three years they would be on furlough, subject to call in time of need.

Increases in Army.

Behind this army would be the national guard, now some 125,000 strong, but whose numbers might be substantially augmented by the organization of the continental army. The plans contemplate the transfer of such National guard officers and men as desire it into the continental army, and more liberal treatment of the guardsmen would be urged, and an increase of these state forces encouraged in every possible way.

Increases in the regular establishment contemplated are:

Infantry—Ten regiments. Field artillery—Four regiments. Coast artillery—Fifty-two companies. Engineer corps—Fifteen companies.

Aviation corps—Two detachments.

All of these new commands would be organized at peace strength. Adequate supplies of small arms and field guns and howitzers and of reserve ammunition for the enlarged establishment would be sought.

Heaviest Fighting in West.

London, Oct. 18.—The western front was the scene of the heaviest fighting. The Germans are battering fiercely at the French and English lines in the effort to stop the Allies' advance to counter-attacks. In the Vosges, the Germans have wrested from the French some of the ground previously won, but in Lorraine the French have recaptured trenches held by the Germans since October, and have also repulsed the kaiser's troops around Hartman-Wellerkopf in the Vosges.

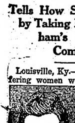
WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumorous growth and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. Resch, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

SERENADERS IN HARD LUCK

Princeton Students Meant Well, but Evidently It Was Not Their Night to Make a "Hit."

One night not long ago four Princeton boys went gayly forth to serenade two belles of the town. Arrived at the house of the fair ones, they took their stand under the correct window, as they thought, and for some time made the night more or less melodious.

They were just preparing to leave when a door opened and the jolly old father of the girls appeared. Had it been light they might possibly have seen a twinkle in his eye.

"Boys," said he, "we are much obliged. That is, I am much obliged, for I happen to be alone tonight. I am sorry to say that the family's in New York, but I thank you for coming. Maybe if you come again you'll have better luck. But in the name of old Princeton, boys, if you do come when the girls are here, don't play to the bathroom window!"

Weather Signs.

"Husks are very thick on the corn, and it looks as if we would have a long, cold winter," said the weather sharp.

"There's another sign which is more convincing to me than the thick cornhusks," replied his neighbor.

"And what is that?"

"The thin lining on my winter overcoat."

HARD ON CHILDREN

When Teacher Has Coffee Habit.

"Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others.

A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously.

"One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation.

"I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room.

"When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavour, and nourishing.

"In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer.

"I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

State News in Brief

Doings of Last Few Days Throughout Minnesota Condensed for Hasty Perusal.

Winnebago.—The Grimes Shorthorn sale here was a great success.

Rosemount.—Mrs. Catherine McCarthy, 98 years old, died here at the home of her son, P. H. McCarthy.

Mankato.—Andrew Peterson, living near Amboy, threshed 274 bushels of winter wheat from seven and a half acres, which is about 36½ bushels to the acre.

Winona.—Three Winona men were rescued after having stood ankle deep in water on a submerged wing dam in the Mississippi river in a driving rain for ten hours.

White Earth.—At a school meeting held in district No. 112, which includes the village of White Earth, the proposition to bond the district, to secure funds for the erection of adequate school buildings, was voted down by the non-progressive faction of the district and the meeting ended in disorder.

Windom.—Roscoe, little son of Roy Silliman, was so badly burned while making a bonfire with other children that he died in a few hours. He carried a can of gasoline to the pile of sticks which were to be burned, and spilled some of it upon his clothing. When he poured the oil on the fire the blaze communicated to his clothing and he was wrapped in flames.

Elmore.—A special agent of the North-Western Railroad company has, after three months of work, with a second detective and the officers of Faribault county, run down and caused the arrest of eight persons now or formerly employed by the company in this village. Many shortage reports were sent to the company on shipments to points in Iowa passing through Elmore.

Thief River Falls.—A picture of a woman, thumb marked, faded and yellow, but which a gray and bent man refused to part with, promises to be the means to reveal the life tragedy ended with his suicide here. Every mark of identification had been removed from the clothing. There was nothing in the pocket but the photograph. It was made apparently years ago by Rhode & Schultz of Chicago.

Duluth.—That the seamen's act, which will go into effect November 4, be suspended for sixty days to allow the lake vessels to care for the huge crops which must be moved eastward, was the gist of a resolution adopted by the public affairs committee of the Commercial club at a meeting held here. If the law is enforced, it was contended in the resolution, it will tie up boats and leave all the grain remaining to be moved after November 4 at this end of the lakes.

Duluth.—"If you wish to make people see the advantages of the gospel you have to do as other good advertisers make them realize they need your goods," said Rev. John Hoffman, pastor of the First Methodist church, who discussed "Advertising the Sunday School" at the St. Louis-Lake county Sunday school convention. More advertisements and more snap will fill the empty seats, he said. Mrs. Hobart of St. Paul discussed methods of interesting children in missionary work.

Duluth.—When Violet Ray Jones, a negress, stepped from the steamer America, when it arrived from Port Arthur, Ont., she was arrested at the instance of the customs authorities, charged with attempting to smuggle opium. The officials had received a tip from Port Arthur. A search revealed 22 ounces of the drug in her corset. She is believed to be a member of a gang of smugglers who have been bringing the drug into this country from Canada. Her frequent trips aroused suspicion.

Walker, Minn. — Chippewa Indian men, women and children are baring their arms to a squad of physicians at the agency this week, in order to come in for the $18.50 annuity checks which are being issued from the Leech Lake agency office. Owing to a new ruling of the department, every Indian has to be vaccinated before he can draw his annuity check. Some of the Indians take the matter as a joke while others are remonstrating and causing not a little confusion to the work of the pay clerks.

Minneapolis.—Governors of all the federal reserve banks of the United States will meet in Minneapolis, Wednesday, Oct. 20. It will be the first meeting of the governors outside Washington, except a conference in Chicago in June. "We will be able to show the governors a remarkable situation," Governor Theodore Wold of the ninth district federal reserve bank, Minneapolis, said. "We have an enormous crop to finance, yet the bank deposits of the city are the largest ever known and there is a loaning power on the part of the commercial banks here of $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 that is not yet utilized. Money rates are low. I do not recall a like situation in my experience."

Duluth.—Former President William H. Taft will lecture in Duluth on the evening of Dec. 16 under auspices of the Collegiate alumnae and will spend that entire day here, leaving that night for the Twin Cities. While in Duluth, the former president will be the guest of Thomas S. Wood, a classmate of Henry W. Taft, a brother of the former president.

Duluth.—A firm dealing in wholesale dairy products has shipped a carload of creamery butter to Liverpool, and has orders for a large amount to go forward as fast as it can be assembled.

CHEAP BUILDINGS HELD DANGEROUS

WORKS ADVOCATES STATE SUPERVISION OVER INSURANCE POLICIES IN MINNESOTA.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

Direct state supervision over every fire insurance policy issued on property within Minnesota is advocated by S. D. Works, insurance commissioner, in a report made by him to the efficiency and economy commission. Mr. Works asks that all policies be submitted to his department for approval, not only to prevent discrimination in the matter of rates, but also "as a wholesome check on over-insurance." In this connection he points out that over-insurance inevitably increases fire hazard, through the reward it offers possible incendiaries.

The insurance commissioner's communication was filed in response to a request addressed to all state departments by the efficiency and economy commission for suggestions. Elsewhere in his report he makes the charge that buildings of poor construction no better than firetraps are being put up widely throughout the state. He suggests that a competent inspector be added to his department to cooperate with architects and to be given authority to prevent the erection of dangerous buildings.

Pardon Refused Trio.

The state board of pardons granted three pardons and 16 commutations of sentence, but again blasted the hopes of the Columbia Heights murderers, Orlin Kalderwit, John Kolb and Charles Hammon. Their application, continued from a previous meeting, was denied. The three men were sent to Stillwater May 16, 1905. Kalderwit for life and each of the others for 30 years, for the murder of little Freddie King. The three men held up a crowd in a Columbia Heights saloon and in the excitement one of them fired a shot which killed 9-year-old Freddie King. The trio were arrested and identified, but always have claimed that it was a case of mistaken identity.

Absolute pardons granted were as follows:

Joe Spradley, sent to the reformatory April 17 from Hennepin county for third degree burglary.

George Wilmot, sent to prison April 10, 1915, from Hennepin county for assault with intent to kill.

Edward Gordon, sent to prison Nov. 21, 1912, from Polk county for grand larceny, second degree.

Farmers' and Home-Makers' Week.

The biggest and best Farmers' and Home-Makers' week in the history of the Minnesota College of Agriculture is the aim of the committee which is now making arrangements for the week's work. An effort will be made to secure an attendance of not less than 1,500.

Similar weeks at other agricultural colleges in the country draw even larger numbers, and, with the interest which exists in Minnesota in better farming and right home-making, the people at the college of agriculture feel that 1,500 is not an impossible mark for the next Farmers' and Home-Makers' week.

The date set is January 3-8, 1916. This brings the week at a time when students of the school of agriculture are at home for the winter holidays and the large dormitories on the campus will be available for the use of those who attend the short course.

State Erects Monument.

A monument erected by the state in the cemetery here in memory of those who lost their lives in the fire of Sept. 1, 1894, which destroyed Brook Park, Hinckley and Sandstone, was dedicated. Charles E. Elmquist, state railroad and warehouse commissioner, made the principal address and the Brook Park band played. The monument is of St. Cloud granite and stands 31 feet high.

Attack Warehouse Law.

An attack on the law which went into effect Oct. 1, compelling all storage warehouses to pay $100 a year license and to assume a $50,000 bond was begun by three Duluth firms, papers being served on the railroad and warehouse commission. The firms go into court at Duluth to ask for an injunction restraining the commission from enforcing the law.

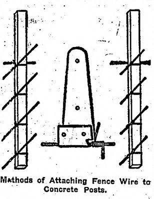
Operating conditions in the state insurance department are reviewed in a report filed by the public examiner through Deputy Examiner Swan B. Molander. The report covers the fiscal year ended July 31, last. The department, during the year, expended $85,817.49, the net cost of its operation having been $35,635.54, or an increase of $5,155.73. Fees increased only $2,506.27. The report calls attention to the fact that the last legislature considerably increased the scope of the department's work, increasing the cost of operation.

WAY TO FASTEN WIRE FENCE

It Is Not Desirable to Place Staples or Hoops in Green Concrete—Simple Plan Is Described.

There are numerous methods of attaching wire fencing to concrete posts. Some makers place staples or wire loops in the green concrete; others make holes in the posts. The former method is not desirable because the fastener cannot be located exactly where the wire of the fencing will come when the post is set in the ground; then, too, the fastener will eventually rust or break off and will thus injure the looks of the post. On the other hand, holes through the posts weaken them, and therefore this method is, in general, unsatisfactory.

The simplest, easiest, and cheapest way of fastening a wire fence to a concrete post is by encircling the post with a wire one size less than the corresponding wire in the fence proper and by twisting this wire around the strand of the fence. This is done in two ways. The fastening wire is placed around the post, twisted upon itself and then to the fence wire; or one end of the fastening wire is twisted around the fence wire, and the free end is then carried around the post and twisted on the other side to the same wire. Either plan is good, but care must be taken to draw the fastening wire tight, or else stock trying to get through the fence may raise or crush down the fencing with their heads. If any trouble is experienced, the post should be roughened at the fastening point with a cold chisel.



Methods of Attaching Fence Wire to Concrete Posts.

Expansion and contraction of the fence due to heat and cold are cared for by the tension curves or "kinks" in the woven-wire fencing, and no fear may be felt in drawing the fastening wires as tight as necessary. Wooden nailing strips should never be embedded in the posts, for moisture will swell the wood and crack the concrete.

DON'T GIVE UP WHEAT CROP

Some Farmers Discouraged Because of Lateness in Getting Threshing Done—Disk Is Handy Tool.

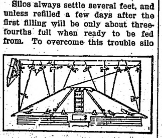
In all probability some who planned to sow wheat this fall are about to give it up owing to the lateness of the season in getting the threshing done. To be sure, it is better to plow early for wheat if you can, but if you cannot, then do the next best thing—plow as soon as possible. It would help in getting a good seedbed to double-disk the ground before plowing, then plow five or six inches deep and follow with disk and corrugated crusher alternately several times. The most fields now have quite a crop of weeds and grass which will tend to make air spaces in the seedbed. Wheat will not hold well through the winter in a seedbed that contains air spaces. Most people do not think of a disk as in any way connecting with compacting the ground, but it is more effective in filling in air spaces than any other tool.

What about your seed wheat? Is it good? If it isn't, better sell it and buy of someone who threshed early and has good seed. The difference in price would be well spent.

ADJUSTABLE ROOF FOR SILO

Practical Method for Overcoming Trouble Caused by Silage Settling —Snow and Rain Kept Out.

Silos always settle several feet, and unless refilled a few days after the first filling will be only about three-fourths full when ready to be fed from. To overcome this trouble silo roofs, tops and covers have been devised to allow the filling several feet above the top, so that when settling is all over the silo will be nearly full. The roof shown here is adjustable, being the recent patent of a Galesburg, Ill., inventor. The roof opens out to extend the silo upward perpendicularly when being filled. After settling, this roof can be folded up to make a closed top that sheds rain and keeps out snow. Independently elevatable sections, one of them having a cap attached, are locked together.



Adjustable Silo Roof.

Going It Too Hard

We are inclined nowadays to "go it too hard;" to overwork, worry, eat and drink too much, and to neglect our rest and sleep. This fills the blood with uric acid. The kidneys weaken and then it's a siege of backache, dizzy, nervous spells, rheumatic pains and distressing urinary disorders. Don't wait for worse troubles. Strengthen the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

A Wisconsin Case

Frank M. Wells, Park Falls, Wis., says: "I was all crippled up with rheumatic pains in my back and limbs. I had to use crutches in getting around and at one time, I couldn't walk. Four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up all right and I have had no serious kidney trouble since."

WOMEN SUFFERERS NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness and may be despondent and irritable.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, restores health to the kidneys and is just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a fifty cent or one dollar bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

WILMINGTON DELAWARE

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 31, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam, Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Sam Iverson is the most logical candidate that the Republican party has for an opponent to Governor Hammond next year, for no Republican can give a single valid reason for not supporting him.

The Thief River Falls News-Press got out an excellent last weeks issue booming Minnesota, which is worthy of circulation in other states. The Times also got out a good paper, but not as large as the Press extra edition.

Former Congressman Frank M. Eddy will be a candidate for election as Congressman from the 6th district to succeed Congressman Lindberg, who will be one of the flock of candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor.

The American people were in deep sympathy with President Wilson this past summer, over his efforts to keep America out of war, but it appears that he was devoting more time to Galt than submarine warfare. How ever he won out all right, as Germany has promised to stop submarine warfare, and Mrs. Galt will marry him in December.

What would benefit this locality would be bridges across the Red Lake River, instead of calling it a navigable stream, but all parties seem to be agreed on one proposition, which is if the government does not want to provide for dredging it at the next session of Congress, let them pull down their fence, and give the people of this locality the same privileges that the people living on the Clearwater enjoy.

It seems to be a hard proposition for the people of this territory to agree on the way to make public im provements, but all are agreed on one proposition and that is, that the territory south of Red Lake River in eastern Pennington county have not got as good mail service as they had eight years ago, as all mail now has to go by way of Rhoda both going and coming without regard to how long it takes for it to reach its destination.

MANY SETTLERS ARRIVING

Many settlers from the southern part of this state and adjoining states are arriving in Pennington county this fall and locating in the vicinity of Goodridge. During the past week six families arrived with cars of stock, machinery and household goods and went east on the electric line. Four went to Goodridge and two to Silverton. Since September 18th, fourteen cars of effects of new settlers have been taken east on the electric line. By figuring five people to the family we find that this means an increase in population of 70 for eastern Pennington. The fact that these people brought with them many cars of good stock shows that they are good farmers and the kind that Pennington county wants. Among the stock that they brought with them was one car of young stock, one of horses and one of horses and cattle. It is estimated that at least one hundred farmers will locate in the eastern part of the county this fall.—T. R. Falls Times.

If it is the ambition of Mrs. Galt to marry the President of the United States, we would advise her not to put off the wedding later than March 4th, 1917, as politics are uncertain.

Some of the people who have returned from the Dakotas, where they have been threshing, report that lawlessness "boot-legging" and "blind piggers" are certainly numerous in that country. It appears that the "boot leggers" buy their "squirrel whiskey" at the rate of 50 pints for six dollars, put up and labelled. They sell it to the thrashers at $1.00 a pint, but occasionally one of them gets caught, and boards eight months in jail at the expense of the tax payers. Anyone who refuses to cast his ballot in favor of a condition of this kind for the state of Minnesota is promptly accused of being opposed to REFORM.

AS TO MISTAKES

The people who make mistakes are the people who lead the world.

The perfect people work for them, running errands and counting columns of figures.

Only trifles are always true. Every great and serious truth has an obverse side which is also true.

Prof. William James was the greatest psychologist of our time, but the best he could do in defining the truth was this:

"The truth is simply what will work."

Whatever is may not necessarily be right, in spite of Pope; but whatever is is. That is the main point. And it is every man's job to accept the isuess and get down to business.

Most men have the wrong location, have taken up the wrong profession, have failed to improve the opportunities for education they had in their youth, have not married the woman ideally suited to them, have not the money, influence and position they need to show what's in them.

And they are of two classes. One class sits around the loafing places and tells its woes and whistles and pities itself. The other plucks up, forgets it, takes the situation as it is and makes the best of things.

The genuine is not the man who never made mistakes, who had his chances thrust upon him, who was endowed and all that; he is the man who had no chance and was not gifted; but who took the raw material of life and fate as he found it and made something fine out of it.

The only perfect person you will ever meet is the perfect fool.

The faultless—they are the biggest frauds of us all.—Ex.

Sensitive Measurement.

Minute bendings of a steel bar three feet long and three and one-half feet in diameter are accurately measured by a curious but very sensitive device of the United States bureau of standards. The bar, supported at each end, has a small mirror fixed at its center, and above this is a frame holding another mirror partially silvered. As the light of a sodium burner is reflected in each mirror the lower mirror shows a series of black and yellow concentric rings. A very small weight, even that of a pin, deflects the bar and causes the circles to expand outward. Each circle indicates a movement of one hundred-thousandth of an inch, the pressure of a finger, forming five or more new circles, showing a bending of one twelfth-thousandth of an inch.

The Kangaroo.

In the course of a long stay in the interior of Victoria, Australia, J. G. O'Donohue gathered conclusive evidence, which he presents in the Victorian Naturalist, that the mother kangaroo, when hard pressed on a long pursuit, throws her young one out of her pouch. He says the young kangaroo is "sent spinning from the pouch as the mother, by her enormous leaps, imparts to it a more or less vertical motion."

Interval.

The twenty-year-old daughter of the president of one bank, director of two others and a railroad or two stood before her dressing table in a brown study. Meanwhile—

Three men, each one of whom wanted to make a loan of $100,000, paced the floor.

Her father sat inwardly fuming in the auto while a hundred business letters remained unread.

Twenty clerks paused until the work of a day could be given out.

Six cylinders, accomplishing nothing, buzzed on.

Four servants, leaving their morning's routine, rushed aimlessly about.

And the girl called: "Oh, papa, it isn't my fault. I cannot find my gloves!"—Life.

Silent Enthusiasm.

Charles Rowley, in his book, "Fifty Years of Work Without Wages," tells a story against himself. A nature enthusiast, he was climbing Snowdon and overtook an old gypsy woman. He began to dilate upon the sublimity of the scenery in somewhat gushing phrases. The woman paid no attention to him. Provoked by her irresponsiveness, he said: "You don't seem to care for this magnificent scenery?"

She took the pipe from her mouth and delivered this settler: "I enjoy it; I don't jabber."

The Family Look.

No eloquence of tongue, nothing that stands written in any book, may sway the heart as does that elusive quality the race mark in a race. And this is true less of the obvious physical aspect than of its thousand secret connotations. All the world knows the Hapsburg lip, the jaw line of the Bonapartes, the subtler marks of clanship keep their eloquence for their own. Consciously or not, each family group stands before these symbols as the small company of the learned might before some inscription on a desert ruin. Mere strokes and scratches to you and me. To the few who understand here is the key that unlocks the past.

So the family look. In the arch of an eye orbit, the curve of chin we read the signature of race. Chance imprint maybe, maybe seal of some struggle so profound as to have set our lips at this particular angle, or through dimming attenuations to perpetuate a gesture born a thousand years ago in joy or in some black agony of body or of soul!

The family look. The first we remember; the last we shall forget.—Elizabeth Robins in Harper's Magazine.

Fathers and Children.

"In the earlier years," says Pastor Charles E. Jefferson in the Woman's Home Companion, "children can be controlled by their mother, but by and by there comes a time when they begin to note the conduct of the father. No eyes are keener than the eyes of a child. He sees everything the father does. He reflects on what the father does not do. His logic is inexorable. He argues his way to conclusions which cannot be shaken.

"If his father does not pray, prayer must be unnecessary. Grown men surely know what is needed. If his father never reads the Bible then the big book can be dispensed with. Fathers know what books are most worth reading. If he does not go to church then church attendance is a pastime and not a duty, for men so old and wise as father is would not neglect church if church were of value to them."

Sea Toll of Sailors.

Intercourse between Russia and England began in the middle of the sixteenth century by the White sea. It was a hazardous and costly voyage. The crews of two of the three ships with which Richard Chancellor made his first trip in 1553 were frozen to death, Sir Hugh Willoughby among them. On his second venture, in 1556, Chancellor brought back with him a Russian ambassador, Osip Nejea. Two of the ships were never heard of again, and Edward Bonaventure, after four months at sea, was wrecked on the Scottish coast. Chancellor, many of his crew and seven Russians perished, but Osip Nejea was among the survivors, and the English lords and merchants went out in state beyond Shoreditch to welcome this "Duke of Muscovia."—London Chronicle.

Good Reason.

"You state your case very well," said the eminent attorney to the young man who sought his daughter's hand. "Suppose you take it to the court of last resort."

"What do you mean by that, sir?"

"Ask the girl, man; ask the girl!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1915. NO. 2

THE LOCAL NEWS

Peter Ramstad of Thief River Falls, was looking up real estate loans in this locality last week.

Andrew Nelson's machine will complete the threshing in the Highlanding neighborhood this week.

Gunder Stromme, the Oklee cattle buyer, was buying cattle in this neighborhood this week.

Goodridge seems to be a popular resort for balls, as they pull off about two every month.

Confirmation services were held at the Mayfield church last Sunday, which were largely attended.

We had our first snow storm of the season on Monday, but it all melted away on Tuesday, and the Indian summer again appeared.

The People's Bank of Thief River Falls took notes at 6 per cent interest at an auction sale held in the town of Norden yesterday.

Bemidji are talking of raising the amount of fines paid for drunkeness in that city, by people who raise the Indian lid, and a little h--l.

Can make you a farm loan at lowest rates. Write or see us befor you place your farm loan.

Houston & Bourdon,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

There are not a great many of the eleven towns farmers who have indulged in the luxury of an automobile, but quite a large number of them have oxomobiles.

The Red Lake River dropped about eight inches this week, which was undoubtedly occasioned by Monday's storm from the northwest, which drove the water to the eastern shore of the lake.

Joseph DuChamp has rented his farm at Mavie, and will hold a big auction sale of his stock and farm machinery on November 1st. He has a large number of good work horses to dispose of on the usual terms of auction sales.

A two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andreas Linvick, of Hickory township, was taken sick last Sunday, and the parents started for Gully with her to see a doctor on Monday, but she died before reaching there.

Karl Korstad opened up a stock of goods, in the Vaughan store at Highlanding this week, which he is selling at cut rate prices. He has a large stock of canned goods on which the labels were slightly damaged by water at the time the Thief River Falls Grocery store was destroyed by fire, which he is selling at half price.

The farmers who are compelled to make a business trip to the county seat now days find the electric line a great convenience to save their hard worked horses the long drive to Thief River Falls. The service on this line is first class, and they can be depended upon to be on time. Read the time table published in another column of this paper.

Congressman Lindberg is of the opinion that the big loan made to England and France may draw this country into the war, as the great capitalists who furnished the money may loose it should the allies loose out in the war. This being the case they will endavor to get this country to pull their chesnuts out of the fire by siding England and France.

FOR SALE: Two fine two and one-half year old steers, in prime condition, weight about 1200 lbs. each. Inquire of W. G. Hunt, Sunbeam, Minn.

We visited with some of our friends in the town of Mayfield on Sunday, and found them bitterly complaining about their present mail service, and we can not blame them, as we never heard of a dirtier package being handed out to people, than was to these people, when an order was issued to stop all of their mail two or three days at Sunbeam post office, instead of having their mail brought to them the same day that it arrived from Rhoda. There might have been an excuse for the ignoring of the people's petition, and issuing an order of this nind, if it had saved any expense to the government, but it does not, and was undoubtedly issued to favor one or two individuals.

Soup Without a Spoon.

Soup without a spoon seems even harder to negotiate than meat without a fork, and we can sympathize with the complaint recorded in the diary of Felix Platter, a young Swiss, who went to Montpellier in 1552 in order to study medicine. He lodged in the house of his professor, Catelan, one of the greatest doctors of his time, and yet, writes Platter, "we were compelled to eat our stew in the usual French fashion—that is to say, picking the meat out with our fingers and then drinking the broth. In vain we begged our hostess to let us have spoons, but not a single one was to be found in the house, the only implement on the table being a large knife fastened with an iron chain. No one here seems to have ever heard of spoons, which we at home find so useful." Montaigne was astonished when he visited Switzerland in 1580 to find that "at all meals they put on the table as many spoons as there are people present."—Westminster Gazette.

King Strang's Rise and Fall.

A kingdom was once set up on Beaver island, in northern Lake Michigan, and flourished for some years. James Jesse Strang, a prominent Mormon, had quarreled with the leaders of his church and in 1846 withdrew with a few followers to that island. Other Mormons joined the colony from time to time, and by the winter of 1848 they were sufficiently numerous to threaten control of the island. On July 8, 1850, Strang was crowned king with elaborate ceremonies. There was much controversy between the Mormons and the other inhabitants of the island, mostly fishermen. While on a visit to Detroit President Fillmore heard of this little kingdom within the domain of the United States. He sent an armed vessel to Beaver island, and King Strang was captured and tried for treason. He conducted his own defense and made such an eloquent plea that he was acquitted. In 1856 he was assassinated, and his kingdom fell with him.

The Oldest Sequoia.

The oldest sequoia is over 3,150 years of age. A family of five could have picnicked under this tree when the Greeks were building their wooden horse under the walls of Troy and Pharaoh and his army were being engulfed in the waters of the Red sea. It has been the contemporary of every famous man and event since the foggy dawn of history. While innumerable multitudes of men and women fretted their way through the dreadfully important wink or two of time that they called life this tree contented itself with getting a little thicker in the trunk and wreathing its top in more majestic foliage. Nowadays people who have made their piles, possibly in the lumber business, often motor down to look at it, and their wives gaze up among its awful branches and say, "My, how pretty!"—San Francisco Bulletin.

Buying Army Discharges.

A discharge may be purchased by a soldier who has served at least one year in the army if he is stationed within the confines of the United States. If he is serving in Alaska or anywhere outside the continental limits of the United States or if his organization has been ordered to take station outside the continental limits he cannot obtain a discharge.

The price at which a soldier may purchase his discharge, as taken from general orders No. 4, war department, Washington, D. C., Jan. 8, 1900, is as follows: "After one year's service, $120; two years, $100; three years, $90; four years, $85; five years, $80; six years, $65; seven years, $60; eight years, $55; nine years, $40; ten years, $35; eleven years, $30."—Philadelphia Press.

The Child at the Window.

Oftener than not we may tell a child's sex from the time the child spends at the window on a rainy day. Whatever the years make a woman, she is born domesticated. The little girl looks out of the window chiefly because something is happening outside, not because she wishes something would happen, and returns contentedly to her indoor interests. But, however the years thin a man's blood, he is born an open air adventurer. The little boy tires of carpet play and remains gazing at the rain and gray skies, wearying for the sun to shine.—J. J. Bell.

Queer Death Customs.

The Egyptians, believing that dead people needed the things they used when alive, sometimes killed the favorite slave and horse of the dead man. In India, for the same reason, widows were burned with the corpses of their husbands.

Elijah's Altar.

Obadiah hid "one hundred of Lord's prophets in a cave." On west end of Carmel, below the m tery, is a large cavern, partly artif where, to increase its sanctity, the family are said to have repose their return from Egypt. The "I of Sacrifice" is some eight miles land along the crest of the moun overlooking the Kishon, the w plain of Esdraelon, Jezreel and mountains of Galilee. Many chur and nationalities, not to mention dividuals, have searched the slope Carmel for the exact spot where E repaired the altar of the Lord," lecting twelve stones from the r of the neglected altar. At the ur request of an English lady thought of purchasing the site I made a careful study of the loca suggested. While we may never k the exact spot, there is a lovely l plateau not far from the summit w would fulfill every necessity of the rative and provide a matchless nat theater for this matchless event in tory.—Christian Herald.

BULGARIANS TAKE USKUP AND BLOCK ROUTE OF ALLIES

AUSTRO-GERMANS IN NORTH BEGIN MORE VIGOROUS OFFENSIVE AND CROSS DANUBE NEAR ORSOVA.

TEUTONS PAY BIG PRICE FOR EVERY MILE INVADED

Serbian Veterans, Well Entrenched in Mountains, Offer Stubborn Resistance—French Troops Fight Beside Troops of Little Ally in Southeastern Section.

London, Oct. 26.—The Bulgarians, according to their official report, have reached Uskup, an important junction on the Saloniki-Nish railway and have thus placed themselves across the route by which the Allies' re-inforcements for the Serbs would travel.

The Austro-Germans in the north have begun a more vigorous offensive and have crossed the Danube near Orsova.

This brings much nearer the linking up of the armies of the Germanic allies and those of Bulgaria, and the opening of the way through Bulgaria to Constantinople.

Success is not being achieved without heavy losses, as the Serbian veterans, well entrenched in their mountains, are offering stubborn resistence and are making the invaders pay a big price for every mile of country invaded.

French Fight Beside Serbs.

French troops are fighting beside the Serbs in the southeastern section, and reports from Athens say that other steps are being taken by the Allies to help their small partner. Additional troops are being landed at Saloniki. Bulgarian ports in the Aegean and Black sea are being bombarded and it is expected that men and munitions will be sent to Serbia by another route.

Without the active co-operation of Greece and Roumania the Allies, it is feared here will not be able to do much for some weeks.

The Russian troops who have landed at Domeness, Courland, have, according to Berlin, re-embarked. If this is so, it is probable that the landing was intended as a diversion in the hope of drawing German troops from the Riga Dvinsk regions, where very heavy fighting is in progress.

Germans Capture Illoukst.

There is no news of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's drive toward the Dvina, southeast of Riga, but northwest of Dvinsk he has made another attempt to reach the river and claims to have forced the Russians from their positions, inflicting great losses on them and taking nearly 3,000 prisoners. Illoukst, which has figured prominently in all the recent communications has been captured by the Germans.

On the rest of the eastern front the Russians continue their isolated attacks, which are designed to prevent the Germans from establishing a line of entrenchments such as they succeeded in doing before Warsaw last year after the first attempts to take the city failed.

Except for a few attacks by the Germans the fighting in the west has consisted for the most part of artillery engagements and some contests between airmen.

GERMAN CRUISER DESTROYED

Prinz Adalbert Attacked and Sunk by British Submarine Operating Near Libau.

Petrograd, via London, Oct. 25.—A British submarine operating near Libau attacked and sank a German cruiser of the Prinz Adalbert class, according to official announcement.

The Prinz Adalbert is an armored cruiser 392 feet in length and with a displacement of 8,800 tons. She carries a complement of 557 men.

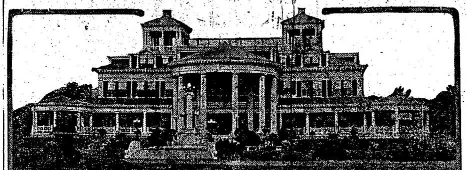
To Enforce Closing Law.

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—As a sequel to the ban on the cabaret, to rigid orders for the suppression of blind pigs and to efforts of the retail liquor dealers to get rid of unlicensed drinking places, has come an order from Mayor Nye commanding the police to enforce the Sunday closing law to the letter. Complaint was made to the mayor that some of the cafes and hotels were tilting the Sunday lid, and the cry went up during the recent county option campaign that the larger places were being permitted to sell on the quiet after hours.

U. S. Ship As Commerce Raider?

New York, Oct. 25.—Customs officials here have instituted an inquiry into a report submitted to them by E. E. Streeter, a ship broker, to the effect that the American steamer Zealandia has been fitted out as a commerce destroyer to fly the German flag. Streeter also said that he had heard that the German officers, who recently escaped from the Kronprinz Wilhelm were to be taken aboard the boat at a point off the United States coast. He added that the flag on her side had been painted out.

SUMMER WHITE HOUSE SELECTED FOR NEXT YEAR



It is decided that President Wilson, instead of returning to Cornish, N. H., next year, will spend the summer with his bride at Shadow Lawn, the home of the late John A. McCall at Long Branch, N. J. It is a magnificent estate, suitable in every way to accommodate the presidential establishment. It includes about thirty acres of beautiful lawns and terraced gardens, a lake and tennis courts. Golf links are near by.

VOICE IS HEARD ACROSS ATLANTIC

ARLINGTON, VA., TALKS WITH PARIS, FRANCE, WHILE HONOLULU ALSO LISTENS.

WIRELESS 'PHONE IS SUCCESS

American Telephone and Telegraph Company Receives Cable Message Saying That Words Were Distinctly Heard by French

New York, Oct. 23.—Arlington, Va., has just talked by wireless telephone with Paris, France. Honolulu also heard the operator talking from Arlington.

Announcement that the human voice had been successfully projected across the Atlantic was made on behalf of John J. Carty, chief engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, at the company's office here. Later Mr. Carty telephoned from Chicago, confirming the announcement.

To B. B. Webb, a telephone engineer, fell the honor of being the first man to span with his voice the space between the old world and the new.

Wireless Signals Paris.

The wireless snapped out the signal and soon there came back a response. Awaiting word from Mr. Webb at the Paris end of the wireless radiation were H. E. Shreeve and A. M. Curtis, other engineers, and a group of French officers listening with especially designed apparatus.

Webb, at Arlington, had a transmitting instrument, but no receiving apparatus. He knew, therefore, that he would have to wait for the cable to confirm the success or failure of the experiment.

"Hello, Shreeve!" he shouted into the mouthpiece.

"Hello, Shreeve!"

"Hello" Heard by French.

He then began to count: "One, two, three, four; one, two, three, four. Goodbye."

Late in the afternoon the expected cable message came. It was addressed to the company here and said that Webb's "hellos" and "good-byes" had been distinctly heard by the engineers and French army officers in Paris and that portions of his test figures had also been picked up. At about the same time there came a message from Honolulu, saying that Webb's talk had been understood.

ELLA FLAGG YOUNG TO QUIT

Superintendent of Chicago Schools Blames Newspapers For Their "Persistent Discussions."

Chicago, Oct. 23. — Ella Flagg Young, for six years superintendent of schools, announced that she would resign Dec. 8.

In announcing that she would not seek reappointment, the superintendent blamed "persistent discussion of the superintendency of schools in the daily newspapers" for her determination to quit.

Mrs. Young, who is 70 years old, has been active in school affairs since 1862 when she began teaching grade schools.

Pope to Hold Consistory.

Rome, via Paris, Oct. 25.—Although Pope Benedict did not wish to hold a consistory during the war, he has now changed his original intention as the Italian members in the Sacred college are in fewer numbers than the foreign cardinals. There is mention of the creation of French, German and perhaps Austrian cardinals, but otherwise the cardinals created will be Italians. It is asserted that the pontiff's allocution on the occasion will be the most important exposition of his views on peace that he has yet made.

Marauders Start Four Fires.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 25.—Marauders, concluding a campaign of arson across two states, started four fires in a big hop ranch across the American river from here and did damage estimated at $35,000. Fire fighters found telephone wires cut and pumps put out of commission and were threatened with death when seeking aid. The hop kilns and picking plant were destroyed. The press rooms and warehouses were saved. The ranch is one of several owned by the firm of Horst Brothers.

WORLD WIDE TRADE CAMPAIGN

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE TO AID U. S. MERCHANTS.

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to Double Staff—Large Appropriations Needed.

Washington, Oct. 26. — Elaborate plans for a world-wide campaign for trade by the United States are revealed in the estimates of the department of commerce expenditures for the next fiscal year, to be presented to congress this winter. Through the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, the department proposes to aid American merchants and manufacturers in taking advantage of wonderful opportunities now before them and in preparing for the struggle for trade supremacy which commercial officials are certain will follow the European war.

For Commercial Preparedness.

Reorganization of the staff in Washington and an increase to about twice its present extent of the foreign commercial service are contemplated, according to a statement discussing the new estimates made public by Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the bureau. Appropriations will be sought to provide for extensive investigations of commercial conditions abroad and for tariff inquiries by the cost of production division.

BRYAN MAN IS FOR WILSON

Senator John W. Kern of Indiana Experiences Change of Sentiment—Favors Preparedness.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Senator John W. Kern of Indiana, leader of the senate, has visited the president to announce to him that he and Indiana had been for the preparedness program all the time.

Two weeks ago Senator Kern was dead against the program as wasteful, unnecessary and dangerous. It seems as though Senator Kern had his wires crossed and did not realize that the president was for the program.

He has now squared himself handsomely.

Such sudden collapses of opposition give the president hope that the program will be agreed to without prolonged debate and without partisan acrimony.

Senator Kern was a principal prop of the Bryan pacifists. His defection indicates that Mr. Bryan will have to confine his efforts to the house, where he has a bunch of noisy followers of the Tavenner type. They probably will muster enough votes to delay but not defeat action.

GERMANY CONTROLS FOOD

Federal Government Decides to Assume Responsibility for Price and Supply of Victuals.

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The German federal government has decided to assume control of the price and supply of victuals throughout Germany. Up to the present time the state provincial authorities had been considered competent to handle the food situation.

The German government considers it necessary, the Overseas News agency says, to equalize the position of the various sections of the empire as to the distribution and the price of victuals, which are abundant, but under different conditions in the various states and provinces of Germany.

Wilson and Fiancee at Church.

Washington, Oct. 25. — President Wilson attended church with his fiancee, Mrs. Norman Galt, for the first time since their engagement was announced. They were accompanied by Miss Margaret Wilson. Word of their coming brought out such a crowd that many had to be turned away from the church.

Millionaire's Son Attacks Girl.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—A mysterious attack on Miss Anna Lamree, leading woman of a burlesque show, was revealed by the detention at the detective bureau of Herbert Elbert. Miss Lamree, who was attacked in her hotel room Wednesday night or early Thursday morning, is at a hospital with her head crushed and her right side paralyzed. It is said that she has slight chance of recovery. Elbert is said to be a grandson of Charles Smith, millionaire piano manufacturer, and stepson of Dr. E. J. Schwandt.

TEXANS THREATEN TO INVADE MEXICO

READY TO "TAKE IT OUT ON GREASERS" AT NEXT INSTANCE OF BANDITRY.

CONSPIRACY OF AMERICANS?

The Administration Members Believe There Is More to Outbreaks Along Border Than Mere Lawlessness on the Part of Bandits.

Brownsville, Texas, Oct. 23.—Brownsville has "declared war" on Mexico.

One hundred citizens of this place have announced their intention of crossing the river at the next instance of banditry and "taking it out on the greasers."

The situation is the tensest since the initial Madero revolution. Military and civil officials realize the difficulty of restraining the thoroughly aroused citizens and fear international complications.

A mass meeting of citizens was held behind closed doors. The import of the meeting is not known, further than that it has to do with reprisals for the two recent bandit raids near Olmito and Ojo De Agua, which resulted in the death of six Americans and the wounding of 11 others.

Bandits Gather Forces. Americans May Be at Fault.

It became an open secret at the capital in the course of the day that many administration members believe there is more to the outbreaks along the border than mere lawlessness on the part of a number of bandits; that the source of continued attacks may be found with Americans hostile to the recognition of Carranza and still hoping to bring about intervention.

If the outlaws now on rampage have such inspiration, it is expected the justice department will be able to run down the conspirators. "The secret service force on the border will be increased immediately—as rapidly as the department's facilities permit," was the statement following the attorney general's talk with the president.

WOMEN LOSE JERSEY FIGHT

Suffrage Is Beaten by 65,000, President Wilson's Own District Rejecting the Cause.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 21.—Suffrage was beaten in New Jersey by probably 65,000. Essex county (Newark) alone returned a majority of 14,000 the constitutional amendment to give women the ballot. President Wilson's own district went "anti." The district rejected the "cause" by a vote of 150 to 64. The town of Princeton, in which the president voted, rejected the suffrage amendment by a majority of 182.

Women Get Same Pay as Men.

London, Oct. 25.—In a statement just issued David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, announced that women 18 years of age and over engaged in munition work receive a minimum wage of one pound weekly. While doing skilled work on time or by piece women get the same pay as men, the announcement further states.

This official recognition of the right of women to receive the same pay as men for the same work is claimed as a great victory by militant suffragists.

Yaquis Occupy Naco.

Naco, Ariz., Oct. 23.—Evacuated by its Carranza garrison the town of Naco, Sonora, across the border was occupied last night by Yaqui Indians in the service of General Villa.

Firing Squad Fails to Kill Woman.

Amsterdam, Oct. 25.—The Telegraaf publishes an article from its Antwerp correspondent in which it is said that some weeks ago a French woman, Mme. Louise Frenay, was executed at Liege. The correspondent says that the act of the German firing squad was not accurate and that as in the case of Miss Edith Cavell, under similar circumstances, the commanding officer of the firing squad was obliged to put Mme. Frenay to death by shooting her through the head with his revolver.

BRITISH NURSE'S EXECUTION JUST, IS BERLIN CLAIM

DEATH OF MISS CAVELL IS EXPLAINED BY GERMAN UNDER-SECRETARY FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

WORLD-WIDE CONSPIRACY INVOLVED, HE DECLARES

Countless British, Belgian and French Soldiers Again Fighting in Ranks Who Owe Their Escape to Band Headed by English Woman, Says Teuton Official.

Berlin, via the Hague and London, Oct. 26.—Dr. Alfred F. M. Zimmerman, German under-secretary for foreign affairs, has issued an official explanation of the recent execution in Belgium of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse. He prefaced his remarks by the declaration that he had examined every jot and tittle of the evidence with the greatest care and found the verdict, though regrettable, to be just. His statement follows:

Official Explanaion Made.

"I see by the British and the American press that the shooting of an English woman and the conviction of several other women in Brussels for treason have created a great impression and that we are being severely criticised. It is indeed hard that a woman must be executed, but remember to what shall a state come which is in war if it allows to pass unnoticed a crime against the safety of its armies because committed by women. No law book in the world, least of all those dealing with war regulations, makes such a differenation and the feminine sex has but one preference, according to legal usages, namely that women in a delicate condition may not be executed. Otherwise man and woman are equal before the law and only their degree of guilt makes a difference in the sentence for the crime and its consequences.

Claims World-wide Plot.

"In the Cavell case I have reviewed the decision of the court and examined the evidence down to the smallest details. The result is so convicting and all the circumstances are so clear and convincing that no court martial in the world would have reached any other decision. For it concerns not the act of one single person, rather it concerns a well-thought-out, world-wide conspiracy which succeeded for nine months to render the most valuable services to the enemy to the disadvantage of our army. Countless British, Belgian and French soldiers now are again fighting in the ranks who owe their escape to the activity of the band now sentenced, at the head of which stood Miss Cavell.

Greatest Duties in War.

"With such a situation under the very eyes of the authorities only the utmost severity can bring relief and the government violates the most elemental duty toward the army and its safety that does not adopt the srictest measures These duties in war are greater than any other.

"I admit certainly that the motive of those convicted was not unnoble and that they acted out of love for the fatherland. But in war time one must be ready to seal one's love for the fatherland with one's blood whether one opposes the enemy in battle or whether one commits acts in its interest which justly carry with them the death penalty.

New Attempts Feared.

"If others are shown mercy it will be at the cost of our army for it is to be feared that new attempts will be made to injure us if it is believed possible escape without punishment or with the risk of only a light sentence.

"The weakness of our enemies' arguments is proved by the fact that they do not attempt to combat the justice of the sentence, but try to influence public opinion against us by false reports of the execution. It is claimed that the soldiers assigned to the execution first refused to shoot and finally fired so faultily that the officers had to kill the accused with a revolver. No word of this is true. I have the official report of the execution in which it is established that it took place entirely within established regulations and that death occurred immediately after the first salvo, as the physician present attests."

Gill Clay Factory Burns.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 25.—The Gill clay pot factory burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

May Appeal on Drug Law.

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—Data is being prepared upon which to base an appeal to the supreme court from the recent ruling of Judge Booth regarding the Harrison anti-narcotic law, the druggists in attendance at the western branch of the American Pharmaceutical association learned Judge Booth's ruling that sale of narcotics must be proved to constitute an offense under the law, and that mere possession is not a violation, was given exhaustive discussion.

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. THOMSON, 649 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Matched.

"Did you match that blue ribbon for me today, Henry?"

"Yes, love. It was just the color of the salesgirl's eyes, but they didn't have any more of the ribbon left."

For Nail in the Foot.

Horses and cattle are liable to blood poisoning from stepping on rusty nails. For such an injury apply Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh and get it into the bottom of the wound. It should kill the poison germs. Always have a bottle in your stable, because you will find different uses for it. Adv.

Ulysses Returned

By HAROLD CARTER

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Children's Day" was the idea of the superintendent of the new hospital. Old methods had been abandoned and new ones ruled. Doctor Oakley believed that in admitting the little folks of the town to the hospital grounds once a month, in charge of the matron, he would cheer up his convalescents, inspire the young people with a sense of pity, and bring contributions to the hospital.

Eli Baynes seemed a terribly old person to Dorothy and Ned, though, as a matter of fact, he was only forty. But he had returned from the West crippled with rheumatism, contracted by working in the silver mines, and after three months at the hospital he was only just beginning to regain his health.

He sat in his wheeled chair, and his eyes widened with pleasure as he saw his little friends approaching.

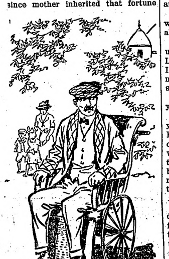
"Tell us another story, Uncle Eli," pleaded Dorothy, climbing upon his knee.

"Another story?" Eli inquired. "How many stories do you think I know?"

"Hundreds," said Dorothy promptly. "You are so old, you see. You must be nearly a hundred, aren't you, Uncle Eli?"

"Not quite so old," laughed Eli Baynes. "How are you little folks getting on at home?"

"It's just like one of your own fairy tales, Uncle Eli," said Ned. "Ever since mother inherited that fortune we've been hitting it up, as Mrs. Smith, next door, says. We've had the painters in and the plumbers, and the plasterers, and the—the chairs have been up—up—"



Felt a Mad Impulse to Flee.

"Upholstered," said Uncle Eli.

"And I only wish my papa could come home and see us now," said Dorothy.

"You don't remember your papa?" questioned the sick man.

"No, Uncle Eli. But mother does. And when you get well she's going to invite you to come and see us, and perhaps get you a job as our gardener."

"That will be fine," laughed Eli. "Well, what story shall I tell you today?"

"You promised to tell us about Ulisha," said Ned.

"Not Ulisha—Ulysses, my boy. Well, sit down and I'll see how much of it I can remember. Ulysses was one of the Greeks, you know. He was a very strong man, and he had a beautiful wife named Penelope, whom he left to go to the wars. He was away ten years, because that war lasted ten years."

"His wife must have missed him," said Dorothy.

"Why, I'm not sure whether she did or not," said Eli, "because, you see, although the story doesn't admit it, I'm afraid Ulysses was somethting of a waster. As far as I can make out, he never did very much honest work. He lived in a rather doubtful sort of way. He was a pirate."

"When I grow up I'm going to be a pirate," said Ned. "No, I won't though. I'm going to chase pirates."

"Much better, Ned. Well, then, this Ulysses went off to the wars and left Penelope behind him. When the wars were over he came back, and that's where his real troubles began. According to his story he got caught in a bad wind, and his ship drifted around for ten years more before he got home. But that's only his tale, and lots of married men tell much the same sort of yarn to their wives, only they can't lay it on as thick nowadays. Anyway, even Ulysses admitted that there were some ladies concerned in his troubles, and he laid them particularly to a Miss Circe. But that won't interest you.

"Well, just about twenty years after Ulysses started for the wars he came home. You can guess he needed a shave and brush-up a good deal, and nobody recognized him except his old dog. And what do you suppose was worrying him, Dorothy?"

"I guess he wondered what there was for dinner," said the little girl.

Eli nodded. "No doubt," he answered. "But that didn't prey upon his mind so much as the knowledge that he hadn't acted quite as a married man should. He was scared lest his wife had thought him dead and got married again."

"Mrs. Smith's husband left her, and she didn't get married again," said Dorothy. "She wanted to, though."

"So back Ulysses came in the guise of a beggar and nobody knew him, and there was a whole gang of men after Penelope. But Penelope was true to Ulysses, and she kept putting them off, and—"

"There's mamma!" shouted the little girl. "I told you I was going to bring her to see you, Uncle Eli."

She sprang to her feet, and, with the little boy, raced across the green toward a sweet-looking lady who was strolling quietly in their direction under the shade of the hospital trees.

Eli Baynes sat rigid in his chair. Then he looked wildly about him. He had begged the superintendent to get him a propelling chair, so that he could move from place to place, but as yet his desire had not been complied with. Now he felt a mad impulse to flee.

He sat up and gingerly put one foot to the ground. He must escape at all hazard. To his surprise he found that a certain measure of flexibility had returned to his limbs; perhaps it was the will at work on the body. He put out his other leg, and for the first time in months Eli Baynes stood erect, without support, and straightened his twisted limbs and muscles.

Absorbed in this effort, he had not seen how quickly the three were approaching him again. As he was about to attempt the walk to the hospital he found himself confronted by the mother of the two children.

One glance into his face, a little gasp of fear, and Lucy Baynes was weeping on her husband's neck, her arms about him.

"Eli," she sobbed. "Oh, my dear, why didn't you come home to me after all these years?"

"You told me never to come back until I had made a man of myself, Lucy," said Eli doggedly. "I tried—I tried my hardest for ten years. I made a little fortune in the mines. I sent you everything I had."

"You, Eli? That legacy was really your money?"

He nodded. "And I did mean to ask you if you would take me back again. But I couldn't bear the thought of coming back to you a cripple. So I went to the hospital here. And I thought that if—if you had met somebody whom you cared for more, I had no right to stand in your way. I tried to find out, Lucy."

"There couldn't be," she sobbed.

"I didn't know they were my children at first. Then I came to look for Children's day, when I could see them. And when I got well I meant to go quietly away, if you cared for somebody else—"

"Oh, my dear, I have loved you always," she answered.

It was a happy party that gathered at the new house that night, and Ned and Dorothy, still open-eyed in wonder, had hardly realized that "Uncle Eli" was to be their father.

"Tell us some more about Ulysses, Uncle Eli," persisted Ned, climbing upon his knee.

"Why," said Eli in embarrassment, "it ended happily—very happily. Only I guess there was a lot more in Ulysses' life than ever got into his story."

GREAT VARIETY OF BIRD PETS

Lover of Feathered Creatures May Pay for Them Almost Any Price That His Fancy Dictates.

A recent international bird show has provided some astonishing facts and figures regarding the value of song birds, remarks London Tit-Bits. There are nearly 100 classes of canaries. That they can be Norwich or Lancashire, border or Yorkshire variegated, lizard, unflighted, clear, crossbred, crested, self or foul conveys very little to the average mind, but leaves one marveling at the variety of chirping little creatures whose feathers are every conceivable shade of yellow. One marvels also at the variety of birds that could be kept as pets. Finches, linnets, redpoles, tomtits, robins, wrens, stonechats, babblers, redstarts and long-tailed, short-tailed and crested varieties of all of them in every size from the minute humming bird to the plump scarlet cockatoo, all vie for the popularity which up to the present has been the monopoly of the canary. And these little birds are all quite cheap. A few shillings will buy most of them, but, on the other hand, $2,500 would be asked for a gorgeous crimson bird of paradise, or $5,000 for the canary-bulfinch White Rose, the most expensive song bird in the world.

Developed Powers Late.

William de Morgan is the most notable example of a writer who postponed the creation of literary masterpieces until in advanced life. He had never published anything until his "Joseph Vance" surprised the reading world when he was sixty-five, and he has followed it with half a dozen other long and most interesting novels.

Both Strong.

"Jaggs said the story I told him the other day made him hold his breath."

"Gee whizz, but if he succeeded in holding his breath, it must have been a tussle!"

STATE BREVITIES

Rochester.—The Olmsted County Taxpayers and Good Roads association is the name of a new organization formed in this city for the specific purpose of building good roads.

Worthington. — Edward Thiel and Albert E. Deere are under arrest in the Nobles county jail, charged with the murder of Charles Dillehay, proprietor of a theater at Ellsworth, the night of Wednesday, Sept. 22. Both are said to have confessed to complicity in the crime.

Duluth.—A jury in the case of Walter Richeson, former assistant clerk of the municipal court, on trial in the district court on a charge of embezzlement, was dismissed by Judge Fesler after being unable to reach a verdict in twenty-four hours' deliberation. The jurors stood six for acquittal and six for conviction.

Fergus Falls.—The 1-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Derky of the town of Corliss, this county, found a large screw while playing and put it in his mouth. It slipped down his throat and choked him. An older boy ran out to the field where his parents were at work, but before they arrived the child was dead.

Brainerd. — Proceedings, believed to be the first of their kind, wherein the entire state tax commission appeared in district court chambers to answer mandamus proceedings, were heard before Judge W. S. McClenahan. The proceedings were brought by Y. P. Jones and others of Clearwater county in what is known as the First National bank of Bagley case.

Rochester.—A new union church was formally dedicated at Douglas, a few miles from Rochester. The new church is designed to serve as a community center. Religious services of any denomination may be held there, although the property is in the hands of a corporation affiliated with the Evangelical Synod Church of North America, of which Rev. W. W. Bunge is the pastor in Rochester.

Faribault.—Business men of Faribault have succeeded in raising the required amount of capital for the establishment of a packing plant. The amount to be raised before the erection of buildings was commenced was $200,000. Many farmers in Rice, Steele, Goodhue, Dakota, Waseca, Le Sueur and Scott counties are subscribers. The company has been organized for $500,000 and more stock will be sold.

Albert Lea.—Frank H. Fisk, formerly surveyor of this county, was adjudged insane by Judge of Probate A. U. Mayland and was taken to the hospital at Rochester. Mr. Fisk is widely known for his engineering ability. Many of the dredging projects in southern Minnesota were under his supervision. Overwork and failing health are thought to be the cause of his insanity. Physicians say he can live only a few weeks.

Albert Lea. — Seventy-five automobile loads of Albert Lea Auto club members drove to Hartland to attend the annual harvest festival in that village. The Hartland band escorted the visitors into the town. Edward Olson, president of the Citizens' National bank of Albert Lea, won the prize for being the heaviest man at the celebration. A large blue ribbon was tied around his neck and he was carried through the principal streets by firemen.

Delano.—The congregation of the Methodist Episcopal church of Delano tendered a reception to Rev. and Mrs. G. L. Haggans at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ketchbach. Mrs. Haggans is a bride and the affair was given in her honor. Superintendent Wetzel of the public schools made an address of welcome which was responded to in happy vein by Rev. Mr. Haggans. Mrs. Wetzel, Mrs. Ketchbach and Charles Brunkow gave several vocal numbers and Miss Dorothy Dodge gave two readings.

Mora. — W. B. Thurston, United States dairy specialist, and R. H. Giverson, teacher of agriculture in the high school, are co-operating in a campaign to raise the standard of the dairy industry here. One of their recent activities was to visit several dairy farms in company with students of the agricultural classes of the high school. This was done to interest dairymen in regularly weighing and testing the milk from their cows. Some of this work has already been done and good results have been secured.

East Grand Forks.—Peter Swanson of International Falls, Minn., is held by East Grand Forks police on a charge of murdering Charles Norton, 70 years old, who was kicked to death in a local rooming house.

Sam Sorenson, a transient, and Charles Fern, a laboring man who says he makes Minneapolis his headquarters, are being held as witnesses. They were in the room when the assault took place, the police say.

Norton, who was porter at the place, was killed when he attempted to order some men out of the room.

Fulda.—The frog industry is in full swing here and gives employment to several persons. Frogs are more numerous than for years. In a week, two firms purchased about 4,000 dozen and shipped them to the cities. The frogs are caught by boys and men who find them hiding in crevices of the rocks around the lake. Sixty-five dozen were taken from around and beneath one rock.

Virginia. — More than 300 delegates arrived here to attend the third annual convention of the League of Minnesota Municipalities. Mayor J. P. Seberger of St. Cloud presided.

NO COMPLAINTS TO RAIL COMMISSION

BULLETINS BELIEVED TO HAVE AIDED FARMERS IN AVOIDING CAR SHORTAGES.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

The railroad and warehouse commission figuratively is keeping its fingers crossed these days because no complaints are coming in as to car shortages in moving the big crops. The commission early in the shipping season sent out bulletins of instruction to shippers showing them how to avoid shortages. It has learned that the railroads insisted that their agents post the bulletins in conspicuous places and that the elevator men kept the suggestions in prominent places where the farmers would see them and be governed accordingly. The grain has been moving steadily so far. Oats, flax and barley have been shipped in large quantities. Some of the wheat is being held for higher prices, it is said, which may have something to do with the absence of car shortages. When the potato shipping season is well under way a shortage is feared.

Plans for Development.

Governor Hammond has called on commercial, civic and development organizations of the state to study plans they may wish to submit at a booster meeting which the governor expects to call soon to agree on a plan for unified development of all sections of Minnesota. It is suggested by the governor that the various organizations in each county meet and elect delegates to represent the county at the booster meeting, which is to be held in St. Paul. Governor Hammond will ask larger development associations which take in a number of counties also to send delegates to the meeting. When the various organizations are heard from, Governor Hammond will name a day on which the county conventions may be held, and when the delegates are chosen he will set the convention day for the big meeting in St. Paul.

Roseau School Case Decided.

The supreme court has decided that Mrs. Bergit Billberg shall remain county superintendent of schools of Roseau county. Quo warranto proceedings brought by Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith on behalf of Mrs. Anna Connelly Olsen to oust Mrs. Billberg were dismissed. Mrs. Olsen was in office as superintendent of schools when the general election was held. November, 1914. Eddy E. Billberg, husband of Bergit Billberg, opposed Mrs. Olsen at the election and won out. Mrs. Olsen contested the election on the ground that Billberg had violated the corrupt practices act by circulating an alleged slanderous pamphlet against her. The trial court decided Billberg should remain in office.

Would Limit Banks.

The chartering of so many state banks should be stopped, according to A. H. Turrittin, superintendent of banks, who made this suggestion to the economy and efficiency commission. "On account of the rapidly increasing number of banks, the majority of which have only $10,000 capital, some limit should be placed on their number," he said.

Races to Save Park.

Unless Oscar Mitchell, who left for New York to arrange the papers necessary for a transfer of the lands along the St. Louis river in St. Louis and Carlton counties to the state, can get his work done and have the deed executed and the restrictions approved by the governor immediately, the state will lose the lands for state park purposes.

For State Office Building.

The erection of an office building on or near the Capitol grounds for the housing of state departments which are crowded into too small quarters in the marble pile was advocated by Eben E. Corliss, Capitol custodian, in a letter to the Efficiency and Economy Commission.

Board to Select Stone.

Following receipt of bids for the general construction work on the Historical society's new building, the state board of control will decide what kind of stone will be used in constructing the building. The law specifies that only Minnesota stone may be used.

Timber Brings $225,812.

Buyers of state timber at the sale at the state capitol paid in $56,453.02 in checks to cover the initial payment of 25 per cent. This means a sale of $225,812.08, but the sale in reality was heavier, as the actual cut of timber shown by the scale always runs higher than the preliminary estimates. The bulk of the 53,000,000 feet of timber offered was bid in, most of it at the appraised price. The pine timber was appraised at $7 to $8 a thousand feet, but much of it was run up to higher figures in the bidding.

New Definition.

"The study of etymology," says the Philadelphia Record, "causes no end of trouble among that class of school children whose knowledge of English is limited to words which figure in the ordinary street conversation, and many curious results have followed. The custom usually observed by the teachers is to require such a definition of the word, then its derivation, and finally a sentence in which the word is properly used. The word "ligament" fell to the lot of a rather diffident boy recently. He defined it properly as "a band," but followed up the correct derivation with this remarkable sentence: "I was wakened up last night by hearing a brass ligament going down the street."

If parents will give just a little intelligent thought to the feeding of their children the difference in the health of the little folks will pay, many times over, for the small trouble.

A mother writes: "Our children are all so much better and stronger than they ever were before we made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat.

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh, stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts with cream, occasionally some soft boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they have some meat and vegetables.

"It would be hard to fully describe the change in the children, they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute this change to the food elements that, I understand, exist in Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him until I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR.
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 31 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn under the Act of Congress of March 3,1879

Facts As They Are

Bro. Hunt in last week's Sunbeam avows that the sentiment at the drainage meeting was practically unanimous for the declaring of the river an unnavigable stream. The brother from the outlying precinct has evidently gotten his wires crossed as the records show that he was practically the only one present in favor of such action. The consensus of opinion was that the river should be deepened and straightened, the lake lowered and dammed at the outlet, so as to hold the water in flood time, thereby permitting of a more even flow during the entire season and obviating a recurrence of the flooding of the low lands. Brush off the cobwebs, Hunt and come alive as to what is really trappering in your midst.—T. R. Fall News-Press.

The News-Press, of course voices a certain sentiment of Thief River Falls, who desire to have the river to remain navigable from there up, so as to deprive the eastern part of the county of an opportunity to get a bridge across it at the expense of the county. Of course we all want the river deepened and straightened, but to declare it a non-navigable stream from Highlanding to Thief River Falls does not prevent that work from being done, any more than it would help it to have the river declared navigable below Thief River Falls. Now let us see what Congressman Steenerson says about this in his speech made at the drainage meeting.

"I desire to impress upon your minds the fact that this improvement will be undertaken by the Government in the interests of the Indians, to improve their lands, and to enable them to advance in agriculture. It will not be undertaken to relieve the white settlers along the river from floods caused by the building of their drainage ditches. It is obvious that if we should urge Congress to drain the white man's land at the expense of the Indian lands we should fail. That is not the right kind of an argument to advance, and I have been very careful in the past not to urge it on that ground. I can easily understand how many of you who have bought your lands at a high price, and struggled along under pioneer condition, and now for several years have been drowned out, feel that the United States Government ought to help you, but by making the claim on the ground indicated, you would be throwing obstacles in your own way. There is, however, the further argument that may properly be advanced, that the control of the flood situation is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government; that three-fourths of the Indian lands are swamp lands; that the land drained into the north and east of the lake has gone into private ownership, and that owing to these facts, the leaving of these swamp lands, including the outlet of the lake, unimproved, constitutes a continuing menace to the development of the country to the west, and that therefore, in the interest of the general welfare we urge the reclamation by drainage of the Indian lands as a duty of the Federal Government to undertake at an early date."

It can be readily seen by the above that Congressman Steenerson does not have any hopes of getting money to improve this river for the benefit of the settlers now living here, and we respect his honesty for telling them so. This being the case it will not make any difference to us regarding the improvement of the river, whether it remains a navigable stream by name only, or non-navigable in fact, as it is. Do not be deceived by the talk of interested people, who want to get all the public county funds to build bridges on their part of the river, but prepare to make a movement to get your part removed from government control as soon as possible.

YANKEE ADVERTISING.

I thoroughly understand the art of advertising, boasted P. T. Barnum in his recollections of his museum days in New York. One morning a stout, hearty-looking man came into my office and begged some money. I asked him why he did not work. He replied that he could not find work and that he would be glad of any job at $1.00 a day. I handed him a quarter, told him to go out and get his breakfast and return, and I would give him light labor at $1.50 a day. When he returned I gave him five common bricks

"Now," said I, "go and lay a brick on the sidewalk at the corner of Broadway and Ann Street; another close by the museum; a third diagonally across the way at the corner Broadway and Vesey Street, by the Astor House; put down the fourth one on the sidewalk in front of St. Paul's Church, opposite; then with the fifth brick in hand, go rapidly from one point to the other. Exchange bricks at every point, and say nothing to anyone."

"What is the idea?" inquired the man.

"No matter," I replied; "all you need to know is that it brings you 15 cents an hour. Attend faithfully to the work, and at the end of every hour by St. Peter's clock show this ticket at the museum door; enter, walk solemnly through every hall in the building; pass out, and resume your work."

With the remark that it was all one to him so long as he could earn his living, the man placed his bricks and began his round.

At the end of the first hour the sidewalks in the vicinity were packed with people all anxious to solve the mystery. The man then went into the museum, devoted fifteen minutes to a survey of the halls, and returned to his round. That he repeated every hour until sundown, and whenever he went into the museum a dozen or more would buy tickets and follow him. He continued the round for several days,—the curious people who followed him into the museum considerably more than paying his wages,—until finally the policeman, to whom I had imparted my object complained that the obstruction of the sidewalk by the crowds had become so serious that I must call in my "brick man."—Youth's Companion.

RHEUMATISM AND ALLIED PAINS—THEY MUST GO!

The congestion of the blood in its flow causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. The "man or woman who has rheumatism, neuralgia or other pain and fails to keep Sloan's Liniment in their home is like a drowning man refusing a rope." Why suffer. Get a bottle of Sloan's. 25c. and 50c. $1.00 bottle holds six times as much as 25c. size.—adv.

The prospects now are that there will be as many aspirants for the Republican nomination for governor next year. This is all right as any man has a perfect right to aspire to be governor of Minnesota. But let us have a fair race, with no elimination of any of the candidates. Let the people make their choice, and they will elect that choice in November.

The Red Shirt of Italy.

The red shirt, destined to become so famous a symbol throughout Europe, was not at first adopted by Garibaldi for any fantastic or spectacular reason. The English Admiral Ingram says that the red shirt had its origin in stern necessity and that its adoption was caused by the need of clothing as economically as possible the legion that Garibaldi had raised for the liberation of Italy. An offer was made by a tradesman to supply at a reduced price a large stock of red woolen shirts. This offer was eagerly closed on. Before many years had passed the red shirts became the symbol not merely of the legion, but of the new spirit working for the liberation of Italy.—Atlanta Constitution.

Blackberries.

The real greatness of a blackberry is in the eating it fresh from the bush. It does not need sugar and cream. It does not need anything but a thumb and finger and a mouth. The mushy ones that grow big in the shade may be improved by doctoring, but the firm ones of moderate size that grow in the open fields are not susceptible of improvement by human art. We know a man, raised in the country in middle Tennessee, who came back from Oklahoma in his old age just to fill himself once more with blackberries as they grow. Nobody who knows what real blackberries are would think him foolish. A man might almost come back from paradise for a feast like that.—Exchange.

Our First Coinage.

The earliest coinage of money for America is said to have been made for Virginia in 1612. The London company had been formed for the purpose of pushing colonization work in Virginia, and in 1609 Sir George Somers, an active promoter of the company, set out with an expedition. His vessels encountered a storm and were wrecked on the coast of one of the Bermuda islands. Somers took possession of the islands in the name of Great Britain. He was forced to remain there ten months, but finally reached Virginia. The Bermudas, often since then called Somers islands, were largely colonized by people from Virginia, and the relations between the two became intimate. This accounts for Virginia's first coins being made there. They were of brass, and on one side was represented a ship under full sail, firing a gun. On the other side were the words, "Somers Island," and the figure of a hog, "in memory," as an old time writer quaintly says, "of the abundance of hogges which the English found on their first landing."—Argonaut.

Where Silence Was Deadly.

Rome is said to have once been saved by the cackling of geese, but silence cost the people of Amyklae, an ancient Grecian city, their liberty. The report that an enemy was approaching had been spread so often, creating consternation among the inhabitants, and as often proved false, that the authorities finally passed a law forbidding any one to speak of such a thing. All went well for a time, but there came a day when an enemy did appear, a hostile Spartan army. But the citizens of Amyklae were law abiding. They talked of the weather, of the crops, of the approaching track meet, but never a word did they speak about the approaching army. Everybody obeyed the law, and nobody told the authorities of the impending danger. Thus the city fell an easy victim to the invaders through the faithful obedience of its citizens to the law.

The Bed of Ware.

A famous piece of furniture is the "bed of Ware," which was formerly preserved at the inn called the Saracen's Head, at Ware, England, but removed to Rye House in 1869. It is considered one of the curiosities of England and measures twelve feet square. It is made of oak elaborately carved and is surrounded by a canopy, supported by a lofty headboard and two massive bedposts at the foot. Twelve persons can occupy this bed comfortably at one time.

The bed bears the date 1460, but antiquarians think it is not older than the time of Elizabeth. Some authorities say that it was offered for sale in 1864 and was bid in by Charles Dickens, while others claim that Dickens' offer of $500 was not considered sufficient and it was bid in by the owner.

GLACIAL EPOCHS.

This Old Earth of Ours Has Had More Than One Ice Age.

Every one with intelligent interest in the history of the world on which he lives has heard of "the glacial epoch." or the ice age. The inhabitants of the northern portion of the United States have no doubt a general understanding that the gravel hills and ridges and the huge bowlders with which they are familiar are due to an irresistible invasion from Canada by "the great ice sheet" at a date just preceding that which geologists term "recent," yet thousands of years ago.

It is, however, not strictly correct to speak of the "ice age" or the "glacial epoch," for there have been many of them. It is now known that even this latest or pleistocene glacial epoch has several important divisions, and in the Rocky mountain region it appears that important changes in the form and height of the mountains, due to a wearing down by erosion, took place between the glacial subepochs.

More than fifty years ago it was recognized by English geologists that certain masses of gravel and breccia and certain planed and grooved rock surfaces in rocks of Permian age in India indicated a glacial epoch vastly older than that of the Canadian ice sheets, but it is only within the last thirty years that geologists have learned that glacial conditions have recurred at many different times in the earth's history. The evidence of this has been found in all continents in Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, South and North America. The formation of great ice sheets took place at different periods in the larger divisions of geologic time back to the proterozoic—that is, to the age of the oldest known sedimentary rocks, a great many million years ago.

Glass Razor Strop.

"The best razor strop I ever had was a piece of glass," said the boss barber, as he sharpened the razor with a pull in it. "An old barber gave it to me, and I tell you it worked fine. Unfortunately I let it fall and broke it, and I have never been able to get one like it. There's some kink in the grinding which I can't seem to figure out. In these days a good razor strop is a mighty hard thing to find, and I would give a good deal if I could only get that piece of ground glass back again. It sure did put a cutting edge on the razor."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Horse Chestnut.

Why the horse chestnut is so called is a debatable point, but at least one possible explanation of the name may be found in a peculiar characteristic of the tree. If, when it is mature, a leaf be broken off cleanly at the point where its stem joins the branch, it will be discovered that the base of the stem is the exact shape of a horse's hoof, and if one looks further one will see plainly marked upon the "hoof" the nail marks of the horse's shoe. The similitude of hoof and nails is at least remarkable. It might be supposed, in reference to the name of this tree, that horses were fond of the fruit, but one believes that this is not the case, nor does any other creature, except perhaps the rat or mouse, attempt to eat this natural and abundant product.

"Curing" Married Couples.

If every wife who is trying to cure her husband and every husband who is trying to cure his wife would stop the operation and all the husbands would devote their energies to curing themselves and all the wives devote their energies to curing themselves the homes would be a great deal happier than they are today. There are scolding wives who are bending all of their energies to the task of curing their husbands of habits far less detrimental to the happiness of the home than the habit of scolding. There are husbands who have set themselves the task of curing their wives of imperfections of so much less consequence than the infirmities of character and temper possessed by the husband himself.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

THE SAFETY HABIT

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, it's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors—every dollar intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

Unappreciated Wit.

Sir Henry Wotton, for twenty years England's ambassador to the court of Venice, discovered, to his sorrow, that it is not always wise to be witty, even in so simple a matter as writing in an autograph album. Once when visiting at the house of a friend his host brought out the visitors' book and requested Sir Henry to inscribe his name in it, together with some appropriate sentiment. Willing to oblige and wishing to say something at once neat, witty and wise, he wrote the following and appended his name to it: "An ambassador is an honest man, sent abroad to lie for his country." But King James I. did not appreciate the effort of his ambassador. It was five long years before he received another appointment at the royal hands.

Travels of a Chimney Swift.

On June 7, 1911, an adult chimney swift fluttered down a chimney into the study of Ernest Harold Baynes in Meriden, N. H., and was promptly banded and released. The band was of the old style and bore the number 6326. At 8 o'clock p. m. on June 15, 1912, two chimney swifts flew from the chimney into the same room of Mr. Baynes' house where the bird had been caught a year and eight days before. And lo! when these birds were taken in hand and examined one of them proved to be 6326. Remarkable as this may seem, this diminutive creature, less than six inches in length, had traveled hundreds of miles to Central America or elsewhere in the tropics where he spent the winter and then had made the long return journey at the approach of summer and found again the chimney of his choice in a village in faroff New Hampshire. And throughout his journeying the little aluminum ring had traveled with him and had produced not the least effect on the bird's leg.

One wonders if the swift lived always in the same hollow tree in South America.—New York Post.

A Youthful Speculator.

Senator John Sherman made his first speculation when he was a boy of sixteen, and it turned out badly. At the age of fourteen he was working for the Muskingum Improvement company at $25 a month and at the age of sixteen was superintendent of an important part of the work and had been advanced to $40. During the winter he was idle, as the canal was closed. It was at this time that he attempted his speculation. Salt was very low on the Muskingum river and very high at Cincinnati. So John bought a lot of salt, loaded it on a scow and started it down the river. All went well until within one day's float of the Ohio river, when the thermometer went down to zero, and the scow remained right there for two long months. Everybody had a great laugh over the youthful speculator, but he lived long enough to return the laugh with interest.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

LYDIA E PINKHAM

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

PLAY THRILLS; BOY STRICKEN

Cuban Has Stroke of Apoplexy While Absorbed in Watching Detective Melodrama.

Sherlock Holmes and his exciting adventures proved too much for U. Kinderland, eighteen, a Cuban youth who lives at the Hotel Ansonia, relates the New York Sun. At the end of the third act the boy toppled in his seat with an attack of apoplexy and had to be carried to the lobby, where he was revived. Later he was removed to the hotel.

It was just at the most exciting moment of the play when the incident occurred. Sherlock Holmes sticks his cigar in a corner of the gas cellar and eludes his captors by causing them to watch the cigar while he escapes through a door at the other side.

Kinderland had been observed watching the play with intense excitement, and when the climax came and the detective knocked over a lamp, precipitating utter darkness, he succumbed.

GERMANS CAPTURE TAHURE HILL; TEAR UP FRENCH LINES

WAVE ON WAVE OF GRAY-CLAD INFANTRY SURGES FORWARD THROUGH GAP NEARLY MILE WIDE.

FOUR ASSAULTS ARE MADE BEFORE POSITION IS TAKEN

Everywhere Else Soldiers of Tri-Color Hold—Expel Bavarian Troops by Counter-Attacks Northeast of Neuville — Fighting for Works Continues.

London, Nov. 2.—After an artillery action lasting for the greater part of two days and which tore a gap in the French trenches nearly a mile wide, wave on wave of German gray-clad infantry surged forward and only came to rest after the positions known as "La Courtine" were occupied.

As the scream of shells and the bursting of shrapnel reached its highest pitch, the Germans drove against the whole line. Heavily massed forces rushed forward behind gas clouds and thick billows of smoke.

Attack on 5-Mile Front.

The gains included Tahure hill, lost to the French weeks ago. From this position the French batteries menaced the Challerange-Bazancourt railway, the main supply line for all the German troops in the Soissons salient. The Germans attacked on a five-mile front, with strong reinforcements of veterans from the Russian front fighting in the first line.

The Germans made four successive assaults on the French defenses before the position was carried. Despite minute artillery preparations and heavily massed attacks, the Germans were thrown back in each of these assaults. According to Paris they suffered heavy losses. French reports detail the capture of 356 unwounded prisoners. Berlin states that in the capture of Tahure hill 1,200 French remained in German hands.

Germans Reach Summit.

Everywhere the French line held except at Tahure Hill where the Germans concentrated their heaviest infantry forces. Here the French machine guns and rifles poured a steady stream of bullets into the on-rushing German ranks and as they drew nearer bombs and grenades were used, and finally the bayonet, only to no purpose. The Germans swept over tier upon tier of trenches until finally they reached the summit with its coveted command of the valley to the north.

Another important action was fought to the northeast of Neuville St. Vaast in Artois while the Champagne battle was going on. Here the Bavarian troops captured nearly 1,200 yards of French trenches, taking 200 prisoners, four machine guns and three mine throwers. The French quickly recovered, however, and counter-attacking, expelled the Germans from a section of the lost trenches. Fighting for possession of the remainder of the works still is in progress.

SHIP FLYING U. S. FLAG SEIZED

Dutch Steamer Hamborn Also Brought to Halifax—No Reason Given for Seizure.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 1.—The Dutch steamer Hamborn, from New York and the steamer Hocking, from New York for Norfolk, have been brought into port here by prize crews from a British warship. The Hocking was formerly the Danish steamer Gronland, but was recently changed to American registry and was flying the American flag when overhauled by the warships.

The sheriff of the admiralty court has taken charge of both steamers and has placed armed men aboard, but nothing has been made public as to why the vessels were seized.

KING GEORGE SUFFERS LESS

British Ruler is Still Weak, However, From Effects of Fall From Horse.

London, Nov. 1.—King George, who was injured by a fall from his horse on Thursday last is suffering less pain but is still weak from the effects of his hurts, Tuesday afternoon's official bulletin stated. The bulletin read:

"The king makes slow progress. The pain is diminishing but his Majesty is still weak. Pulse and temperature are normal.

London Honors Slain Nurse.

London, Oct. 30.—A service at St. Paul's cathedral in memory of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse, who was executed in Brussels, was attended by a throng which recalled the funeral of Lord Roberts almost a year ago. Before 8 o'clock a great crowd stood shivering in the first cold fog of the season awaiting the opening of the doors. Shortly after 10 o'clock signs bearing the words "church full" were hung at all the doors except the one [illegible] for ticketholders.

KIDNEY TROUBLE NOT RECOGNIZED

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

According to this it would seem that a medicine for the kidneys, possessing real healing and curative properties, would be a blessing to thousands.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the well known kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is remarkably successful in sickness caused by kidney and bladder troubles. It is mild and gentle in its action and its healing influence is soon noticed in most cases. There is no other remedy like Swamp-Root. It will surely and effectively overcome kidney, liver and bladder troubles—and you can depend upon it. Go to any drug store and get a bottle so as to start treatment today. You will soon see a marked improvement.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

FEW CHURCHES DIE THAT WAY

Colored Preacher Unlikely to Be Called Upon to Fulfill Vow That He Had Made.

The following story comes to us from old Virginia:

A devout colored preacher, whose heart was aglow with missionary zeal, gave notice to his congregation that in the evening an offertory would be taken for missions and asked for liberal gifts. A selfish, well-to-do man in the congregation said to him before the service: "Yer gwine to kill dis church ef yer goes on sayin' 'give!' No church can stan' it. Yer gwine ter kill it."

After the sermon the colored minister said to the people: "Brother Jones told me I was gwine to kill this church if I kep' a-askin' fer to give; but, my brethren, churches doesn't die dat way. Ef anybody knows of a church that died 'cause it's bean givin' too much to de Lord, I'll be very much obliged ef my brother will tell me what church is, for I'se gwine to visit it, and I'll climb on de walls of dat church, under de light of de moon and cry: 'Blessed am de dead dat die in de Lord.'"—Cleveland Intelligencer.

Craven Knight.

"Never speak to me again," exclaimed the fair maid, as with flashing eyes she handed back to the football hero the ring he had so proudly placed on her finger a few store days before. "I can never marry a coward."

"A coward?" he stammered.

"Yes, a coward. I saw you with my own eyes at the game this afternoon. You had the ball under your arm and ran with it the whole length of the field instead of facing the crowd and fighting like a man."

Particular as to Diet.

De Quincy, the writer, during the last 30 years of his life invariably made his dinner of a slice of mutton and a dish of rice. He insisted that the cook cut his meat in a diagonal rather than a longitudinal form, declaring that, "otherwise, consequences incalculably distressing to my system will arise and will prevent me from attending to matters of overwhelming importance."

MOTHER'S "NOTIONS"
Good for Young People to Follow.

"My little grandson often comes up to show me how large the muscles of his arms are.

"He was a delicate child, but has developed into a strong, healthy boy and Postum has been the principal factor.

"I was induced to give him the Postum because of my own experience with it.

"I am sixty years old, and have been a victim of nervous dyspepsia for many years. Have tried all sorts of medicines and had treatment from many physicians, but no permanent relief came.

"I used to read the Postum advertisements in our paper. At first I gave but little attention to them, but finally something in one of the advertisements made me conclude to try Postum

"I was very particular to have it prepared strictly according to directions, and used good, rich cream. It was very nice indeed, and about bedtime I said to the members of the family that I believed I felt better. One of them laughed and said, 'That's another of mother's notions,' but the notion has not left me yet.

"I continued to improve right along after leaving off coffee and taking Postum, and now after three years' use I feel so well that I am almost young again. I know Postum was the cause of the change in my health and I cannot say too much in its favor. I wish I could persuade all nervous people to use it."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

VILLA WILL FIGHT AMERICAN ARMY IF NEED BE, HE SAYS

REBEL GENERAL MOVES TROOPS FOR ATTACK ON AGUA PRIETA, SONORA, OPPOSITE DOUGLAS, ARIZ.

DECLARES HE IS THROUGH WITH THE UNITED STATES

Upon Learning That Washington Had Permitted Carranza to Transport Reinforcements Over American Territory, Mexican Launches Verbal Attack on Country.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 2.—General Villa has begun moving his troops into position for an attack on Agua Prieta, Sonora, opposite here, regardless, he personally declares, of any consequences or effects from the United States.

"If necessary, I will fight the United States army assembled along the border," he asserted, after hearing for the first time that the United States government had given permission for Carranza to transport troops from Laredo through United States territory to re-enforce the garrison at Agua Prieta.

Four of these troop trains arrived bringing the total fighting force of the garrison commanded by General P. Elias Calles to approximately 6,000 men.

Villa Has 10,000 Men.

Villa, according to reliable estimates, has 10,000 soldiers. He claims to have 18,000. The battle may begin at any moment.

That it will be as quickly as possible is the general opinion here, based on the condition of his men, thousands of whom were thirsty in positions miles from water and all with scant supplies of food, according to Villa's own testimony and reports of three Mexican ranchers who arrived across the border stripped of everything they possessed.

Villa was with the cavalry which passed along the border. It was during this march that he learned that Carranza re-enforcements had been transported over American territory and he launched a verbal attack on the United States which he declared would turn into a physical attack if necessary.

Would Fight U. S. Army.

"Agua Prieta will be mine," he asserted, "Americans or no Americans."

Villa was almost in sight of the Mexican town at the time. Pointing his finger toward it he added:

"There is food and rest for our men. We may have to fight the whole American army, if necessary, but no matter, it will be ours."

"When?" he was asked.

"I know," was the reply.

Suddenly Villa asked again if it were true that the United States government had permitted General Carranza to transport reinforcements over American territory. Then, continuing, he said:

Through With United States.

"This is the way the United States repays me for the treatment and protection. I have given foreigners in Mexico. Hereafter, I don't give a ——— what happens to foreigners in Mexico—or in my territory.

"I am through with the United States. I can fight my battles. Let them fight theirs.

"I can whip Carranza and his entire army, but it is asking a great deal to whip the United States also; but I suppose I can do that too."

FIGHTS GERMAN DESTROYERS

British Submarine Finally Dives Uninjured in Naval Battle South of Nymas.

Stockholm, Nov. 1.—The Dagblad, says a battle took place between three German torpedo boats and a British submarine south of Nymas, the submarine finally diving uninjured while no injury was inflicted on the torpedo boats. The newspapers say considerable activity of this kind is expected shortly in the Baltic, as Germany is sending out fleets of armed trawlers against submarines.

German Aviator Reported Shot.

London, Nov. 1.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Copenhagen says a report has been received there from Berlin that the German aviator, Bruno Langer, who had several world's records to his credit, has been shot down and killed while flying over the western frontier.

Would Shoot Down Villa Troops.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Should Villa troops cross the border and attack the Mexican town of Agua Prieta from the Arizona side near Douglas, as press reports from the scene have indicated they might do, they would be treated as outlaws, disarmed, and in event of resistance, shot down by United States troops. Officials at the state and war departments made this clear, although no [illegible] had been received [illegible] developments were in pros-

The pastor looked over his glasses and shook his uncut locks.

"Carrying out my original declaration," he said, "I'm about to call the names of those persons who are now asleep in the congregation. "John Stackpole!"

There was no response.

"John Stackpole!"

The stout man stirred again.

"Be down in a minute," he drowsily called. "Keep things hot for me."

The pastor's voice rang out:

"You're going down, all right, John Stackpole," he roared; "and things will be kept very, very hot for you! Let us now sing the ninety-ninth hymn."

English of the Diamond.

In the National league is an umpire who is a stickler for correct deportment on the diamond. In a game in which he officiated at the polo grounds early in the season, as Chief Meyers, the Indian catcher for New York, came to bat, certain of the Boston players sitting on their bench began to guy the brawny red man.

In an instant the umpire had left his place behind the catcher and was running toward the visitors' bombproof.

"Cut out them personalities!" he ordered. "Cut out them personalities!"

As he turned away a high-pitched voice filtered out through the grandstand behind him saying:

STATE BREVITIES

St. Cloud.—Arthur Achen, aged 31 years, and Earl Hess, aged 29, are in the county jail awaiting trial on the charge of having robbed the Great Northern stations at Richmond and Coldspring, Oct. 18.

Duluth.—Duluth business interests, particularly grain men, are deeply interested in the outcome of a referendum election in New York State, when it will be determined whether $27,000,000 additional bonds will be issued to complete the enlargement of the Erie canal.

Benson.—To commemorate 25 years of graduating classes from the Benson high school, the alumni association is arranging for the establishment of a students' loan fund that will be available to pupils who desire a college education but are prevented by lack of funds.

Winona.—In a valley near here where a pirate pair is operating with a team of ponies and a wagon in which the men carry their plunder, including even tiny pigs lifted from pens in farmyards, farmers have mobilized, armed and are prepared to defend their property.

Mankato.—A dollar watch, stolen from Thomas D. Booth, who is thought to have been murdered on an Omaha freight train, forms the only known clue by which his murderers may be traced. Its number will be procured and sent to the police departments of many cities.

Dawson.—Five hundred men, more than three-fourths of them farmers, met at the Dawson city hall and decided unanimously to organize a farmers and merchants' club. E. J. Mannix of Sioux Falls, S. D., made the principal address and pointed out the advantages of such an organization.

St. Paul.—Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, is only a "possible candidate" for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and not an avowed candidate, as recent dispatches from Cincinnati indicated. Mr. Schmahl has returned to St. Paul from Cincinnati, where he has been attending the first convention of secretaries of state.

St. Cloud.—A reward of $500 has been offered by relatives of Walter Brackett, who disappeared from his farm near St. Cloud Sept. 24, for information leading to the recovery of his body. The relatives are convinced that the man has been killed. Walter L. Brackett is the son of Arthur Brackett of Excelsior and the nephew of C. S. Brackett, Minneapolis groceryman.

Crookston. — The first colt show for Polk county has just been held in Crookston in connection with the first of a series of monthly market days. It was under the auspices of the Crookston Commercial club and under the supervision of Superintendent C. G. Selvig of the Northwest School of Agriculture and was such a pronounced success that next fall it will be carried out on a much larger scale.

St. Peter.—Committees appointed to take charge of St. Peter's first annual colt show have agreed upon Saturday, Nov. 20, as the date for the exhibition. The show will be open to horse breeders of Nicollet and Le Sueur counties. Prizes will be offered for draft colts foaled on and after Jan. 1, 1915, and judges will be secured from the Minnesota college of agriculture. St. Peter.—Committees appointed to take charge of St. Peter's first annual colt show have agreed upon Saturday, Nov. 20, as the date for the exhibition. The show will be open to horse breeders of Nicollet and Le Sueur counties. Prizes will be offered for draft colts foaled on and after Jan. 1, 1915, and judges will be secured from the Minnesota college of agriculture. The stock entered in competition will be paraded before judging.

St. Peter.—Police officials are puzzled over a mysterious fire which broke out in the studio of G. H. Ribble photographer, just before midnight. When the fire department reached the studio the back door was found open, and oil was running from a bottle lying on the floor in one of the rear rooms. Later it was discovered that the incendiary forced the back door open with a jimmy. No threats had been made against Mr. Ribble, and he can make no explanation of the attempted crime.

Bemidji.—Five hundred farmers are expected to attend the institute which will be held in Bemidji Nov. 20, and a total attendance of more than 1,000 persons is counted upon. The purpose of the meeting and the keynote of the speeches will be improvements in dairy cattle and better soil management. The farmers will be addressed by Professor A. J. McGuire, T. R. Crane, and Miss Josephine F. Berry, in charge of the domestic science department of the University of Minnesota. A free dinner will be served to the farmers at noon.

Grand Rapids.—After having been out about three and a half hours, following a trial that lasted over eight days, the jury in the case of the state of Minnesota vs. Gust Voigt, who was charged with attempting to poison his stepmother, Mrs. Emma C. Voigt on May 4 last, returned a verdict of not guilty.

Sleepy Eye.—Charles Temple, about 5 years of age, was found dead in a field on the Ed Berkner farm, east of his city, with a shotgun lying beside him, and a gaping wound in his breast. The authorities investigated and decided it was a case of suicide.

St. Paul.

St. Paul.—Graduates of state normal schools in the three-year professional course will be eligible hereafter to teach in the ninth year of a high school system, according to an agreement made between the State High School board and representatives of the normal schools and Normal School board at the Capitol.

In state graded schools doing high school work, the normal school graduates of the three-year course will be eligible to teach the ninth and tenth years. Beyond the tenth year qualifications of high school teachers in graded schools shall be the same as those of high school teachers in regular state high schools.

The State High School board voted to reconsider its previous action in withholding the annual state aid from the Mankato school. This action was taken as the result of the adoption by the Mankato school board of a resolution discontinuing Bible and and prayer reading at opening exercises.

Plea For Prairie Chickens.

Ducks are plentiful, prairie chickens are scarce and partridges are few and far between, according to reports from Minnesota hunting regions to Carlos Avery, fish and game commissioner. A wet, cold spring is held to blame for the comparative lack of chickens.

"It is a shame to kill what few chickens are left," wrote John Huderle of McLeod county.

Ducks are said to abound in Roseau, Pine, Itasca, Jackson, Nicollet, Stearns and Watonwan counties.

Hunters are more and more impressed with the apparent passing of the prairie chicken. Past activities of sportsmen as well as unfavorable weather for propagation of the birds are accountable for the decimation of these game birds.

North of the Thief river chickens are reported scarce. Other communities that report few of these birds are Mahnomen, Pine, Itasca, Renville, Stearns, Lake, St. Louis, Kittson, Marshall, Hennepin and Ramsey counties.

271,137 Public School Children.

Public school figures for the fiscal year 1914-15, compiled under the direction of Dr. C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of education, show an increase in enrollment of 22,246 over the previous year, making a total of 271,137 public school children in the state. Two hundred and ninety new schools were erected, raising the total number of buildings to 9,254. There are 221 high schools, 241 graded schools and 143 consolidated schools, the increase in the latter class being highly encouraging as it is only four years since the consolidation movement began in Minnesota. To instruct the army of children there were employed 17,138 teachers, an increase of 1,040 over the previous school year.

Requires 16,000 Checks.

More than 16,000 checks will be required to apportion the $1,500,000 state school aid fund which Walter J. Smith, state treasurer, is distributing among 86 counties. The county auditors draw 8,043 drafts on the state treasurer, that being the number of school districts sharing in the distribution, and the county treasurers draw checks payable to the school district treasurers. This makes a total of 16,172 checks. The apportionment this year is based on an average enrollment of 421,772 pupils. The per capita allotment is $3.55.

Telegraph Company Appeals.

The Western Union Telegraph company has appealed to the supreme court to aid it in settling difficulties with the Minnesota tax commission involving the question whether the telegraph lines shall be assessed under the new classified assessment law or under the old law applying to the assessment of telegraph companies. The commission fixed the true cash value of the telegraph company's properties in Minnesota at $1,468,000 and levied a rate of 30 mills in accordance with the old law.

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

Get Hoyt's and you will be satisfied. For sale at all drug stores.

ANURIC!

The Newest Discovery in Chemistry

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Dr. Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric" manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or even write Dr. Pierce for a large trial package (10c). If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Dr. Pierce's chemist will examine it, then Dr. Pierce will report to you without fee or charge.

NOTE.—"Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—or more in extreme cases—as "Anuric" (thanks to Doctor Pierce's achievement) is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.

Yes Trade At Home.

The Commercial Club of Thief River Falls is going to launch a trade at home campaign. This is certainly a move in the right direction, but in order to make it a success, they must have the co-operation of all of their home merchants and dealers.

Perhaps a few suggestions might not be taken kindly by some of the merchants who believe that they are entitled to all of the trade of the consumer, but we offer the following suggestions free of charge:

First: Consider that your customers, who trade with you, pay for what they buy, and are people of ordinary intelligence, that they can read and write, and that every one of them have a Sears, Roebuck and Co., a John M. Smyth, and an M. W. Savage catalog and price list in their homes.

Second: Now let every one of the merchants procure one of these catalogs, and look the prices up as they are given. Compare them with the goods that you have on your shelves, and then make prices to meet the prices given by the catalog houses; add good big freight and a fair profit, and you will get the trade, as the people do not desire to go to the trouble of sending away after their goods. But do not hand a man down a hand saw and ask him $1.50 for it, that is listed in the catolog at 50 cents. Do not hand him down a hammer for sale, and ask him $1.25 for it, that is listed in the catalog at 38 cents, for if you do, he is likely to tell you that he guesses that he will not buy to-day. But if you visit his place ten days later you may find him using the same kind of a hammer and saw that you offered to sell, which he has ordered from a catalog house. He has saved $1.95 by the transaction! Can you blame him for doing it? Or should he have been patriotic and traded with his home merchant? The same rule will apply to all dry goods, boots and shoes, and to some extent on groceries.

Again we say to the merchants procure a copy of these catalogs, and meet the catalog houses with reasonable competition and 90 per cent of the people that are now sending away to the big cities for their goods will trade with their home merchants.

This article is not written to endorse either the home merchant or the catalog houses, but is straight from the consumers stand point, who desires to make his cash go as far as possible in buying what he needs.

We cannot be accused of being predjudiced on either side, as there is no advertisements in our columns for either merchants or catolog houses.

The usual howl is being made at the present time, that we have been accustomed to hear every year, about the farmers holding their wheat. The purpose of this talk is to hold down the prices until the farmers have all sold out, and then they will discover that there is a big shortage of wheat. As a matter of facts the farmers are rushing their wheat into market at the present time, and if there is any holding back being done, it is by the elevator companies.

Canada is recruiting for the European war. If you want to die there is now no need to commit suicide. Enlist.

The recognition of the Carranza government by President Wilson does not seem to help the war situation in Mexico, as Villa is still leading a revolution against the present government, and it now looks as if there would be no peace in that country until they have killed each other off the face of the earth or starved to death.

President Wilson seems to have changed his war policy within the last year, and will now advise Congress to prepare this country for defense, Now if he would make a complete change of his tariff ideas he might receive the Republican endorsement for president next year.

The entertainments of auto races does not seem to draw as large crowds as it used to, which would indicate that the public have grown tired of paying fifty cents to see a dare-devil run the risk of being killed.

SUDDEN MUSCULAR ACHES AND PAINS—NEED NOT BE!

That is—if you use the right remedy. Sloan's Liniment is a real necessity in every home—for young and old. Its merit is praised in dozens of letters. A stiff neck from colds, children's sprains, those aching muscles, that sharp neuralgia pain—these find guaranteed relief in Sloan's Liniment. Every home meets with sudden aches and accidents. Your home needs a bottle. 25c., 50. and $1.00.—Adv.

COMPLEXION BLEMISH?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. Unless the bowels move freely and regularly all the power in the world will not permanently cover "that muddy complexion." This laxative is mild yet effective. It does not gripe or sicken in its effects. You will not dispute the merits of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Start a treatment to-day. 25c.—Adv.

COLDS DO NOT LEAVE WILLINGLY

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why you should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronichal and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c. and $1.00. —Adv.

IRRITABLE CHILDREN OFTEN NEED KICKAPOO WORM KILLER

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions, Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box.—Adv.

No Invulnerable Forts.

It will continue to be physically possible no doubt to build a fort so strong that no shell could penetrate it, whether fired directly at high angles or to fall upon it vertically from the clouds. It would require merely to calculate the force of explosives and the resistance of steel and concrete and make the steel and concrete thick enough. But it may have ceased to be worth while. A fort would still be vulnerable from below ground. Its foundation could not be laid so deep that an enemy might not drive a tunnel under it, and then it would be necessary only to put enough high explosive there to blow the fort away. So perhaps in the future military strategy will adjust itself to the idea that fortifications cannot be permanent, wherefore they had better be even more impermanent, serving only as temporary bulwarks against an oncoming enemy.—New York Times.

No Cause For Worry.

"It's sure enough strange how marriage changes some men," commented a Washington heights dweller to a friend who stood with him on a corner. "Now, see that chap entering my apartment house? He's been married only two weeks, and yet—say, do you see what he's carrying? Well, it's a garbage pail for their new flat. Why, if any one had told him three months ago that he'd carry a garbage pail through the street he'd have been ready to fight. I never saw such a'—.

"Why?"

"Because he'll be changed back again by that time. Don't worry about the case."—New York Globe.

OLD COIN VALUES.

Only Very Rare Specimens Can Command a High Price.

"The 1804 dollar," said a coin expert, "is believed by thousands of persons to command an enormous premium. There never was an 1804 dollar made in that year," he continued. "The 1804 dollar was made some time between 1830 and 1860. The country is flooded with counterfeit coins of this date, many of which have been made from 1801 dollars. A large number of them have fine milling on the edge, which could have been made only by a machine which the government did not begin to use until 1836.

"The Queen Anne farthing is another coin which has gained a high value in the public mind, because a collector once paid a high price for several that had never been in circulation. The used coins bring as high as $10, but they are often offered to dealers at ten times that price. The Jewish shekel, worth to dealers about $1, is often held for as much as $250 by enthusiastic amateurs who are misled by dates and the strange characters stamped on the coin.

"In the public mind a coin more than fifty years old is hoary with age and so rare as to be almost priceless, but a silver dollar of 1795 is actually worth no more than $2 to dealers, and then only if it is in an excellent state of preservation, for a great many of them were coined. A half dollar of 1803 is worth as much as 15 cents more than its face value, but collectors and dealers find that there are so many of them in circulation that there is no profit in buying and selling them. In fact, a person might have a hundred United States coins of different denominations and dates, no two alike but all more than 100 years old, which would be worth to a dealer not over $10 above their face value."—New York Times.

CLOTHES AND THE MAN.

To Be Well Dressed Means to Be Attired In Good Taste.

Dress is a subject frequently in the minds of many. Some think too much about it and some not enough. No one, however brilliant in ability, even a "genius," can afford to be careless in this matter. "He is best dressed," says Trollope, "whose dress no one observes." Little touches of individuality in one's clothing are well, but it is not in the best taste to adopt any peculiar striking style that will make people in the street turn their heads for further observation.

One should beware of extremes in fashion. Means and occupation should be considered in choosing what to wear. Even the poorest garments, if clean, in order and properly worn, give a good impression of the wearer. Women should give sufficient attention to dress to decide what is suitable for the time and occasion and that it is rightly adjusted and no further attention.

To be well dressed is a passport, opening doors otherwise closed.

To be lavishly dressed betokens a shallow mind. It would appear that one thought his clothes the better part of him. Even children's dress should be thought of with care. Their clothing should not prevent free action in their play. Nor should it be so rich as to give them an idea of superiority to children less expensively dressed and so make snobs of them.

The carefully dressed man shows more self respect than the sloven.—Milwaukee Journal.

CORK FORESTS.

Money Making Trees That Grow in the Poorest Kind of Soil.

The cork oak is a kind of jack at all trades among trees, and its service indicates well the kind of new freedom that trees may give us by their new helpfulness if we will just give them a chance. If the garden of Eden story had been written in Spain or Portugal I think the fortunate couple would have been placed in possession of a cork forest. If a man in either of these countries has a forest of good cork trees you will find him in Madrid, Lisbon or Paris. His cork forest works for him, and he stays in town.

Cork trees grow on the rockiest and poorest land. The poorer the land the finer the quality of the cork. Every eight or ten years the outer bark is stripped from the trees to furnish the ever more highly prized cork of commerce. By dividing the land up into blocks this decennial harvest will produce a fairly regular income.

These same oak trees produce acorns, often heavily, which are sold to some farmer, who drives his herds of lean hogs into the forest, where they harvest the acorns and turn them into salable meat. A Portuguese hog is expected to gain two pounds a day for [illegible] days when acorns are ripe.

More than this, there is beneath the [illegible] trees some herbage fit for goats to eat. Thus the cork forest owner in Lisbon gets income from three contractors—the cork stripper, the pork raiser and the goat raiser. And with care the forest lasts forever. The individual cork tree is good for a hundred years or more, after which it is a fine big salable tree, with enough young ones near it to take its place when it is gone to market. In Portugal a cork tree, ready for its third stripping, is considered worth $25. When in full bearing an acre of these oaks will yield from one to three tons of cork at a stripping, now worth about $[illegible] a ton to the grower. Most of this is profit. The pork is profit. It is the common rule that the income from the pasture pays the small cost of caring for the forest.—J. Russell Smith in Country Gentleman.

BREATHING IN THE WATER.

In Doing It Properly Lies the Secret of Success In Swimming.

The way to avoid drowning, according to a swimming teacher, is to learn how to swim. Good swimmers don't drown. They might die of chill or starve to death, but as for drowning—pooh!

"How about cramps?" he was asked. "Even good swimmers have cramps."

"Cramps needn't cause a moment's worry. I've seen thousands of good swimmers seized with cramps, and never a one was drowned. All they did was to turn over on their backs and either wait for help or paddle with their free limbs. I've never heard of a swimmer having cramps in both legs and arms. Even then his case would not be hopeless.

"There never was a case of drowning that was caused by cramps. That may seem surprising after the countless water tragedies that have been blamed on cramps. Death in the water is caused by [illegible] strangling.

"People strangle to death because they are ignorant of the proper method of breathing. When they sink beneath the water they hold their air passages shut. When they come to the top they have to breathe out the air they've saved while under water. As breathing out takes fifty times as long as breathing in they have no time to get a fresh supply of air before they go under again. This keeps up until they breathe in under the water and thus strangle to death.

"The process should be reversed. Breathe in for the second you are above water; then breathe out through the nostrils while under the water, and you can keep it up until you starve to death.

"Nine-tenths of swimming is breathing, and movement is only one-tenth," says the expert.—Kansas City Star.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

AMERICA IN NOTE TO BRITAIN CALLS BLOCKADE ILLEGAL

COMMUNICATION COVERS BRITISH INTERFERENCE WITH TRADE SINCE BEGINNING OF EUROPEAN WAR.

U. S. CANNOT SUBMIT TO CURTAILMENT OF RIGHTS

Insists That Relations Between This Country and Great Britain Be Governed by Rules of International Conduct and Not by Policy of Expediency.

Washington, Nov. 9. — The United States in its latest note to Great Britain just made public here, covering exhaustively British interference with American trade since the beginning of the European war, declares that the so-called blockade instituted by the Allies against enemy countries on March 11 is "ineffective, illegal and indefensible." Notice is served that the American government "cannot submit to the curtailment of its neutral rights" and it cannot "with complacence suffer further subordination of its rights and interests."

Ambassador Page, to whom the note was sent by special messenger for delivery to the London foreign office was instructed by Secretary Lansing "to impress most earnestly" upon the British government that the United States "must insist that the relations between it and his majesty's government be governed, not by a policy of expediency but by those established rules of international conduct to which Great Britain in the past has held the United States to account, when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence."

Champions Neutral Rights.

Declaring the United States "unhesitatingly assumes" the task of championing the integrity of neutral rights, the note proclaims that the American government will devote its energies to the task, exercising always an impartial attitude.

The body of the note is divided into 35 points, dealing with all phases of the contraband question, seizures and detentions, prior to, as well as after, the so-called blockade was instituted, and announces that a separate communication will be sent soon, dealing particularly with the "propriety and right of the British government to include in their list of contraband of war certain articles which have been so included."

British Methods Not Justified.

In conclusion, after an argument on the law and facts, Secretary Lansing says:

"I believe it has been conclusively shown that the methods sought to be employed by Great Britain to obtain and use evidence of enemy destination of cargoes bound for neutral ports and to impose a contraband character upon such cargoes are without justification; that the blockade, upon which such methods are partly founded, is ineffective, illegal and indefensible; that the judicial procedure offered as a means of reparation for an international injury is inherently defective for the purpose; and that in many cases jurisdiction is asserted in violation of the law of nations. The United States therefore cannot submit to the curtailment of its neutral rights by these measures which are admittedly retaliatory and therefore illegal, in conception and in nature, and intended to punish the enemies of Great Britain for alleged illegalities on their part. The United States might not be in a position to object to them if its interests and the interests of all neutrals were unaffected by them, but, being affected, it cannot with complacence suffer further subordination of its rights and interests to the plea that the exceptional geographic position of the enemies of Great Britain require or justify oppressive and illegal practices.

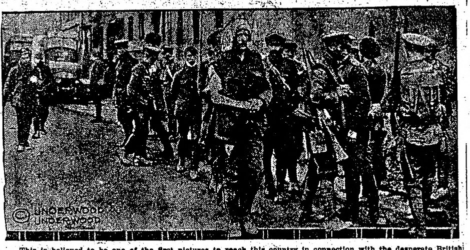
U. S. Cites Precedent.

"The government of the United States desires, therefore, to impress most earnestly upon his majesty's government that it must insist that the relations between it and his majesty's government be governed, not by a policy of expediency, but by those established rules of international conduct upon which Great Britain in the past has held the United States to account when the latter nation was a belligerent engaged in a struggle for national existence. It is of the highest importance to neutrals not only of the present day, but of the future that the principles of international right be maintained unimpaired.

U-Boats Sink Allied Vessels.

Paris, Nov. 8.—German submarines, passing the strait of Gibraltar, sank the French steamship Dahra off Arzeu Thursday night and the steamships Calvados, French, and Ionian, Italian, off Cape Ivi, it has been announced. The crews of the Dahra and Ionian were saved. Details concerning the Calvados loss were lacking. The steamship Dahra is of 2,127 tons. Its owners are Delmas Freres of La Rochelle, France. The only Ionian officially listed is the Allan liner of that line.

BRITISH WOUNDED RETURNING FROM FIRING LINE



This is believed to be one of the first pictures to reach this country in connection with the desperate British drive at Loos. The losses were extremely large on both sides and hundreds of wounded Tommies trudged back to the field hospitals from the firing line after temporary dressing of their wounds. It is thought that these are the first pictures to pass the censor showing the British wounded after the battle.

GARRISON WANTS ARMY OF 670,843

PROGRAM FOR RAISING GREAT CITIZEN FORCE OUTLINED BY SECRETARY OF WAR.

NEED BIG APPROPRIATIONS

Statement Reveals That In Preparation of Their Plans, War Department Officials Called Into Consultation Noted Specialists.

FOR NEW AMERICAN ARMY.
Officers and Enlisted Men.

Regular army	141,843
National guard	129,000
Citizen army	400,000
Total	670,843

Washington, Nov. 8.—An outline of the army's part in the national defense program to be submitted to congress in December by the administration has been made public by Secretary Garrison disclosing officially for the first time details of the plan to raise a great continental or citizen army to supplement the regular establishment.

In brief, it is proposed to increase the regular army from 108,008 to 141,843 officers and men (changing the term of enlistment from four years with the colors and three years on furlough to two years with the colors and four years on furlough); to organize a federal citizen army of 400,000 (to be enlisted 133,000 a year for three years); to strengthen the state militia by increased appropriations and closer co-operation; and to spend $20,000,000 a year for four years on coast defenses and $26,000,000 a year for four years in the accumulation of reserve material for use by a force of 500,000 men.

The statement reveals that in the preparation of their plans, war department officials have called into consultation specialists in various lines of private industry.

To Train Citizen Army.

The citizen army would be recruited throughout the entire country and organized in geographical divisions. Its members, though enlisted for six-year terms, would be required to report for intensive training only for short periods each year for three years and during the remaining three years would be furloughed subject to call to the colors in time of war

For the next fiscal year, when it is proposed to put this new policy into operation, congress will be asked to appropriate $182,717,036; the second year the amount will be $212,815,879; the third, $228,315,879, and annually thereafter if the policy were continued without change the army budget would be $182,234,559.

KITCHENER CONFERS WITH FRENCH CHIEFS

Paris, Nov. 9.—Lord Kitchener, British secretary for war, before leaving for the near east, conferred with Premier Briand, Minister of War Gallieni, and General Joffre, the French commander in chief.

This dispatch contains the first hint of the route taken by Lord Kitchener in proceeding to the Orient. It apparently bears out the report in London that his mission concludes an effort to coordinate the work of the general staffs of the allied armies.

Wilson-Bryan War Begins.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8. — The curtain has been raised upon what is bound to prove one of the most picturesque political dramas ever staged in Washington.

President Wilson has made his expected declaration for national defense. With echo-like promptness William Jennings Bryan has given an answer, an answer which places the former secretary of state in direct opposition to the President and which splits the Democratic party wide open.

POWERFUL NEW GUNS OF NAVY

DECLARED EQUAL TO 15-INCH WEAPONS IN FOREIGN FLEETS

California, Mississippi, and Idaho, Latest Additions, Carry Highest Type of Artillery.

Washington, Nov. 9. — Battleships now building for the United States navy will carry 14-inch, 50-caliber, guns which are believed by ordnance experts to be the equal of the 15-inch weapons in foreign navies, although of lighter weight. In his annual report, just made public, Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, chief of the navy ordnance bureau, says:

"With the object of keeping pace with the increased range of modern naval warfare the bureau has increased the power of the 14-inch guns for the California, Mississippi, and Idaho by increasing the length of the gun to 50 calibers and enlarging its chamber capacity. In order that these latest additions to the navy should carry the highest type of artillery the bureau took the bold step of ordering their guns without manufacturing a trial gun. The bureau's confidence in its design has been fully justified. The first gun proved not only gave the designed velocity and pressure exactly, but its additional longitudinal strength which has been provided for has resulted in these guns having less droop than any guns of larger caliber heretofore produced. As it stands these guns, although of lesser caliber and weight than the 15-inch guns now mounted abroad, are capable of penetrating the heaviest side armor at oblique impacts and at the greatest effective battle range, and give us the advantage of flatter trajectory, with greater volume of fire due to the increased number that we are permitted to mount on any ship of equal displacement."

12 DIE IN FACTORY FIRE

Bodies of 8 Women and 4 Men Taken From Candy Company's Building in Brooklyn.

New York, Nov. 8.—Twelve bodies, those of eight women and four men, all but one of whom have been identified, and the list of missing narrowed down to one man, summed up the casualties as the result of the fire in the Diamond Candy company's factory building in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn.

That several score more did not succumb to the flames and smoke which also caused injuries to almost 50 other workers in the building was due primarily to the thrilling rescue work of the police and firemen combined.

San Francisco, Nov. 8.—Attempting self crucifixion while suffering from religious mania, a stranger who gave his name later as Thomas D. St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8.—Lee Mow Lin, said to be the wealthiest Chinese in St. Louis, was sentenced in the federal court to five years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth on a charge of manufacturing opium without paying a government tax.

Stay of Execution Granted.

Denver, Col., Nov. 8.—The Colorado supreme court granted a stay of execution until January 2, 1916, in the case of James C. Bulgar, sentenced to die during the present week for the murder of Lloyd F. Nicodemus, a Denver hotel man. The court also directed that, in the meantime, an inquiry be directed by the district court to determine the question of Bulgar's present mental condition. Relatives claim he is insane. The action of the supreme court is said to have been unprecedented in Colorado.

ATTACKS WILSON'S DEFENSE PROGRAM

FORMER SECRETARY OF STATE BRYAN ISSUES FORMAL STATEMENT.

FIGHT IN CONGRESS EXPECTED

Nebraskan Says: "I Have Read the President's Speech With Sorrow and Concern. I feel It My Duty to Dissent."

Washington, Nov. 6.—Former Secretary Bryan came out squarely against President Wilson's national defense plan in a formal statement in which he took issue with the President's views as expressed before the Manhattan club in New York.

"The club," he said, "was no place for the enunciation of such a program, being the one place in the United States where the mammon worshiping portion of the Democratic party meet to exchange compliments.

"A departure from our traditions, a reversal of our national policy, a menace to our peace and safety and a challenge to the spirit of Christianity, which teaches us to influence others by example rather than by exciting fear," is Mr. Bryan's view of the national defense plans.

Opening Gun in Fight.

The former secretary of state's statement, which reiterates views he has previously expressed on the subject of preparedness for war, was regarded as the opening gun in the fight which administration leaders expect in Congress against adoption of the plan.

Mr. Bryan's statement in part says:

"I have read the President's speech at New York with sorrow and concern. I feel it my duty to dissent, and as he has given his views with clearness and emphasis, those who differ with him are under a like obligation to express themselves with equal clearness."

"And if he is giving voice to the opinion of his countrymen," Bryan continued, "he is anxious to have them as frank with him as he has been with them—how otherwise can he know whether he represents or misrepresents their views?

Country Not Threatened.

"Why reverse our policy at this time? The President himself admits there is no reason for change. He says 'the country is not threatened from any quarter; she stands in friendly relation with all the world,' and to make the statement more emphatic, he adds: 'There is no fear among us, why is this time chosen to revolutionize our national theory and to exchange our policy for the policy of Europe? Why abandon the hope that we have so long entertained of setting an example to Europe?"

3 BELGIANS CONDEMNED TO DIE, BY COURTMARTIAL

Amsterdam, via London, Nov. 9.—A dispatch from Brussels, by way of Berlin, says:

"A field courtmartial has sentenced to death three Belgians and condemned another to 12 years' imprisonment. Since February, 1915, the condemned had noted all military transports proceeding to and returning from the front along two railway lines, which information they communicated to the Allies. The sentences were confirmed and executed."

Munday Charges Persecution.

Morris, Ill., Nov. 8.—Charles B. Munday testified that from the opening of the La Salle Street National bank, the first Lorimer-Munday venture, to the close of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, insidious influences were at work against the enterprises and himself. These hostile influences, he said, developed into persecution by Chicago bankers and newspapers and resulted in the failure of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, successor of the La Salle Street National bank.

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

A New Remedy for Kidney, Bladder and all Uric Acid Troubles

Dr. Eberle and Dr. Braithwaite as well as Dr. Simon—all distinguished Authors—agree that whatever may be the disease, the urine seldom fails in furnishing us with a clue to the principles upon which it is to be treated, and accurate knowledge concerning the nature of disease can thus be obtained. If backache, scalding urine or frequent urination bother or distress you, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, gout or sciatica or you suspect kidney or bladder trouble just write Dr. Pierce at the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.; send a sample of urine and describe symptoms. You will receive free medical advice after Dr. Pierce's chemist has examined the urine—this will be carefully done without charge, and you will be under no obligation. Dr. Pierce during many years of experimentation has discovered a new remedy which is thirty-seven times more powerful than lithia in removing uric acid from the system. If you are suffering from backache or the pains of rheumatism, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50 cent box of "Anuric" put up by Doctor Pierce, or send 10c for a large trial pck'g. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak women and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood have been favorably known for the past forty years and more. They are standard remedies to-day—as well as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for the liver and bowels. You can have a sample of any one of these remedies by writing Dr. Pierce, and sending 10c for trial package.

Landlord's Way.

John Barrymore, the actor, was talking about Germany's submarine policy in New York.

"When Germany told us we Americans might cross the seas in safety provided we used such ships as she offered, I nearly died laughing," he said.

"I was irresistibly reminded of the poet who complained to his landlord:

"'Landlord, I really must insist on your repairing my doors and windows. They close so badly that it interrupts my work. It blows my hair all about my face.'

"'Humph,' said the landlord. 'The easiest way out of that difficulty is for you to get your hair cut off.'"—New York Times.

Salmon Thrive in Maine.

Success has been met by the bureau of fisheries in establishing humpback salmon on the Maine coast, according to reports from that territory. The fish were planted in February, 1914. Many fish weighing five to seven and a half pounds have been taken or seen in Penobscot river, Me., and twenty were captured alive by agents of the bureau near Bangor and held in an effort to obtain ripe eggs. From two of these fish 3,000 eggs were taken September 6, and, after fertilization, sent to the Craig Brook hatchery for incubation. Local fishermen caught and ate large numbers, and an employee of the Green Lake hatchery took fifteen fish last week. These had passed through the fishways in dams in Dennys river and were dropping down stream in a spent condition; at the same time both live and dead fish were observed below the dams.

TURN OVER TIME

When Nature Hints About the Food.

When there's no relish to food and all that one eats doesn't seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn-over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Meal times were our busiest; and eating too much and too quickly of food such as is commonly served in hotels and restaurants, together with the sedentary habits, were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seemed to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a trial of Grape-Nuts food, and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong, and with satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up the use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health.

"Most people eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, thus hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is predigested and concentrated in nourishment."

"There's a Reason."

STATE BREVITIES

Duluth. — More than 1,000 men have been sent to lumber camps tributary to this point in a week and more are going out every day.

Lake City. — The first annual tri-county dairymen's convention, said to be the first in southern Minnesota this year, will be held here Nov. 18 and 19.

Rochester. — Paul Fischer, a theater employe here, was a victim of a holdup, the first to be reported as a consequence of dark streets, owing to the destruction of the light plant.

Brainerd. — The shortest grand jury session in the history of Crow Wing county has been completed at district court here. It sat five hours, returned three indictments and adjourned.

Thief River Falls.—One thousand educators were expected at the annual convention of the Northwestern Minnesota Educational association which convened here Thursday, nearly 200 having registered before 9 a. m.

Albert Lea. — The Clover creamery plant in Pickerel Lake township, including residence, power plant, all equipment and other creamery buildings adjoining, was sold under the hammer for $206. The property was worth about $3,000.

Rochester. — A. D. Allis of Oronoco, this county, one of the "forty-niners" who made the overland trip to California during the gold rush, is planning another trip to that state next month to be made under the most modern conditions.

Bemidji. — Charged with embezzling $269, Christian N. Thompson, postmaster at Nebish, was arrested and arraigned before United States Commissioner H. A. Simons. He waived examination and will appear before the federal grand jury Nov. 9. He gave $1,000 bonds.

St. Cloud. — The state authorities may be asked to take a hand in the efforts of the normal school authorities to persuade the city commissioners to have the Tenth street bridge repaired so that the noise from passing automobiles and teams will not interfere with the classes.

St. Peter. — The city council has passed an ordinance making students and minors liable to a fine or imprisonment if they enter any place in St. Peter where intoxicating liquors are served as a beverage. This ordinance also makes it unlawful for them to procure cigars and tobaccos.

Virginia. — Virginia voted 569 to 206 to retain the ward aldermanic form of government. The charter commission had submitted plans for government by five commissioners or by a city manager to be employed by a board of low salaried commissioners. The commission form was defeated in every ward.

Waconia. — John Lindner, a pioneer of this county, and Henry Vahl, a neighbor, were killed and Valentine Lindner, a son, was seriously injured in a cave-in of a ditch they were building to drain a mud lake on the Lindner and Vahl farms three miles from here, and Mr. and Mrs. James Horn were severely injured when their automobile overturned while they were speeding to the scene of the accident.

Bemidji. — Legislation that will affect more than 500,000 acres of land in northern Minnesota will be discussed at a meeting to be held at Federal Dam about Dec. 8, when the matter of lowering the high water in the vicinity of Leech lake will be taken up. This action comes as the result of a conference of the Federal Dam Commercial club and George R. Ralph, formerly Minnesota state drainage engineer.

Duluth. — With the boom in shipbuilding it is expected that the yard of the American Shipbuilding company at the Head of the Lakes, idle except as a repair yard for many years, will be used this winter. So many contracts have been made for the construction of new giant steamers for the Great Lakes, and a number for Norway, that almost all of the yard berths on the Great Lakes are filled.

Mankato. — Miss Esther Miller of Smith's Mill, 21 years old, whose marriage to Arthur Tarne, a young farmer, was to take place Wednesday, was found dead in her bed by her mother. Her death is thought to have occurred from natural causes. She had spent the evening with her betrothed, addressing invitations to the wedding. Her trousseau will be her shroud. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. August Miller, farmers, living near the Waseca county line.

Duluth. — A delegation of Lake Vermilion Indians invaded the lobby of the Spalding hotel here to interview Congressman C. B. Miller. They marched in in single file, found the congressman seated in the lobby, surrounded him and held a powwow. Their quest was to have the congressman procure permission for them to hunt and fish on Vermilion lake, which they cannot do now, owing to the state game and fish laws being enforced on the Indian reservation.

Duluth. — The La Follette seamen's act passed by the last congress went into effect last Thursday on the Great Lakes and oceans. For the past ten days government inspectors of vessels here have been rushed harder than at any time since the offices were established, examining sailors as to their seamanship and physical ability.

St. Cloud.—Declaring he was about to commit suicide and asking that his wife at Little Falls be notified, Joseph Wittmer was apprehended here and sent back to Little Falls for examination in probate court.

DISEASES DAMAGE POTATOES IN STATE

MINNESOTA EXPERIMENT STATION URGES EXTREME CARE IN STORAGE OF CROP.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

Extreme care in the storage of potatoes is urged by the Minnesota experiment station as a consequence of the appearance of "late blight dry rot" and "black leg rot" which have done and are doing considerable damage in different parts of the state. E. C. Stakman of the division of plant pathology in the college of agriculture, after personal observation in the potato growing districts, said that all loss from late blight dry rot could have been prevented by proper spraying. About all that can be done now is to provide the best of storage to prevent further loss. Potatoes showing evidence of black leg infection should be rejected when seed potatoes are selected in the spring. The tubers selected for seed should be treated in corrosive sublimate, 4 ounces to 30 gallons, but the treated tubers should not be used for food or fed to stock on account of the danger of poisoning.

To Make Few Changes.

It is doubtful if the efficiency and economy commission will attempt anything like a complete reorganization of the state's administrative departments at the session in January. The governor favors a complete scheme on the order of the one presented to the legislature last winter, but the members who were in the city last week indicated they favor progressive reorganizations; that they will recommend as many reforms as they think can be passed through the legislature, and leave the balance to a future session. The state inspection system probably will be reorganized completely. The hotel, the oil, dairy and food inspectors and probably some others will be included in one body, so that when one inspector visits a town he may do all the inspecting that is necessary there under the law. Where experts in any line are needed, their employment will be recommended, but the first object of the commission will be to avoid duplication of work.

State to Borrow $3,000,000.

Within the next month State Treasurer Smith will make an arrangement for a loan of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 in order to carry the state over until March 1, next, when railroad gross earning taxes will be available. The money is needed to care for salaries and other expenses of the state which are met by the revenue fund. This heavy loan is made necessary because of the heavy expenditure for school purposes which falls due this month. Generally the state is compelled to pay from 4 to 5 per cent. The money is procured from the banks of the two cities and generally for a short period.

Governor's Aid Asked.

Governor Hammond has been asked to offer a reward for Walter Brackett, a farmer living near St. Cloud, who disappeared Sept. 24, and whom relatives think was kidnaped and killed. The governor was interested in the case by Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith. Sheriff Langum, a friend of Brackett's, and Brackett's relatives brought the case to Mr. Smith's attention. Sheriff Langum and a private detective were called by the governor to confer concerning the details of Brackett's disappearance. The missing man's parents live at Excelsior.

Fire Marshall at Trial.

R. W. Hargadine, state fire marshal, was at Redwood Falls to attend the trial of three men charged with arson in the first degree. The men are T. H. Jordan, M. E. Garvey and J. W. Keyes. Keyes is said to have made a written confession, in which he is alleged to have said that he was hired by the other two for $700 to start the blaze in a hotel at Seaforth, Redwood county.

Plans for Museum.

Detailed plans for four floors and a basement for the proposed museum and library of the Minnesota Historical society have been received by the state board of control, which will supervise the construction. The building will be heated and lighted from the Capitol heating plant, connection being made through a tunnel.

May Reduce Taxes.

The supreme court will consider the matter of reduction of taxes asked by the Western Union Telegraph company Dec. 1. The telegraph company seeks a reduction in its taxes on the ground that it should be assessed in class 4 of the classified assessment law instead of under the special law affecting telegraph companies. If the contention of the telegraph company is upheld by the court the company will pay $17,616 instead of $44,040 as figured by the Minnesota tax commission.

VERY MUCH IN WRONG "BATH"

Guest's Mistake, It Will Be Understood, Was Not a Thing to Be Wildly Advertised.

Smythe's mistake, which is described in an English contemporary, must have been disconcerting, to say the least.

"You'll find your bath in the out'ouse."

Thus he had been directed the night before at the little inn where he was stopping, and that is why he was now in his dressing gown, pushing open the outhouse door. It was dark, but there was the tub, and it would do. He hopped in. In the middle of his ablutions the red-faced landlord thrust his head in at the door. In the dim light he failed to see the man in the tub.

"Water quite nicely warm, thanks," observed Smythe, "but it's a trifle muddy."

"Muddy be hanged!" roared the landlord, bursting in suddenly. "Your tub's in the next place. Git out of it, you blitherin' idiot! Not a word of this in the 'ouse! That's my 'ome-brewed ale you're a-washin' in!"

Thought Umbrellas Unmilitary.

Umbrellas and khaki seem a most unlikely combination; yet one instance is recorded of British soldiers taking their umbrellas into action, according to the London Chronicle. On December 10, 1813, during the battle of the Nive, the Grenadier guards captured a redoubt outside Bayonne. While they were in possession of this Wellington passed by and noticed that the officers had umbrellas up to protect themselves from the heavy rain.

He sent back his aide-de-camp, Lord Arthur Hill, to tell them that "the duke does not approve of the use of umbrellas in action. The guards' officers may, if they pleace, carry umbrellas even in uniform when on duty at St. James; but in the field it is not only ridiculous, but unmilitary."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT. EDITOR
M. G. HUNT. PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August '30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Congress is to meet December 2nd, then we can expect to hear some war oratory.

The Democrats carried Mississippi by a big majority last week, as was expected, but it was a close race for them in old Kentucky.

Germany would now consider peace terms, if their opponents will give up Poland, and pay them a big war indemnity, which does not sound much like peace over in Europe for some time.

Bryan is traveling around the country giving President Wilson the 'darndest' roasting that a man ever got since Roosevelt roasted Taft. Things will be reversed next year with two parties of Democrats and one Republican.

Billy Sunday who is holding revival meetings at Syracuse, N, Y., speaks of way out in Minnesota, where they have few churches. Better come way out to Minnesota Billy, and see if you can't find a few churches.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette is authority for the statement that the county option issue did not have any part in their city election, and that the fight was purely a local one, in which the liquor dealers took no active part on either side.

John Lind, former governor of Minnesota is down in Mexico advising Carranza how to run that government. John may find it a different proposition to manage the greasers of Mexico, than it is to manage his Swedish brethren of Minnesota.

Thos. H. Smith sold the Thief River Falls Times to R. H. Ross last week. Mr. Ross has been city editor of The Times for the last nine months, and will undoubtedly give the people of Thief River Falls and Pennington county a good live up to date weekly paper. Mr. Smith will go into the new bank at Mavie, as its cashier, so the Times must have been a paying investment for him.

Red Lake Falls will undoubtedly enjoy a big business boom during the next year, and it is up to the law abiding citizens of that place to see that good order and law enforcement are maintained, so that people can not point at them and say, "See what the licensed saloon is doing for Red Lake Falls," but rather let them say, "See how property values have increased in Red Lake County, since Polk and Pennington counties voted out license."

The last weeks election in the different eastern states, developed the fact, that there is now only one Republican party in place of two. This indicates that the party will go into the next presidential campaign with one candidate for president. The party has made substantial gains in nearly all of the states, but they do not need to gain a vote from what they polled three years ago, as Taft and Roosevelt had a big majority over President Wilson, who was elected by a plurality of votes. The present conditions of the country, by the loss of its revenue by Wilson's tariff policy will be sufficent to swing the Republican voters into solid line.

JERSEY DOES NOT "STAND BY."

For a quarter of a century 'long about campaign time political gatherings were invariably marked by this roar, "What's the matter with Smith?" and the chorused reply would be, "Hee-zall-right!" If one were to ask this year, "What's the matter with New Jersey?" there could be no such reply from the Democratic throats. Indeed, the President's home state is all wrong as related to 1916.

Again, it was well that the White House kept silent about that common wealth. A smashing defeat for suffrage at the special election in October was also a withering answer to the plea of the President for its support. The reply of the state last month is now made worse by the reply to the Democratic spellbinders that a defeat of the Democratic ticket in New Jersey would be a moral defeat for the executive and be construed by the country at large as a decided failure of the home state of the President to hold up his hands. Now that New Jersey has voted its convictions it would be just as well for the Democrats to admit that they did make a plea for support on the ground of indorsement for the President and that the plea was flouted.

Why did New Jersey do this? Why did New Jersey increase the number of Republican assemblymen? It's true enough that these state legislators have nothing to do with the tariff, but it's also true that the state of mind very largely that elected Republicans this year in close districts is the state of mind that will next year send Republicans to congress. Have the Democratic leaders so soon forgotten the special congressional election in the Seventh New Jersey district when Dow H. Drukker overturned the Democratic vote of 1912, and did it wholly on the issue of the tariff?—The Duluth News Tribune.

There is a widespread conviction that the game laws should be rigidly observed by other people. —Crookston Daily Times.

COMPLEXION BLEMISH?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c. and $1.00. —Adv.

IRRITABLE CHILDREN OFTEN NEED KICKAPOO WORM KILLER

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box.—Adv.

There is a certain dear old lady who owns a little farm and takes a few boarders in summer.

Recently an anxious young mother who has been industriously delving into medical literature of late inquired of the old lady whether or not the milk that was served at her table was pasteurized.

"Of course!" was the old lady's indignant reply. "Don't we keep all the cows we've got in the pasture all summer long?"—Youth's Companion.

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1915. NO. 36

THE LOCAL NEWS

The weather has been very fair this week.

The roads are now reported to be in good condition from here to Oklee.

William Causin and family will move into their new farm residence next Monday.

Eddie Hyland finished thrashing in this neighborhood this week.

There is to be a big Thanksgiving ball at the hall of P. L. Wojnarowski in the town of Hickory, on Saturday evening November 27th. All are invited.

The grade on ditch 42 was not completed this fall, and it now looks as if the farmers would be deprived of the use of it for another year at least.

Wm. Causin jogged his subscription up for two years this week, for which he has our thanks. "Go thou and do likewise."

There is to be a big Farmers Club meeting at the Myrum school house in the town of Mayfield, on next Sunday afternoon. All are invited to attend and take part.

Jerry O'Brien of Cavalier, N. Dak., is visiting his brother James O'Brien, and his sister Mrs. Wm. Causin, this week, and looking after his realestate interest in this locality.

Read the ad of K. A. Korstad published in another column, and take advantage of his cloak sale to get your winter cloaks for the whole family, as his prices are lower than any of the catalogs are offering the same class of goods at.

We are again going to give Farm Stock and Home absolutely free to all subscribers who pay up their subscription to this paper. We have sent out a large number of bills, but have received very few responses up to the present time. Please give this your attention as we are in need of the cash at the present time.

It does not look as if the farmers were holding their grain, as it takes a wait of about two hours at either one of the elevators at Oklee, before there is a chance to unload a load of wheat as there is a string of teams lined up all day unloading wheat. Part of this grain will be marketed at Goodridge, as soon as the government fence freezes over so teams can cross it.

State Insurance Commissioner Works is out with a caution statement about being careful of setting fires by overheated stoves and gasoline. He of course does not say anything about saturating old clothing with kerosine oil, and then putting a lighted candle in them, so that when the candle burnt down so far, it would set the clothing on fire, and thus insure the destruction of the building that had been insured for about twice its value.

Jim Jacobson got one of his horses ducked in the Red Lake River Monday, while trying to get across the river on the Highlanding ferry. There are all kinds of risks run by people that are determined to cross the river at this time of year, and the only safe way to cross, is to go down to Thief River Falls, where the river is non-navigable and they have bridges across it. Do you see the point my misguided friends of the eastern part of the county? Let us get our end declared nonnavigable, so we too can get some bridges.

Ye editor is working at the carpenters trade this week.

Thursday November 25th, has been designated as Thanksgiving day. Prepare to eat turkey.

We have a quarter section of fine land for sale, at about half price, if taken soon. Inquire at this office.

The First National Corn Show is to be held at St. Paul in December, but the trouble with the people up this way is that they have no corn to show this year.

One of the youngsters who was out skating this week tried the experiment of crawling through the big culvert on Ditch 53 on the ice, but when he got to the center of the culvert the ice gave away, and gave him a good ducking.

The People Appealed.

The people of the former Malone postoffice, in the township of Mayfield have appealed to Postmaster General Burleson, with a petition to correct the injustice done them in mail service. In case that Postmaster General Burleson refuses to act in the matter, the people will appeal to President Wilson. There was never a case come under our observation of a more flagrant abuse of the rights of the people than has developed in this instance. These pioneer farmers have suffered the lack of mail service for the past eight years that has been accorded to other parts of eastern Pennington county, and petitioned the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General to JUST allow the mail carrier on the Sunbeam-Rhoda route to drive by their way three times a week and bring them their mail. But it appears that this arrangement was not satisfactory to the Singer politicians, and Stephen Singer, postmaster at Kratka, had a word or two to say about it, in order to assist his father George Singer to gather up the cancellation of this territory for his post office, and against the petition of the people and the reccommendation of Congressman Steenerson, his honor the assistant of the Fourth Assistant put in the route wrong end to, to please the assistant of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General located at Kratka, who lives four miles from the route, on a different mail route.

Injustices of this kind should be exposed to the people, and we are waiting patiently to hear what action will be taken in the matter by Postmaster General Burleson, who has the petition of the people before him on one side, and the reccommendations of the fourth class politicians on the other side. Which will win?

So far as we are personally concerned we have endeavored to represent the rights of the people of the town of Mayfield, and we have got into about the condition of the man who had a $25 horse balk in crossing a rail road track. He was afraid that a train would come along for the first half hour, but when he could not get the old horse started, he began to pray that a train would come along, and finally there was one come and threw the old horse off the track and killed him, and he sued the railroad company for $200 damage, and got it.

So you see my friends that if we can not get justice from the party now in power, we will have to wait until a year from next March, when the injustice of your case will help to put a party into power that will listen to the reccommendations of your congressman instead of politicians.

You know the Railroads are talking a good deal these days about the "Safety Habit." It is not a safety razor or a safety bicycle, it's safety for the lives intrusted to their care.

The principle applies to the banking business. Our bank employed the Safety Habit at the outset—safety to the depositors money intrusted to our care. Every dollar left with us will be taken care of. Safety is our watch word. We would like to have your account on this basis.

Military Pensions in Servia.

Servian soldiers enjoy a pension, granted only to invalid cases. The ordinary veteran who does not suffer some injury which would render him invalid does not receive a pension, military service in Servia being compulsory. Invalid pensions in Servia are paid by the year—that is, each applicant who is granted a pension receives a certain sum each year. In case the soldier receives injuries which would render him partially invalid he receives only part of the yearly amount, most likely one-half, but in case of the soldier being totally invalid he gets the full amount.

Some Hope of Finish.

WHEN THE BLOOD IS PURE.

Then Disease Germs Are Rarely Able to Infect Our Tissues.

The popular notion that the prompt healing of a cut or other wound is an evidence of purity of blood has a sound scientific basis. When the skin is broken germs in large or small numbers are thereby admitted to the sacred precincts of the tissues from which they are ordinarily excluded by the dense structure of the skin. When the tissues are maintained in a healthy state by pure and vigorous blood the few germs which enter are quickly destroyed, so that the formation of pus, or so called suppuration, does not occur, but when the blood is not pure, so that the serum and the cells are not able to make the necessary active defense, the germs grow and develop, suppuration occurs and the wound, if large, may require a long time to heal.

We might represent this by picturing in our mind a glass globe filled with water and fishes and other small creatures swimming about in it. Now imagine that indigo, ink or coloring matter of some other sort is dropped into the water. It will immediately become tinged, and if the coloring matter is of a poisonous character the fishes will soon show uneasiness and unless relieved by a replacement of the impure water by a fresh supply will soon die. This is just the condition of the living cells of the body when bathed in impure blood. The stomach cells which secrete the gastric juice, the muscle cells which contract, the liver cells which make bile, the brain cells which think—every one is definitely and seriously injured by the impurities brought in contact with it. Impure blood, then, must be regarded as the foundation of a large portion of all the diseases from which human beings suffer.—J. H. Kellogg, M. D., in Good Health.

NEW SUBMARINE PROBLEM FACING PRESIDENT NOW

AUSTRIAN CLAIM THAT ANCONA PASSENGERS MIGHT HAVE BEEN SAVED INTRODUCES NEW PHASE.

WHAT TIME IS AMPLE FOR PASSENGERS TO ESCAPE?

Statement Shows That Vessel After Being Halted Did Not Put Passengers Off in the Boats in 45 Minutes' Time Given for That Purpose.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville), Nov. 15.—The Austro-Hungarian admiralty has officially announced that the Italian steamship Ancona attempted to escape at full speed after a warning shot had been fired across her bows and that the vessel only stopped after being shelled several times by an Austrian submarine, says the Overseas News agency.

The statement says

"The submarine fired one shot in front of the Ancona's prow, whereupon the vessel flew at full speed in accordance with the order issued by the Italian authorities, which instructs ship commanders to flee or to sink the submarine. The submarine pursued the steamer and continued firing, but the vessel stopped only after being hit several times.

Given 45 Minutes to Escape.

"The submarine allowed 45 minutes for the passengers and crew to abandon the steamer on board of which panic reigned, but only a small number of boats were lowered and these were occupied principally by the crew.

"A great number of boats, probably sufficient to save all the passengers, remained unoccupied.

"After a period of 50 minutes and as another steamer was approaching the submarine submerged and torpedoed the Ancona, which sank after an additional 45 minutes.

Deaths Due to Crew's Fault.

"If any of the passengers lost their lives this was due to the fault of the crew because the steamer tried to escape after it had received orders to stop and then the crew only saved themselves and not the passengers.

"Reports published in the foreign press that the submarine fired on the Ancona's lifeboats are mendacious inventions. When the steamer stopped the submarine ceased firing."

CLAIM ANCONA, WARNED, FLED

Rome, Nov. 15.—Of the Americans who were on board the Italian steamship Ancona when she was sunk by a submarine off the Tunisian coast, only one was saved; according to a statement issued by the Italian emigration office.

The statement also says that out of 507 passengers and crew of the Ancona only 299 were saved.

Washington, Nov. 15.—The charge made by the Austrian authorities that the crew of the Italian liner, Ancona, was negligent and that the passengers might have been saved, but for the panic, has introduced a new phase into the submarine controversy.

The Austrian statement with reference to the Ancona makes it appear that the vessel after being halted did not put her passengers off in the boats in the 45 minutes' time given for the purpose. The appearance of another ship is given as the reason for torpedoing the vessel at the end of that period.

What Time Considered Ample?

Although the United States has insisted that vessels carrying non-combatants be not sunk without warning, no case has as yet developed the view of the Washington government as to what time is considered ample for the purpose beyond the general statement that all passengers should be removed to a place of safety as provided in the declaration of London.

Conflicting reports in the press concerning the sinking of the Ancona caused uneasiness among high officials of the United States government.

Austria Admits Responsibility.

Secretary Lansing read without comment dispatches purporting to give the official views of the Italian and Austrian governments, the former claiming the Ancona was torpedoed by a German submarine, while her boats were being lowered, and the latter admitting that an Austrian submarine was responsible but declaring that ample time was given passengers and crew to escape.

Until the embassies at Rome and Vienna cable definite information the American government will be unable to take any steps diplomatically.

Italians Lose Heavily in Africa.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—"Constantinople reports received here give details of Italian disasters in Lybia, northern Africa," says the Overseas News Agency. "Arabs have conquered Dshefra, Hum Radan, Zallein, Urfele, Misrata, Turga and Tarhuna. The Italian losses were heavy. In addition, the Arabs captured 20 cannon and three machine guns and plenty of ammunition. The Italian troops which attem[illegible] to assist in Tarhuna must rei[illegible] oll after having suffered [illegible]

Should Be Thankful for Peace.

Governor Hammond in his Thanksgiving proclamation says the greatest blessing for which the people of Minnesota should give thanks November 25 is that the nation is at peace.

The proclamation in part, is as follows:

"The people of Minnesota have special reason to give thanks to God for His blessings through and by which they have peace and contentment.

"Unfortunately some who possess more of the world's goods than they need give too little heed to others who have less than actual necessities demand, and so suffer. Will not the prosperous at this time look for those who are in want?

"In the midst of the greatest war the world has ever known, America is at peace. Our hearts bleed for the stricken ones. We pray that the terrible conflict may end."

GOPHER STATE NOTES

Moorhead.—A sectional meeting of teachers of home economics in the state normal schools of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota will take place at the normal school here December 3 and 4.

Albert Lea.—Somebody painted red the entrance of the new church at Hartland, and as a result war is threatened again between opposing factions among members of the five Lutheran churches of this county. The followers of T. J. Strand, ousted minister, who built the church, say the anti-Strand faction daubed on the paint.

Minneapolis.—Charles C. Daniels of North Carolina, special assistant to the attorney general and for the last 18 months in charge of the government's prosecution of White Earth Indian land cases, is to be superseded in office by a Minnesota man. Mr. Daniels, who is a brother of Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and a close friend and follower of William Jennings Bryan, is either to be ousted from the government service or transferred to some other part of the country.

Duluth. — The village council of Hibbing, "the richest village in the world," where the U. S. Steel corporation and other iron mining companies have refused to pay certain taxes, alleging "extravagance," has called a special election to be held Nov. 30 to vote on a proposition to sell $1,500,000 in bonds to care for floating indebtedness of about that amount. Several mining companies' officials are said to have declared their intention of fighting the bond issue in the courts.

St. Paul. — Four suits to recover money and notes paid for stock in the Farmers' Terminal Packing company of St. Paul, have been filed in the Ramsey county district court. The plaintiffs are: Peter Olson, Cumberland, Wis.; John Carlson, Comstock, Wis.; E. P. Erlandson, Holdingford, Minn., and John Nelson, Upsala, Minn. The company, Mr. Olson charges, does not own the 164 acres near St. Paul intended for a site and the land, instead of $200 an acre, as represented, is not worth more than $75. The plant when completed will not have the capacity represented, it is charged, and not more than $100,000 worth of stock had been sold when it was stated that $250,000 worth had been sold.

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

A medicinal preparation like Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that has real curative value almost sells itself. Like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a physician's prescription. It has been tested for years and has brought results to countless numbers who have suffered.

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Do not suffer. Get a bottle of Swamp-Root from any druggist now. Start treatment today.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

A Million Miles of Work.

In the years 1905 to 1913 inclusive the survey vessels of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie institution covered 160,000 miles, determining the magnetic elements at average intervals of 175 miles. Its land expeditions covered 800,000 miles and established about 2,500 stations. Thus by land and sea they traveled approximately a million miles, or forty times the circumference of the earth.

Medical Examination Day.

During tuberculosis week, which will be celebrated throughout the United States from December 6 to December 12, a national medical examination day will be observed on December 8. Groups and individuals will be urged to make arrangements for physical examination on that day. A circular describing in detail how the advantages of medical examination day may be obtained and indicating certain physical impairments which everyone should look for will be sent on request from the office of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, 105 East Twenty-second street, New York city.

It is cheaper to go by way of the water wagon, and that will account for a number of the fares.

CHANGE

Quit Coffee and Got Well.

A woman's coffee experience is interesting. "For two weeks at a time I have taken no food but skim milk, for solid food would ferment and cause such distress that I could hardly breathe at times, also excruciating pain and heart palpitation and all the time I was so nervous and restless.

"From childhood up I had been a coffee and tea drinker and for the past 20 years I had been trying different physicians but could get only temporary relief. Then I read an article telling how some one had been helped by leaving off coffee and drinking Postum and it seemed so pleasant just to read about good health I decided to try Postum.

"I made the change from coffee to Postum and there is such a difference in me that I don't feel like the same person. We all found Postum delicious and like it better than coffee. My health now is wonderfully good.

"As soon as I made the shift to Postum I got better and now my troubles are gone. I am fleshy, my food assimilates, the pressure in the chest and palpitation are all gone, my bowels are regular, have no more stomach trouble and my headaches are gone. Remember I did not use medicines at all—just left off coffee and used Postum steadily." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

CAPTURE OF VELES BY FRENCH IS NEAR; BULGARS PERILED

FALL OF SERBIAN TOWN HELD BY BULGARIANS IMMINENT —ARMISTICE TO BURY DEAD ASKED.

SERBS RETREAT BEFORE AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCES

Defenders Fighting Continuously and Inflicting Great Losses on Their Pursuers—Central Powers Again Protest to Greece Against Landing of Allied Troops.

Paris, Nov. 15.—The Athens correspondent of the Havas Agency says that news from a private source reported that the French were within seven miles of Veles, Serbia, which was held by the Bulgarians.

The Serbian legation here made public the following official communication:

"Although Veles is not yet in the hands of the French and British troops, the Bulgarians are hard pressed and the fall of the town is imminent. The Bulgarians in the region of Veles have suffered enormous losses and have requested an armistice to bury their dead."

London, Nov. 15.—The Serbians are falling back from mountain range to mountain range before the advance of the Austro-German forces, whose official reports enumerate the capture of a thousand or more prisoners, a few guns and quantities of stores daily.

The Serbians are fighting continuously, however, and are inflicting considerable losses on their pursuers.

Along the eastern front the Serbians appear to be holding their own against the Bulgarians and are making a stand on the western bank of the Morava river.

Bulgars Ask for Aid.

So stubborn has been their resistance the Bulgarians have had to call for assistance from the Austro-German artillery in their effort to drive the defenders out of Katchanik Pass.

Thus far they have been unsuccessful.

The British and French troops, which are receiving reinforcements, are meeting with some success, and besides results from the Bulgarian attacks, have undertaken small offensive movements with good results.

The Austro-Germans and Bulgarians, however, made such progress from the beginning of the campaign that it will take serious work now to check them.

Teutons Protest to Greece.

For the moment, the political situation is graver than the military. The central powers have again protested to Greece against the landing of Allied troops at Saloniki. King Constantine is reported to have replied that as Saloniki is an open port there has been no infringement of Greek rights in the landing and that Greece will remain neutral until one of the belligerents has transgressed those rights.

France and Italy, who has now joined her Allies by sending a warship to Saloniki, are particularly anxious as to the attitude of Greece.

The Russians have definitely repelled Field Marshal von Hindenburg's drive toward Riga and Dvinsk and along the Dvina river and have themselves taken the offensive but, apparently, owing to the state of the ground, have been unable to make only slow progress in the marsh region west of Riga.

VILLA PURSUED BY CARRANZA

Active Campaign Against Rebel Leader Begins With Arrival of Obregon at Agua Prieta.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 15. — With the arrival of General Alvaro Obregon at Agua Prieta, opposite here, from Nogales, the Carranza forces have begun their active campain against the army of General Francisco Villa in Sonora.

Naco Sonora was occupied by 1,500 Carranza cavalry under command of Colonel Lazaro Cardenas. These troops entered the town without opposition.

Leaving a small garrison to hold Naco, Colonel Cardenas immediately went in pursuit of a Villa column headed by General Jose Rodriguez, who had been operating just across the international boundary near Naco.

General Rodriguez and a Villa column were said to be retreating toward Cananea.

WESTERN CANADA CONTINUES TO WIN

The 1915 Yield of Grain Keeps Western Canada to the Front.

The great publicity that has been given to the grain yields of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the three provinces that comprise that portion of Western Canada east of the British Columbia boundary, has kept Canada to the front with a prominence that is merited.

The grain crop of the three provinces has now been harvested, and sufficient of it has been threshed so that it is no longer a matter of estimate as to the returns. It is safe to say that the entire yield of wheat will be upwards of 275,000,000 bushels, and the average yield well over 25 bushels per acre. In proportion to the aggregate this is perhaps the largest yield ever known on the continent.

Most of this wheat will grade No. 1 northern, and better, and with present prices the condition of the farmer is to be envied. Many individual yields are reported, and verified, and they are almost beyond belief, but they go to show that under the careful system of agriculture that produced these yields Western Canada would have far exceeded a 300,000,000 production of wheat in 1915 had the system been universal.

It was not in one or two districts that big yields have been made known. The reports come from all parts of the 24,000 square miles of territory in which the growing of wheat is carried on.

Mr. Elmir Seller, a farmer south of Strassburg, Sask., has harvested 5,465 bushels No. 1 hard wheat from 160 acres.

Jas. A. Benner, near Daysland, Alberta, says his wheat went over 40 bushels to the acre, with an all round crop of 33 bushels to the acre.

J. N. Wagner, near the same place, also lays claim to over 40 bushels of wheat per acre.

A Norwegian farmer, named S. A. Tofthagen, not far from Daysland, had 23 acres of wheat which gave a yield of 47 bushels to the acre.

Well, then, near Gleichen, Alberta, D. H. Engle of Humboldt, Iowa, owns a quarter section of land. This land was rented so that Mr. Engle should receive one-third of the crop, and this gave him $612.65 his net rental for the crop, and there was only 80 acres in crop.

Scores of reports give yields fully as large as those given above. A large field of spring wheat near Lethbridge averaged 69 bushels, another 59 and a third 56 bushels per acre. On the Jail farm at Lethbridge 25 acres of Marquis wheat yielded 60 bushels to the acre and weighed 67 pounds to the bushel. A test lot of one acre of Marquis wheat when threshed yielded 99 bushels and a 30 acre field averaged 60 1-3 bushels. This farm had 200 acres under crop to Marquis wheat and it is expected the average from the whole will exceed 50 bushels.

In all portions of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, as well, remarkable yields are reported, many large fields showing averages of from 40 to 55 bushels per acre.

When the story of this year's threshing is completed some extraordinary yields will be heard of. One farmer west of Unity, Saskatchewan, threshed 10,000 bushels of No. 1 northern from 200 acres and such instances will not be isolated.

Considerable of the wheat grown in Western Canada is finding its way to the markets of the United States, notwithstanding the duty of ten cents per bushel. The miller in the United States finds Western Canadian wheat necessary for the blending of the high class flour that is demanded by some millers. Already nearly a hundred thousand bushels of the 1915 crop has found its way to the Minneapolis, Duluth, St Louis and other markets.

It was not in wheat alone that there were extraordinary yields. A farmer living south of Wadena, Sask., harvested 900 bushels of oats from ten acres. S. A. Tofthagen of Daysland before referred to had oats which yielded 110 bushels to the acre, while those of J. N. Wagner went 90 bushels to the acre.

As is pointed out by a Toronto paper Canada's great good fortune and splendid service as the Granary of the Empire are revealed in the record harvest from her rich fields of wheat and other grains. "The foundation of its prosperity is solid and enduring. While mines may be exhausted and lumber may disappear through improvident management, agriculture is a perpetual source of wealth, increasing from year to year by the stimulus of individual industry and personal interest. A wheat harvest of 336,250,000 bushels from 13,000,000 acres, an average yield of 26 bushels to the acre. The substantial nature of this growth in production is shown by the fact that the harvest returns are 72 per cent greater than the average for the past five years.

The same satisfactory and highly important success has been attained in other grain crops. The aggregate yield of oats is 481,035,500 bushels from the 11,365,000 acres under crop. Of this yield 305,680,000 bushels are from the three Prairie Provinces. These provinces also contribute 304,200,000 bushels of wheat. The barley harvest is 50,868,000 bushels from 1,509,350 acres, an average yield of 33.7 bushels per acre."

"The impression one gets in going through Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba," said a traveler from the East, "is that all the horses and teams and all the threshing machines engaged make no impression on the crops and that it will take six months to thresh the grain out; but two weeks ago the Canadian Pacific railway were having a daily shipment of 1,700 cars of wheat from the three provinces, and a week ago they had got up to 2,100 cars a day. And besides this there is the Canadian Northern railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific so an enormous quantity must be being shipped out of the provinces. The wealthier farmers are building large granaries on their farms, while there is a great improvement in the storage facilities provided by the government."

It is therefore no wonder that the greatest interest was shown by those who attended the Soil Products Exposition held at Denver a short time ago, when it was demonstrated that it was not only in quantity that Western Canada still occupied the primary position. It was there that Western Canada again proved its supremacy. In wheat, it was early conceded that Canada would be a winner, and this was easily the case, not only did it win the big prize, but it carried off the sweepstakes. What, however, to those who were representing Canada at this exposition, was of greater value probably, was winning first and second prize for alfalfa. The exhibits were beautiful and pronounced by old alfalfa growers to be the best they had ever seen. First, second and third cuttings of this year's growth were shown.

At this same exposition, there were shown some excellent samples of fodder corn, grown in the Swift Current district.

Topping the range cattle market in Chicago a short time ago is another of the feats accomplished by Western Canada this year.

On Wednesday, October 13, Clay, Robinson and company sold at Chicago for E. H. Maunsell, Macleod Alberta, a consignment of cattle, 17 head of which, averaging 1,420 pounds, brought $8.90 per hundredweight, topping the range cattle market for the week to date. The same firm also sold for Mr. Maunsell 206 head, averaging 1,240 pounds, at $8.55, without a throwout. These were all grass cattle. They were purchased by Armour and company. Clay, Robinson and company describe the cattle as of very nice quality, in excellent condition, and a great credit to Mr. Maunsell. It speaks well for our Canadian cattle raisers that they can produce stock good enough to top the Chicago market against strong competition, there being over 4,000 range cattle on sale that day.

It is one thing to produce crops such as are referred to, and another to get them to market. The facilities of Western Canada are excellent. The railway companies, of which there are three, the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific have the mark of efficiency stamped upon all their work. Besides the main trunk lines of these systems, which extend from ocean to ocean, there are branch lines and laterals, feeders which enter into remote parts of the farming districts, and give to the farmer immediate access to the world's grain markets. The elevator capacity of the country is something enormous, and if the figures can be digested, the full extent of the grain producing powers of Western Canada may be realized. The total elevator capacity is about 170,000,000 bushels, or nearly one-half of the entire wheat production of the Dominion in 1915. Of this large storage facilities the country elevators number 2,800, with a capacity of 55,000,000 bushels.—Advertisement.

The Mother's Labor of Love

"To my mind the noblest holiday in the world is Thanksgiving. And next the Creator there is no one the holiday should be dedicated to as much as to mothers."—Abraham Lincoln.

PASS ON THE JOY OF THANKSGIVING

Making Others Glad Should Be Considered One of the Chief Duties of the Season.

IT'S the easiest thing in the world to look for trouble and to find it waiting, grim and terrible, for your search. It isn't very hard to count your blessings in a negative sort of way, by saying, "Yes, it's very nice, but it could be much nicer." It's quite the usual thing to hear folk complain—and complaining is heard more often than praise and thankfulness. Yet—so they tell us—a little over three hundred years ago a band of sturdy, venturesome Christian folk were very thankful indeed and praised their Lord fervently over a handful of parched corn and a bit of unleavened bread.

Once a year we set apart a day, consecrated to their memory, and try to throw aside the customs and complainings of the world as we know it. We gather together—families of us—and eat turkey and plum pudding; we talk of commonplaces and sometimes we feel bored and tired. Yet we are supposed to be celebrating.

We have bushels of things to be glad for this year—hundreds; it seems more than we ever had. As we offer up our blessings it won't be hard to remember that across a dividing bit of ocean other people are starving to death, and that ought to make us just a bit more thankful. As we see our families sitting around talking commonplaces it may help us to think of other families in other countries that are fighting and dying on blood-stained battlefields. As we hear the crisp November wind banging in the trees, we ought to be mighty thankful that it isn't the sound of cannon and bugles and screams that we're hearing. Oh, friends of mine, it won't be very hard to be thankful this year!

As I was walking down Fourth avenue a few days ago I was thinking, with my head in the clouds, of many things; thinking so hard that I did not notice exactly where my feet were taking me. It was only when I stumbled against a little boy who was running around a corner that I came down to earth with a bump.

"Oh! I'm so sorry," I said. "Did I hurt you?"

"Dat's a' right, lady," said the little boy with a dirty Raphael-cherub grin. "I was only running!"

"Oh!"—he was lingering at my side, so I felt it necessary to make conversation—"you were running—playing something?"

"Huh!" the little boy grunted beatifically as he pulled up one ragged stocking. "Oh, no; I was jus' running fer fun."

His little face crinkled with smiles again and he trotted on out of my sight.

Just running for fun, for the pure joy of living. A little boy with nothing else to make him happy—and yet a number of us frown and fret in the midst of all sorts of pleasures.

I was talking to a chum of mine not long ago, and some way our conversation drifted around to Thanksgiving time, and our interpretation of the day.

"It's all wrong!" said my chum earnestly, "all wrong!"

"Why?" I asked curiously. "I'm always thankful for my blessings on Thanksgiving; so are most people. Why is it all wrong?"

"Well," answered my chum, "on Thanksgiving day we sit around and talk and eat—principally. I once asked a little girl what Thanksgiving day meant, and she said 'turkey and cranberry sauce!' And then we thank God complacently for our harvests, and our food, and our clothes, and his love. Isn't it so?"

"Yes," I admitted.

"Well," continued the girl, "the Pilgrims did that, too, years ago. But they did not stop there. After they thanked God for their own blessings they tried to pass on the joy to folk less fortunate than they were. They even invited the Indians, beings that they had every reason to be afraid of, into their homes and gave them a little of the season's cheer. They kept Thanksgiving."

"Then"—I was choosing my words rather carefully—"then your idea is not to be thankful yourself—only to give someone else a chance to be thankful?"

"But," asked the girl softly, "isn't that the right way to be thankful?"

Isn't it?

It's a very easy thing to pass along the outside of life without even dipping down into the depths, and ever so many people do it because it is the easiest way. Somehow it is hard to convince folk that things that tear at their heartstrings are the things that they should see and know. It's mighty easy to eat our Thanksgiving dinners without a thought of our brothers and sisters who are starving on some other street in the same city, and it's only because it is so much easier, I reckon, that people do forget to pass a bit of their plenty and peace.

But, as I write, I can't help thinking of filled-to-overflowing baskets that I have seen in missions, of eager children grasping fat turkeys, of mothers crying happy tears over coal and wood that will keep them warm and happy. I can't help having my mind slip away from the well-filled tables and the happy smiles and the cheerful commonplaces of our own country, to the dreary homes in Europe that are being brightened because the people of this land were willing—yes, more than willing—to share their blessings with others.

Oh, friends of mine, it's the easiest thing in the world to look for trouble, and it isn't very hard to find people who are fretting and crying and counting their blessings in a negative sort of way instead of just being happy. But somehow, when we stop to look around us and think, the world seems to be a pretty nice place at Thanksgiving time.—Margaret E. Sangster, Jr., in Christian Herald.

THANKSGIVING DAY

We plow the fields, and scatter
The good seed o'er the land,
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand.
He sends the snow in winter
The warmth to swell the grain,
The seed time and the harvest
And soft refreshing rain.
All good gifts around us
Are sent from heaven above,
Then thank the Lord, Oh, thank the Lord
For all his love.

WHY "ANURIC"
IS AN INSURANCE AGAINST SUDDEN DEATH!
Sufferers from Backache, Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble
Before an Insurance Company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test the urine and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or the twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout. The urine is often cloudy, full of sediment; channels often get sore and sleep is disturbed two or three times a night. This is the time you should consult some physician of wide experience—such as Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Send him 10 cents for sample package of his new discovery—"Anuric." Write him your symptoms and send a sample of urine for test. Experience has taught Dr. Pierce that "Anuric" is the most powerful agent in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar, besides being absolutely harmless and is endowed with other properties, for it preserves the kidneys in a healthy condition by thoroughly cleansing them. Checks the degeneration of the blood-vessels, as well as regulating blood pressure. "Anuric" is a regular insurance and life-saver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints. Ask the druggist for "Anuric" put up by Dr. Pierce, in 50-cent packages.

STEENERSON FAVORS ADEQUATE DEFENSE

Congressman Halvor Steenerson, in an interview in the Crookston Daily Times, on the question of preparedness for national defense, says:

"I have always been in favor of adequate defense, but if we are going to make larger expenditures for the army and navy, I think we ought to pay as we go and not issue bonds to the extent of several hundred million dollars as proposed by President Wilson and his advisors. Whatever we do in the line of preparedness is a current expense and ought to be paid for out of current revenue. If we are to enlarge the army and navy, we must keep them enlarged; we are not going to continue from year to year. In other words, it becomes a part of our current expense, and it is a very poor business policy to propose to borrow hundreds of millions of dollars for current expenses. If this administration borrows the money, the next administration will either have to borrow hundreds of millions more or make arrangements to raise the money by some form of taxation, and if we keep on borrowing, the nation's credit will suffer and interest rates will go up. If we cannot pay our running expenses when we are at peace what are we going to do if we ever go to war? Money borrowed now will have to be paid some time, and the expense of keeping up the army and navy is going to be as great or greater later on than it is now.

"The truth is that since the Democratic tariff bill went into effect, the government has been steadily running behind, and this proposal to make a huge bond issue for the purpose of preparing for national defense is merely intended to cover up the real condition of the treasury; the point has been reached where the administration must either revise the laws it has been instrumental in enacting so as to raise more revenue, or resort to a bond issue for the current expenses of the government, and if it can put over a bond issue under the guise of preparing for national defense, the deficit will be tided over and passed on to the next administration. I am not opposed to reasonable preparedness, but I am in favor of paying as we go."

President Wilson will certainly have a lot of opposition to his proposed preparedness for war ideas, in the next congress, as there are a large number of Democrats that indorse the ideas of Bryan while the Republicans are rather opposed to any proposition that will compel the government to raise money by bonding at this time. The Republican party will again come into power one year from next March, when there will soon be money to build additional ships without borrowing it, as we would have to do now under the present administration.

Senator Moses E. Clapp, is likely to get into the Presidential race, as a candidate for the Republican nomination. Why not have a president from Minnesota? This state is as much entitled to place a man at the head of the government as New Jersey, and we say go after them Moses, and lead the children of Israel out of the Wilderness.

There are not deer enough in northern Minnesota to give all the hunters a smell of their carcass. It seems like cruelty for our legislature to pass laws to turn the whole United States into hunters and chasers of what few deer are left in the northern part of the state. If some more favorable legislation is not passed to protect these animals from wholesale slaughter, they will soon share the fate of the buffaloes.

While there is much dissatisfaction over the arrangements of the mail service in this territory by the present administration, we have not heard a single complaint from the management of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston which would indicate that the officials of that office are giving honorable and painstaking service to the people.

COMPLEXION BLEMISH?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. Unless the bowels move freely and regularly all the power in the world will not permanently cover "that muddy complexion." This laxative is mild yet effective. It does not gripe or sicken in its effects. You will not dispute the merits of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Start a treatment to-day. 25c.—Adv.

COLDS DO NOT LEAVE WILLINGLY

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why you should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dangerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c. and $1.00. -Adv.

IRRITABLE CHILDREN OFTEN NEED KICKAPOO WORM KILLER

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box.—Adv.

If it is not covered by the collar there is no cruelty. In either event the case must be discharged.

Sending a Man to Coventry.

The expression "sending to Coventry" had a military origin. It arose, so it is said, in the days of Charles I., when the inhabitants of Coventry strongly objected to any intercourse with the military quartered in their town, and a woman known to speak to a man in a scarlet cloak was at once the subject of a scandal. So rigid were the natives that the soldier was confined to the mess room for conversation. Thus the term "sending a man to Coventry" if you wished to shut him from society took root in the English language.—London Chronicle.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1915. NO. 37

THE LOCAL NEWS

Mail carrier Rome made his first trip of the season with a sleigh yesterday.

All the livery and feed barns in Oklee are doing a thriving business now days.

Mrs. Sanness's hotel at Oklee seems to have about all the farmers trade from this locality.

Teams are now crossing on the ice across Red Lake river, although it is not safe for heavy loads yet.

The Red Lake River has been in fine condition for skating the past week, which has been taken advantage of by the youngsters

There was a fall of about four inches of snow on Wednesday night, and the farmers are beginning to hitch on to the sleighs.

Ye editor made a business trip to Oklee on Monday, and was surprised to see the large number of farmers from this territory that were hauling grain down there.

We have decided to make a personal call on some of our subscribers to try and get some of our subscription accounts straightened up before the first of the year.

Among the farmers who were at Oklee, from this territory Monday were, Ole Skreland, Stanley Depta, G. Swanson, Jens L. Bolstad and John Polbrook. They were all marketing grain.

Plummer is rapidly forging to the front as one of the leading villages of northern Minnesota, and they will make a large and substantial growth during the next year.

Peter P. Korstad sold off his stock and farm machinery at public auction on Monday, and will quit farming, and engage in the store business with his son Karl at Highlanding.

Red Lake Falls will undoubtedly enjoy a big business boom during the next year, as there are going to be a number of large and substantial buildings erected there this next spring.

To-morrow night at eleven o'clock, the saloons of Crookston close their doors under the county option law. A large number of the buildings will remain vacant, while some of the present saloon keepers will use their buildings for restaurants and candy stores.

The man who tries advertising and thinks that it does not pay, never considers the additional amount of trade that the advertising brings him, as the people who are attracted to his place to do business by his advertisement seldom tell him why they happened to call on him.

We will hardly notice the loss of revenue in this county, obtained from saloon taxes for the next year; but after that, there will be a large and substantial increase in the amount of taxes to replace this revenue, while those who we expected to benefit will get their jugs in Red Lake county.

Fred Brown has condemned one of the Kratka grades east of James O'Brien's place as impassable without a serious break down. In trying to avoid a wash-out in the grade he ran into a pitch hole and broke his wagon axle. He will put a claim against the township for damages, but as neither the the town of Kratka or Highlanding spend any time or money on the roads on the south side of Red Lake River they can afford to pay a small damage claim occasionally.

FOR SALE: Two fine steers two and one half years old. Inquire at this office.

The grade north of Oklee is not very safe going for horses that are not sharp shod, as it is very slippery since the snow came.

Ignac Kolski of Rudell has sold off his stock and farm machinery, and we understand he will go to Chicago. The hellish Democratic mail service in this territory is in a large measure responsible for the discouragement of a large number of people, as they have got all mail routes arranged to suit a few individual postmasters, and not to accommodate the people. And to make a bad matter worse they are paying extra compensation for the handling of mail, to postal employees who can not tell the difference between "to" and "from" when they see it on a parcel post package.

We have been considering the publication of a ten years ago column to review some of the important events that have taken place in the former Red Lake county, now Pennington county, so that some of the good fellows can see where they made mistakes. Just supposing that some of the people living in Thief River Falls, who make their living by running saloons had opposed county division. If they had they could soon be dividing the profits with Plummer and Red Lake Falls in the saloon business, instead of running a soft drink and candy parlor, but they wanted county division, and called in the expert, on division, our friend Andrew Trovaton, who helped them to get it, and also remained to help them get county option.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

We just learned how it happened that so many of the farmers in the towns of Deer Park and Mayfield voted for county option in this county when they were so near Red Lake County.

It appears that the Thief River Falls Times got out a big boom issue favoring county option and mailed sample copies to nearly every voter in Deer Park and Mayfield townships. The paper contained the speech of Congressman Steenerson and a lot of other strong arguments in favor of county option. But it appears that George Singer postmaster at Rhoda, was opposed to county option, and instead of undoing the bundle and delivering the papers on Saturday, he bundled them into the mail sack and sent them through to Sunbeam post office, where he knew they would have to lie until the Tuesday following the Monday's election and then be sent back to Rhoda as missent mail, so the people would not get them until the next Wednesday after election. The whole matter leaked out on Sunday, and men who were opposed to county option before that time turned in and worked for it to spite Singer, which accounts for about one third of the votes for county option in these two townships.

ODDITIES IN JAPAN

Natives Have a Topsy Turvy Way of Doing Many Things

BATHING IS A SACRED RITE.

And Whenever a Native Has a Moment to Spare He Resorts to the Tub, With Its Peculiar Code of Ethics—Houses Without Windows.

I just can't get used to how turned around, upside down, inside out, topsy turvy, things are in Japan. A Japanese carpenter draws the plane toward himself, and a blacksmith sits down to work.

A Japanese blacksmith never knows the joys of getting tickets to the circus, for he hasn't any place for the advance man to paste up his three sheets. The whole front of a Japanese blacksmith shop is open, with other buildings jammed up so close on each side that the circus man couldn't get a poster in.

A Japanese book begins on our last page and finishes on our first paragraph. And their sentences begin at the top of the page and read down, like long columns of figures. They wear white to funerals and judge poetry by the beauty of the handwriting.

Japanese houses haven't any chimneys, so you may see a whole plateau of houses with not a single curl of smoke as far as the eye can reach. The Japanese cooking is done outside the house in a little charcoal stove. They have no stoves to keep themselves warm, only little hibachis, gallon jars with charcoal in them covered with fine ashes. There isn't enough heat in one to singe a miller, and whenever they get too cold they take a warm bath.

Bathing is a sacred rite. Whenever they have a spare moment they run and take a bath. When business is dull they hurry to a public bathhouse and jump in. If they miss one train they take a bath while waiting for the next. They take hot baths—steaming, sizzling hot. And the strange thing is they don't do the bathing in a tub. They have little foot baths about the size of crocks that they use for washing themselves, and when they are thoroughly clean they climb into the tub.

If you should get into the tub first the proprietor would break into tears and tell you that you were bankrupting him, for the same water is used all evening, no difference how many guests the hotel has.

After soaking awhile they crawl out steaming all over, gently blot themselves, get into kimonos and sit around like alkied. One would think that before the evening was over a fleet footed runner would have to be dispatched for medical assistance, but instead of that they never catch cold!

When I got here and was invited into a Japanese home I found that they hadn't any chairs. In fact, there isn't a stick of furniture a foot high in a Japanese house. You have to sit on the floor. A person of my build was never meant for sitting on the floor. When I sit down on the floor and try to draw up to a Japanese table my feet are so in the way that I can't get up to where there is anything doing. The waitress has to walk around my feet to bring me the viands. By the time the meal is over she is pretty well fagged out.

A Japanese house hasn't a single window. And it's only the most stylish of houses that have a pane of glass. A person who has a pane of glass anywhere in his house sets the social pace in that neighborhood. Instead of glass they have paper pasted on sliding frames, and through the paper the light filters. Naturally one wonders how they keep the rain out. This is little trouble, for outside the paper walls are a series of wooden doors which also slide back and forth.

When time comes to retire you look around for the bed, but there isn't one in sight. It is rolled up in a drawer, and the Japanese wouldn't know a bedstead from a quilting frame. Millions of people in Japan have grown up, married, voted, paid taxes and gone to their reward without ever having clapped eyes on an American bedstead.

To make the bed ready the servant opens the drawer and unrolls the quilts on the floor, putting a tomato can looking thing under one end for a pillow. Then she shuts all the paper windows and pulls to all the wooden slides so that not a breath of air can get in and the bed is ready. Money in the palm couldn't persuade a Japanese to sleep with the window open.

Their theory is that during the day the air becomes full of dust and germs so that if you keep your windows sealed during the night none of the germs can get in.—Homer Croy in Leslie's Weekly.

OUR NATIVE THRUSHES.

We Have Eleven Species and All Are Friends of the Farmer.

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

Altogether there are within the limits of the United States eleven species of thrushes, five of which are commonly known as robins and bluebirds. The other six include the Townsend solitaire, the wood, the veery, the gray cheek, the olive back and the hermit thrush.

The robins and bluebirds nest close to houses, and even the shiest of the other species are content with the seclusion of an acre or two of woodland or swamp. For this reason the thrushes are among the best known and most carefully protected of native American birds, and at times their numbers become so great that it is feared they will do much harm to crops and fruit. The investigations of the department of agriculture, however, show that there is very little ground for this fear. On the other hand, they destroy such a vast number of insects each year that it is probable that without them many crops would suffer serious damage.

Of all the thrushes the robin is probably the best known. It has been frequently accused of destroying fruits and berries, but it has now been ascertained that this only occurs in regions that are so thickly settled that there is no wild fruit upon which the birds may subsist. In some years the bird is a great pest in the olive orchards of California, but it is probable that they are driven to the orchards because of the scarcity of native berries at these times. Where a wild fruit is available the birds seem to prefer it to the cultivated varieties.

Like the robin, the bluebird is very domestic; but, unlike the robin, it does not prey upon any cultivated product or work any injury whatever to the fruit grower. During the fruit season, in fact, five-sixths of its food consists of insects. It seems, therefore, that the common practice of encouraging the bluebird to nest near houses by placing convenient boxes in which it may build its home is thoroughly justified.

The six other species of the thrush group also feed principally on insects and fruit, but a great portion of the fruit which they consume is wild berries. Domestic fruits are eaten so sparingly by these species that the damage done is quite negligible.

The bird known as the Townsend solitaire is noted chiefly for its song, which is said to be at times the finest of any of the thrush family. This thrush, however, confines itself almost entirely to the mountains and gorges of the far west. The wood thrush, on the other hand, is distributed over the eastern part of the United States and is a frequenter of open groves and bushy pastures. This thrush also is noted for its sweet song, especially in the early evening. It does not nest in gardens or orchards, however, and is seldom seen about farm buildings, so that many people who are familiar with its song would not know the bird by sight. The wood thrush consumes a number of very harmful insects such as the Colorado potato beetle and white grubs. The fruit which it eats it usually picks up from the ground instead of taking fresh from the trees. There is therefore no reason why the wood thrush should not be rigidly protected.

The other varieties also seem to eat little that is of value to farmers, while, on the other hand, they destroy multitudes of harmful insects each year.

BUSINESS IN CANADA IS GOOD

Successful Crops and Big Yields Help the Railway.

The remarkable fields that are reported of the wheat crop of Western Canada for 1915 bear out the estimate of an average yield over the three western provinces of upward of 25 bushels per acre. There is no portion of that great west of 24,000 square miles in which the crop was not good and the yields abundant. An American farmer who was induced to place under cultivation land that he had been holding for five years for speculative purposes and higher prices, says that he made the price of the land out of this year's crop of oats. No doubt, others, too, who took the advice of the Department of the Interior to cultivate the unoccupied land, have done as well.

But the story of the great crop that Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta produced this year is best told in the language of the railways in the added cars that it has been necessary to place in commission, the extra trains required to be run, the increased tonnage of the grain steamers.

It is found that railway earnings continue to improve.

The C. P. R. earnings for the second week of October showed an increase of $762,000 over last year, the total being only $310,000 below the gross earnings of the corresponding week of 1913, when the Western wheat crop made a new record for that date. The increase in C. P. R. earnings for the corresponding week of that year was only $351,000, or less than half of the increase reported this year. The grain movement in the West within the past two weeks has taxed the resources of the Canadian roads as never before, despite their increased facilities. The C. P. R. is handling 2,000 cars per day, a new record. The G. T. R. and the C. N. R. are also making new shipment records. The other day the W. Grant Morden, of the Canada Steamships Company, the largest freighter of the Canadian fleet on the Upper Lakes, brought down a cargo of 476,315 bushels, a new record for Canadian shipping. Records are "going by the board" in all directions this fall, due to Canada's record crop. The largest Canadian wheat movement through the port of New York ever known is reported for the period up to October 15th, when since shipments of the new crop began in August, 4,265,791 bushels have been reloaded for England, France and Italy. This is over half as much as was shipped of American wheat from the same port in the same period. And, be it remembered, Montreal, not New York, is the main export gateway for Canadian wheat. New York gets the overflow in competition with Montreal.—Advertisement.

SERBS RANKS RENT AND TORN, DRIVEN TO LAST POSITION

UNDER THE CONQUERORS' HEEL DEFENDERS ARE BEING STEADILY FORCED BACK TO KOSSOVO PLAIN.

BRITISH FORCES REACHING MONASTIR ARE REINFORCED

Bulgarians Defeated and Suffer Heavy Losses at Lescovac, South of Nish, at Hands of Serbian Force—Help From Allies Expected Soon.

London, Nov. 23.—While no official statement has been published, it is certain the Greek government has resolved to give the Allies every assurance required to dispel their apprehensions concerning possible treatment of their troops in Macedonia and that a basis of agreement satisfactory to all parties already had been established, says an Athens dispatch to the Times.

British Troops Reach Monastir.

Geneva, Nov. 23.—Press dispatches from Bucharest say that British forces have arrived at the Serbian city of Monastir and are being reinforced. A telegram from Constantinople by way of Bucharest says the first contingent of German troops has reached that city and that Field Marshal von Mackensen is expected there next week.

Subjugation of Serbia Near.

London, Nov. 23.—The Austro-Germans, despite great difficulties of rain and weather, are bringing their subjugation of Serbia to a conclusion. Troops under General von Koevess have occupied Novi Bazar, according to the Berlin headquarters report, and have taken 4,400 more prisoners. Other groups have pressed back the Montenegrins until they are defending their last positions in the Sanjak. General von Gallwitz and the Bulgarians under General Boyadjieff are trying to force the Valley of The Lim.

Serbs Steadily Forced Back.

Their ranks rent and torn, their country under the conquerors' heel the Serbians are being steadily forced back to the great Kossovo plain. On this historic battle-ground they will make their last defense.

Not all of the Serbian army has been caught in the invaders' net, however, according to dispatches. Part of the harassed force is reported in an official statement issued by the Montenegrin consulate at Paris to have succeeded the Montenegrins on the River Lim. The statement says: "Our troops together with Serbian forces, sustained heavy attacks on the River Lim. In the Sanjak of Novi Bazar, our forces have been obliged to retire upon their principal positions."

Serbs Defeat Bulgars.

Another Serbian force won a victory of some proportions at Lescovac, south of Nish, according to information given out by the Serbian legation at Rome. Heavy losses were inflicted upon the Bulgarians.

Important news comes from the south where it is reported British forces have arrived at Monastir. Deep mystery has cloaked the situation in this region for several days, the Bulgarians in the last dispatches having been reported in possession of the town. The British are believed to be part of the re-enforcements which are being poured ashore at Saloniki and hurried to the front.

Allies Aiding Defenders.

A strong defense by the remnants of the imperiled Serbian force is now expected with the help of their allies. On the French front the situation is quiet. Large numbers of Bulgarians are being kept busy, however, lightening the pressure on the Serbians elsewhere. An important fact is reported in the French communique which states that Allied troops are still being sent in numbers to the Balkans by way of Saloniki. This, it is believed, was intended to dispose of the rumors that the French and British would withdraw from this theater.

"Fresh Air Cars" in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—Sixty street cars with windows removed have been put in service by the Chicago surface lines company. Signs in front of the cars proclaimed them "Fresh Air Cars." The cars operated on the principal lines penetrating the loop district. Street car officials reported that although the patronage was large in the aggregate it could not be determined from the first day's experiment whether the plan would prove successful.

C. C. Daniels Slated for Removal.

Washington, Nov. 23.—Charles C. Daniels, special assistant to the attorney general in charge of the White Earth litigation, is slated for removal by the attorney general. A Minnesota man is booked for the appointment and rumor here has it that former Senator Julius Coller of Shakopee will receive the place. Other Minnesotans are being considered, among them being W. M. Jerome of Minneapolis, G. B. Richards of Duluth, Einar Hoidale of Minneapolis, Judge W. I.

HELD JUSTIFIED IN LETTING BABY DIE

JURY OF PHYSICIANS UPHOLDS HAISELDEN IN NOT ATTEMPTING TO SAVE DEFECTIVE

RECOMMENDS CONSULTATION

Verdict Declares Physicians Found No Evidence That Child Would Have Been Mentally or Morally Defective.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Six physicians, comprising a coroner's jury, held that Dr. H. J. Haiselden, who permitted an infant, Allan John Bollinger, to die, when an operation might have saved him to a life of unhappiness as a defective, was morally and ethically justified in refusing to perform the operation which his conscience did not sanction. An implied disapproval of a course wherein a physician might determine if it was or was not desirable for a patient to live was contained in the concluding paragraph of the verdict:

"We believe that the physician's highest duty is to relieve suffering and to save or prolong life."

The verdict declared that the physicians found no evidence that the child would have been mentally or morally defective, that an operation would have prolonged or possibly have saved the child's life, and recommended that in similar cases in the future there should be a consultation of physicians to decide whether an effort should be made to save the patient.

Jury Composed of Physicians.

The jury was composed of the following physicians:

John F. Golden, Mercy hospital; Arthur Rankin, professor of anatomy, Loyola university; D. Howard Chislett, dean of Hahnemann college; D. A. K. Steele, dean of the Physicians and Surgeons' college of the University of Illinois; Henry F. Lewis, professor of obstetrics, Cook County hospital; Ludwig Hektoen, professor of pathology, Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Haiselden, in his testimony, said he did not reach his final decision not to operate until he had consulted 15 practicing physicians, 14 of whom approved his course of letting the little life expire, he said. The mother agreed to the plan, too.

"I did not operate, first, because of the deformity of the child and second, because of the seriousness of the case," he said. "I did not urge the parents to follow my advice. I simply gave my opinion as a consulting surgeon. I was morally certain the child would be a defective."

HILLSTROM IS PUT TO DEATH

I. W. W. LEADER EXECUTED IN UTAH PRISON AT DAWN.

Alleged Murderer of Two, Attacks Guards With Broom Handle—President's Second Intercession Fails.

HILLSTROM CASE IN BRIEF.

January 11, 1914 — J. G. Morrison, grocer, and young son, Arling, murdered by robbers.

January 14, 1914 — Joseph Hillstrom arrested in connection with the double murder.

June 27, 1914—Hillstrom convicted, chooses to be shot. Legalities delay execution.

September 30, 1915—President reprieves Hillstrom on Swedish minister's request.

October 16, 1915 — Pardon board of Utah finally refuses commutation of the sentence.

October 18, 1915—District court re-sentences Hillstrom to die by shooting, November 19.

Salt Lake City, Nov. 20.—Joseph Hillstrom, I. W. W. leader, convicted of the murder on Jan. 10, 1914, of John G. Morrison, a grocer, and his son, Arling Morrison, was executed by shooting at the state penitentiary here. Under the Utah law he was allowed to choose between shooting and hanging.

President Wilson twice appealed for further respite for Hillstrom and the Swedish ambassador also intervened. The president's second request, made Thursday, was denied by Governor Spry as not based on any new facts.

Hillstrom was pronounced dead within 13 seconds after he was shot at 7:42 a. m.

Hillstrom in some unknown manner had concealed a broomhandle in his cell. When the door of the cell was opened Hillstrom leaped upon the guards, swinging his club fiercely on their heads, severely cutting one about the scalp and face.

"I will die fighting—not like a coward," he continued screaming while the guards pinioned his arms to his sides.

BRITISH HOSPITAL SHIP STRIKES MINE; 100 PERISH

Dover, Nov. 19.—The hospital ship Anglia, with about 300 wounded men aboard, in addition to the crew, nurses and attendants, bound from France for Dover, struck a mine in mid-channel and sank in a very short time. Nearly 100 men, most of them seriously wounded, and, therefore, in their cots, lost their lives.

The Collier Lusitania, which was near by at the time of the accident, immediately went to the assistance of the Anglia and her boats were just lowered when she also struck a mine and foundered. All her crew were saved. A patrol boat succeeded in rescuing 300 of the Anglia's passengers and crew, including some nurses. A number of the bodies were recovered.

Geneva, via Paris, Nov. 20.— The Italians are preparing for a formidable attack on Gorizia, according to the Milan correspondent of the Zurich Gazette. Five hundred thousand men are to be employed.

British Fleet Enters Cattegat.

London, Nov. 20.—As a sequel to the report that a flotilla of 25 German torpedo boats and a big cruiser had passed Helsingborg, Sweden, proceeding in to the Cattegats, a dispatch to the Central News from Copenhagen says that a British squadron of cruisers and destroyers has been seen entering the Cattegat.

HUGHES' NOMINATION IS SEEN

In Spite of Efforts to Avoid Ballot It Seems Certain His Name Will Be Presented.

Washington, Nov. 22.—In spite of his effort to get his name off the Nebraska primary ballot, or probably because of it, Mr. Justice C. E. Hughes again has become a Republican presidential possibility. That is the Washington judgment and it stands the test of analysis.

U. S. To Probe Plant Fires.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Officials of the department of justice expect to make every possible effort to bring prosecutions in the cases where munitions plants are burned, if evidence can be gathered to show that the government is in any way concerned. Officials are surprised at the nonaction of state officials. The department got information that the recent fire in the plant of the Bethlehem Steel company did damage to the extent of about $8,000,000, instead of $2,000,000 as was announced.

WOULD ADD CHINA TO ENTENTE UNION

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND RUSSIA SEEK TO PREVENT FUTURE JAP-CHINESE FRICTION.

TOKIO IS NOT YET CONSULTED

Japan's Attitude Not Clear as Yet—Allies Considered Move, as Safeguard to Interests, Essential—Situation Somewhat Acute.

Tokio, Nov. 20.—The recent attempted assassination of Chang-Shih-I, an emissary of President Yuan Shi Kai of China, has revealed the existence of an assassin's club among the revolutionary Chinese students of Tokio. It is alleged the members are solemnly sworn to take the lives of prominent workers for the restoration of the monarchy.

Washington, Nov. 20.—Great Britain, France and Russia have united in an effort to add China to the entente union, in order to prevent possible friction in the future between Japan and China and to preserve the peace of the far east.

If China agrees to the plan, military participation in the present war is not expected.

Negotiations thus far are in a conversational stage at Peking with no indications as to China's attitude.

Although the United States is being kept informed, it diplomatic representatives at Peking and European capitols are refraining from participation.

Subject of Confidential Exchange.

Japan, so far as is known, has not yet been consulted, the conversations thus far having been confined to the European entente Allies and the Peking government. If Japan knows of the plans unofficially, there is nothing here to indicate what her position will be.

Although Great Britain, France and Russia joined Japan in representations to China to postpone the establishment of a monarchy, because it was thought a change during the present disturbed condition of affairs might provoke revolution and international complications, this latest step by the Allies is understood here not to have been initiated because of the monarchial situation alone.

The impending change in China's form of government has rendered the situation somewhat acute. Fear of revolution in China and the possibility of Japanese interference to preserve peace have been impressd upon Japanese people to an extent that has attracted wide attention among the European diplomats.

Mexicans Raid Town of Los Mochis; Slay 1 British and 4 U. S. Subjects.

Topolobampo, Sinaloa, Mex., via radio to San Francisco, Nov. 19.—Mayo Indians and Villa troops raided the town of Los Mochis, 18 miles inland from here. One British subject and four Americans are reported killed. Thirty-three refugees, mostly women and children, arrived here and were taken on board the United States gunboat Annapolis.

Thompson Nomination Filed.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 22.—A petition was filed with the secretary of state to place the name of William Hale Thompson, mayor of Chicago, on the primary ballot for the Republican nomination for president. Mr. Thompson's record of law enforcement as mayor of Chicago is recited in the petition as one good reason why he should receive the nomination. The petition was circulated at the instance of John O. Yeiser, of Omaha, who filed the petition for Theodore Roosevelt in 1912.

Roumania To Decide Policy.

Rome, Nov. 20.—Rumania's part in the war hangs on the decision of a cabinet council now in progress in Bucharest, dispatches from the Rumanian capital assert. The meeting is an extraordinary one unexpectedly convoked by King Ferdinand. Rumanian leaders are said to be agreed that neutrality is no longer possible for their country. Whether it will be decided to join the Germanic or the Entente Allies is still uncertain. The king and his supporters are pro-Germans. The people favor Russia.

The menu of a certain restaurant is a thing of wonder to strangers. It contains several pages of various dishes, all classified, mostly with weird French names.

The country visitor eyed it up and eyed it down, but could make nothing of it. And the waiter stood silently by his side.

At last, in despair, the diner dabbed his finger in the middle of one page, and said:

"Bring me some o' that."

"Oui, m'sieu!" replied the waiter. "That ees mayonnaise dressing, sar."

"I know that, my man," snorted the countryman. "I can read"

"But, m'sieu," said the waiter, apologetically, "what will you have it on?"

The diner glared.

"On a plate, of course, you idiot!" he roared. "Do you feed your guests in troughs at this restaurant?"

STATE BREVITIES

Northfield. — A co-operative stock shipping association has been organized by farmers of the Northfield community.

Duluth.—Jean Duluth Pear of a local farm has established a new world's record for red poll cattle in the 1915 club contest by scoring more than 700 pounds of butterfat in one season.

Rochester. — The annual convention of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Minnesota conference has closed. Miss Winifred Willard of Denver, national field secretary, was the principal speaker.

Red Wing. — Mistaking a can of muriatic acid for coffee and drinking a small quantity of the poison before he discovered his blunder, cost the life of Samuel Alberts, 26 years old, a well known young man of Pine Island.

Stillwater.—Emil Klopp, 12 years old, and Alois Klopp, 10, sons of Anton Klopp, a farmer living on the shore of Huntley lake, north of Stillwater, were drowned while skating. Alois went down in fourteen feet of water.

Embarrass. — Anton Antila was arrested here charged with murdering Emil Neimi, a farmer boy living near, and who was killed in his own home by a bullet fired, it is alleged, by Antila after a quarrel between the two.

Crosby. — To satisfy United States immigration officials, who refuse to recognize an Oriental marriage by proxy of his brother, Kotomura Oye, who is manager of Hickory Lodge farm here for George H. Crosby, will leave soon for Nagasaki to claim his bride of six months.

Taylors Falls, Minn.—The Interstate Park Farmers' club has just held the first meeting of its fifth season. Miss Bess M. Rowe of the university farm made an address. The forenoon session was taken up by a debate on the subject, "Resolved, That the Farmer's Wife Does Not Receive a Living Wage."

St. Cloud. — Fifty cents was all the damage sustained by C. M. Miller of Wadena because O. E. Fuller slapped his face, according to the verdict of a jury. Miller was employed in a real estate office conducted by the plaintiff. After an altercation a year ago, Fuller slapped his employe's face and Miller sued for $1,000.

Winona.—For the first time in history, the season is closing with the ice houses along the Upper Mississippi river still well filled with ice stored last winter. Dealers here declare that if there were no ice harvest weather the coming winter, there would be nearly enough ice in storage to care for the next summer's business.

Red Wing. — Dr. Evan Elijah Edwards, a professor at Hamline university when it was located in Red Wing in the early days, and assistant rector at Christ church in this city in the late '80s, is dead. Word has been received in this city of his death, which occurred at the home of his son, Elmer E. Edwards, at La Belle, Florida. The deceased was about 85 years old.

Albert Lea, Minn.—The fact that they were regular church attendants saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sjukalski of East Chain township in Martin county. Sunday morning they were missed from church and when the services were half over one of their sons went to their house to ascertain the cause. He found them in a deep stupor caused from gas emitting from a hard-coal heater.

St. Paul.—This city was placed on the route of the Jefferson Highway, a New Orleans-Winnipeg automobile trail, at New Orleans by action of the highway association's directors. St. Paul and Minnesota defeated Omaha and the combined Nebraska and North Dakota delegations in the fight to be represented on this, the first international trail, through the efforts of J. H. Beek, representing the St. Paul Association of Commerce.

Duluth.—In the eyes of the law, Bert Canfield of West Duluth, missing since 1903, is dead; and in district court here his brothers and sisters have just obtained judgment against the grand lodge of the A. O. U. W. of Minnesota for $1,000, insurance on his life. Thirteen years ago, Canfield, then 21, left for the Dakota harvest fields, where he worked in the season of 1902, and then went to the Pacific coast. He wrote in 1903 from Oregon, and later from Wells City, Nev. Nothing has been heard of him since.

St. Paul. — Four suits to recover money and notes paid for stock in the Farmers' Terminal Packing company of St. Paul, have been filed in the Ramsey county district court. The plaintiffs are: Peter Olson, Cumberland, Wis.; John Carlson, Comstock, Wis.; E. P. Erlandson, Holdingford, Minn., and John Nelson, Upsala, Minn. The company, Mr. Olson charges, does not own the 164 acres near St. Paul intended for a site and the land, instead of $200 an acre, as represented, is not worth more than $75. The plant when completed will not have the capacity represented, it is charged, and not more than $100,000 worth of stock had been sold when it was stated that $250,000 worth had been sold.

Minneapolis. — Captured in Minneapolis after a pursuit of 20,000 miles that included England, France, Germany and Russia, and which was interrupted by the war, Samuel Litvinsky of Winnipeg was held at central police station for the police of Winnipeg, who accuse him of complicity in the disappearance of furs worth nearly $100,000.

Cloquet.—Cloquet has started a free night school at the Y. M. C. A. to continue throughout the winter. Enlish, mathematics, mechanical drawing, manual training, and commercial arithmetic are the subjects taught.

ORE MACHINE IS GIVEN TO STATE

PATENT ON PROCESS TO INCREASE OUTPUT ACCEPTED BY REGENTS.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

The Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota have accepted the patent on a process discovered by E. W. Davis, a member of the university mines faculty and experiment station, which may prove the means of more than doubling the salability of low grade magnetic ores in which Minnesota is rich, and which are distributed widely in all parts of the world.

The patent has been given through the university to the state with the right to use it without royalty on all state lands. Prof. Davis discovered the process while experimenting as a member of the mining research experiment station.

The process involves the washing of the low grade magnetic ores in a special washer of the log type. The unmarketable ore is concentrated to the point where it becomes profitable to handle it in the smelting industry.

Prof. Davis' model machine on which the early experiments have been made and the patent right based is being kept secret in the mines laboratory.

The session of the board was in secret. At the close the announcement of the action was made by President George E. Vincent.

Calls Booster Meeting.

The official call for a big development convention in St. Paul to boost for a greater Minnesota has been issued by Governor Hammond. The meeting will be held in the House chamber at the capitol, December 1, at 10 A. M. A program of development that will benefit the whole state will be drafted for action at the next session of the Legislature, the Governor says.

"Each county is invited to send three delegates to the convention," Mr. Hammond explains in the call. "I would respectfully suggest that these men represent as far as possible all the organizations and agencies interested in the welfare of the county, and that they be selected at a county meeting at which all the organizations in the county may have a voice in their selection.

"No formal program will be prepared for this convention. The delegates present will be asked to select their own officers and committees."

★ ★ ★

To Instruct Assessors.

Every county in the state will be visited by members of the state tax commission beginning next February to instruct assessors in regard to their duties. Three months will be given over to the task. In conformity with the law the commission has held meetings each year since its enactment with the assessors in every county and not only has instructed them regarding the work before them, but also has endeavored to solve taxation problems which confront these officials.

★ ★ ★

Invites Development Societies.

Governor Hammond has invited the Northern Minnesota Development association, the Red River Valley Development association, the West Central Development association and the Southern Minnesota Development association each to name two delegates to the booster convention, which will be held at the Capitol, Dec. 1, to decide on a legislative program that will be for the betterment of Minnesota as a whole.

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

Get Hoyt's and you will be satisfied. For sale at all drug stores.

THE NEWEST REMEDY FOR BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM AND DROPSY

Kidney, Bladder and Uric Acid troubles bring misery to many. When the kidneys are weak or diseased, these natural filters do not cleanse the blood sufficiently, and the poisons are carried to all parts of the body. There follow depression, aches and pains, heaviness, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, chilliness and rheumatism. In some people there are sharp pains in the back and loins, distressing bladder disorders and sometimes obstinate dropsy. The uric acid sometimes forms into gravel or kidney stones. When the uric acid affects the muscles and joints it causes lumbago, rheumatism, gout or sciatica. This is the time to send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for large trial package of "Anuric."

During digestion uric acid is absorbed into the system from meat eaten, and even from some vegetables. The poor kidneys get tired and backache begins. This is a good time to take "Anuric," the new discovery of Dr. Pierce for Kidney trouble and Backache. Neglected kidney trouble is responsible for many deaths, and Insurance Company examining doctors always test the water of an applicant before a policy will be issued. Have you ever set aside a bottle of water for twenty-four hours? A heavy sediment or settling sometimes indicates kidney trouble. If you wish to know your condition send a sample of your water to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and describe symptoms. It will be examined without any expense to you, and Dr. Pierce or his medical staff will inform you truthfully. Anuric is now for sale by dealers, in 50c pck'gs.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle fed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate, and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3,1879

The post office department have forbidden post masters to accept for mailing any parcel post packages for Germany, as all steamships have refused to carry them.

The "bootlegging" to tilt the Indian lid is now being done by officers of law enforcement in Beltrami county, as two of their deputy sheriffs paid fines of $50 each, for selling liquor without a license last week. However the federal officers are busy enforcing the law, and it would not be safe for any one to be caught with a bottle of rain water in their grip in, that territory, at the present time,

It became necessary for President Wilson to take a hand in the affairs of the post offices department at Winnetka, Illinois, and order the reinstatement, of George Burkitt assistant postmaster at that place, whom the department had fired, for political reasons. This is only one instance, but if the president would take pains to fully investigate that department he would undoubtedly unearth one of the strongest political rings that has ever been built up in this country. Down in Illinois it is only an individual instance, but up in this locality they slaughter them by wholesale, by putting in mail routes in direct opposition to the petitions of the people and the reccommendation of the congressman from this district.

RULINGS AFFECTING NEWSPAPER SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Too often are the subscribers to daily newspapers or periodicals careless as to their subscription accounts. They may leave a town, paying up all other debts but leave their papers coming to the old address unclaimed, and perchance, with their accounts for same past due a year or more.

Or it may be—and there are men mean enough to do it—that a subscriber will continue to take his paper from the office regularly long after the subscription is due, and some day return a copy to the publisher "refused."

In order to protect publishers from these and other practises certain laws have been passed and are in operation today. Below are given the gist of six different supreme court decisions that cover much ground. They are no imposition upon honest men, but simply protect the publishers from shysters and rogues:

One.—Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscription.

Two.—If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until to send them until all arrearages are paid.

Three.—If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the post offices to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

Four.—If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers sent to the former address, they are held responsible.

Five.—The courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

Six.—If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the the time if they do not wish to continue taking it, otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber is responsible until an express notice with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

It will be seen that many disputed points are disposed of by these decisions, which are certainly just. If a subscriber does not want to renew his subscription, let him notify the publisher. A delinquent must pay up if he wishes to discontinue his subscription. Otherwise he is held responsible for it as long as the paper is sent to him, whether he takes it from the postoffice or not.

From present indications there seems to be no question of doubt that the one term idea of the Democrats for president, which they had in their platform at their last national convention will be indorsed by the people at the next fall's election.

All of the people who have ambitions to become governer of Minnesota, have not thrown their hat into the ring yet, but after the first of the year we may expect to see a large increase in the number of candidates for the Republican nomination.

The Minneapolis Brewing Company is building a beer house at Plummer, as that is to be the shipping point for North Dakota and points in northern Minnesota. Thief River Falls will soon have to order all their liquors for private use from Plummer.

It is conceded by the enthusiastic drys in Red Lake county that it would be an impossibility to carry county option in that county at the present time. If they can not carry it now, they will have less chance to carry it after they see how it works in Polk and Pennington counties. who would both be glad to return to the license system after they have one year's trial of county option.

COMPLEXION BLEMISH?

Yes, that sluggish liver often causes it. Dr. King's New Life Pills clears the complexion, throws off impurities and releases bile naturally and easily. Unless the bowels move freely and regularly all the power in the world will not permanently cover "that muddy complexion." This laxative is mild yet effective. It does not gripe or sicken in its effects. You will not dispute the merits of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Start a treatment to-day. 25c.—Adv.

COLDS DO NOT LEAVE WILLINGLY

Because a cold is stubborn is no reason why you should be. Instead of "wearing" it out, get sure relief by taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Dargerous bronchial and lung ailments often follow a cold which has been neglected at the beginning. As your body faithfully battles those cold germs, no better aid can be given than the use of this remedy. Its merit has been tested by old and young. Get a bottle today. 50c. and $1.00. —Adv.

IRRITABLE CHILDREN OFTEN NEED KICKAPOO WORM KILLER

There is a reason for the disagreeable and fretful nature of many children. Think of the unrest when the child's body is possessed by tiny worms sapping its vitality and clogging its functions. Whatever may be the cause—"that children have worms is a fact." Your child's peevishness and irritability has a cause. Give Kickapoo Worm Killer a chance and if worms are there this humanly harmless remedy will eliminate the annoying parasites. 25c. a box.—Adv

Henry Arndt and Walter McAndress returned from a hunting trip Tuesday, in which they landed one deer.

There is just enough snow at the present time to spoil the wagon roads and not enough for sleighing.

We understand there is to be another meeting at the Highlanding school house to talk consolidated schools to-morrow afternoon.

Miss Ella and Marie Causin, and Otto and Harry Causin and Henry Asp, visited Miss Myrtle Hunt at Sunbeam, Sunday afternoon and evening.

Karl Korstad has recently put in a well selected stock of dress goods at his Highlanding store, which he is selling at prices to beat the catolog houses out of sight.

Parties wanting feed ground at Hyland's feed mill should bring it next week, as he will shut down for a couple of weeks for sharpening his feed rollers after next week.

There is something more than a rumor, that construction work will be commenced on a north and south line of railroad, that will pass through the towns of Deer Park and Highlanding next summer.

Kerosene and gasoline are advancing rapidly in price, which would indicate that John D., Sr., has contributed to some church, or that John D., Jr., had spent money for the Colorado miners' children.

Mrs. D. O'Brien, whose husband died saddenly about six weeks ago, will sell her stock and farm machinery, on section 24, town of Cloverleaf, at public auction on next Monday. She has some fine stock for sale.

Goodridge are having lots of difficulty with their mail service, as they rather object to their mail being laid over at Erie post office, but all mail from eastern Pennington must pass through either Rhoda, Kratka or Erie post office, under the present administration of mail routes in this territory.

The Oklee Herald opinions that it would be a good idea to get some of the Oklee mail routes rearranged, by writing the fourth assistant postmaster general. Our advice to them would be to not start anything under the present management of mail routes, for if they do they are likely to get an order issued for all of their mail to go by way of Rhoda, Erie or Kratka post offices. Keep still boys and be contented with what you have got, if you don't want to get worse service.

Mr and Mrs. Gustav Swanson of Deer Park were transacting [illegible] business at Sunbeam today.

The county ditch No. 42 has been completed, and the county board are to meet Dec. 21, to consider the report of the engineer. The ditch is known as the Cornealius Peterson Ditch.

About Consolidated Schools

There was a meeting at the school house last Saturday to promote the organization of consolidated schools in this territory. We do not wish to oppose any public enterprise that has got reason and common intelligence behind it, but any proposition to organize this sparsely settled country into consolidated schools, is a straight proposition to tax and drive what few people are left here, that are trying to make a living and pay their taxes out of the country by taxation.

Consolidated schools are all right in certain localities where they have the children to draw money from the state, but where there is no children for miles and miles of uninhabited territory, the expense must be paid by direct taxation of the people. It seems that the principal part of the present agitation for consolidated schools is from people living outside of the territory, and a few that are still staying here, while the bankers are paying their taxes and interest, for the raise in the valuation of the realestate which they occupy. But the people who are going to remain in the country, and are paying their own taxes will bitterly oppose any proposition of this kind at the present time. Not because they are opposed to any enterprise that would advance the country school children, but because there are so few of them to be benefited.

Another straight fence to any organization of consolidated schools in Pennington county, is the Red Lake River, with no bridges across, and any one who lives here, knows that any attempt to get children across this river to school is a hard enough proposition, without hauling them five or six miles in addition.

If they get the agitation far enough along to call an election, we will publish facts and figures to show the people who are tax payers in the territory where a consolidated school is, where they will land for paying taxes, when they hire a team twice a day to take one scholar six or eight miles to school, but enough said for the present.

SLIGHTED A HERO.

Later on the Coaching Party Got a Startling Surprise.

A HOST WHO PROVED A SNOB.

He Thought His Guest Was Not Classy Enough to Travel With Him and His Friends, but Waked Up After Awhile to Find Him the Lion of the Day.

Here is one of Captain James A. Scrymser's best anecdotes, which he did not put in his volume of personal reminiscences of peace and war:

After the close of the war between the states in 1865 Secretary of War Stanton, at the suggestion of President Johnson, selected Major General Francis C. Barlow as the bearer of certain dispatches to the American minister, Mr. Adams, in London. It later developed that the main purpose of this [illegible] was to allow the English army officials to know Major General Barlow, he being deemed by the president and secretary of war an excellent specimen of a youthful volunteer general, who had served gallantly through the war.

General Barlow sailed for England with his official dispatches, and shortly after his arrival he was presented to the Duke of Cambridge, then commander in chief of her majesty's forces, by Mr. Adams, our minister, and likewise to other high military officials.

Of course General Barlow received many invitations and was able to accept but few. One invitation which he did accept was for a week end party at the house of a well known major general of the British army, residing a few miles from Aldershot. On his arrival Barlow found a very [illegible] house party, made up of distinguished social "lions and lionesses." I have not the slightest doubt that Barlow held his own in this distinguished company, although the high [illegible] officials of her majesty's service [illegible] drew a sharp line between volunteer and regular officers. This fact Barlow fully realized the Saturday morning after his arrival, when, much to his surprise, his host and [illegible] exclusive house guests departed for "a drive" in a four-in-hand coach, leaving General Barlow behind. No invitation had been extended to Barlow, and he was left alone on the piazza, being told by his hospitable host that there were a box of cigars and the London Times in the smoking room, which would keep him fairly well occupied until their return.

The coaching party had been absent about an hour when a troop of cavalry commanded by a British officer, halted in front of the house. The officer asked for General Barlow and, upon meeting him, said that he was commanded by his royal highness the Duke of Cambridge to invite General Barlow to accept a review of her majesty's command of some 10,000 men at Aldershot at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

General Barlow gracefully accepted the invitation and, donning his "war paint," mounted an extra horse, which the Duke of Cambridge had thoughtfully provided for him, and started for Aldershot with his escort.

As Barlow and his escort approached the reviewing stand the band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," all flags were dipped, and the Duke of Cambridge rode to the front and received General Barlow in a most courteous manner.

Naturally, General Barlow was the center of all eyes. Barlow was surprised to see the coaching party of his host directly in front of the reviewing stand. Its presence accounted for the early departure that morning. If General Barlow was surprised one can imagine the surprise and dismay shown by the gay host and his party when they discovered who was the hero of the day. General Barlow's host had during the morning drive supposedly learned of the intended review which was to be held, but had not the slightest idea it was to be in honor of his guest, the volunteer general from the States.

All sorts of apologies were offered, but General Barlow, in his dignified manner, politely let his host understand that he understood the situation perfectly and that he had evidently not been invited on the coaching party because he did not come up to the English standard of a major general in their eyes, despite the fact that he had probably seen more fighting than all the British officers on that field.

Barlow was urged to return, now that he was a "lion" in their eyes, but after such a slight he preferred to return to London, which he did, after leaving a polite but dry note of thanks and arranging for his valet to pack up his things and join him in London.—New York Post.

M'ADOO ADVOCATES INCREASE IN TAXES

SAYS AMOUNT NEEDED FOR DEFENSE PROGRAM CAN BE RAISED EASILY.

WITHOUT BURDENING PEOPLE

Secretary Suggests Changes in Income Taxes and New Taxes on Gasoline, Horsepower of Automobiles and Various Other Things.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Increases in internal taxation rather than issuance of bonds for the first year's expenses of the administration's defense program were advocated by Secretary McAdoo of the treasury, in a formal statement giving an estimate of the federal government's revenues and expenditures up to the end of the fiscal year beginning next July.

Assuming that Congress will continue in effect the present emergency tax law and custom duty on sugar, the secretary estimates that $112,806,394 in additional revenue will be needed for 1917 expenditures, including $93,800,000 for new measures for national defense.

"This amount," says the statement, "can easily be raised by internal taxation without appreciable burdens upon the American people."

Suggests New Taxes.

Mr. McAdoo suggests a reduction in the income tax exemption of single persons from $3,000 to $2,000 and on married persons from $4,000 to $3,000; changes in the surtax imposed on incomes above a certain figure and new taxes on gasoline, crude and refined oils, horsepower of automobiles; other internal combustion engines and various other things.

NO MORE CURRENCY PANICS

There Will Not Be Another General Collapse of Credits, Declares Hamlin at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 29. — Business is steadily improving, prosperity is returning and there will be no more currency panics according to Charles S. Hamlin, governor of the federal reserve board in an address at the banquet session of the Western Economic society at a hotel here. Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago, president of the society, presided at the dinner.

No Collapse of Credits.

"There can be no more currency panics such as we have had," Mr. Hamlin said in speaking to the subject of a year's experience under the federal reserve act, and a forecast, "neither will there be a general collapse of credits. This does not mean that you can prevent bad precedents from joy-riding or such things, but as a general proposition panics will not recur with us again."

LA FOLLETTE FOR PRESIDENT

WISCONSIN SENATOR IS LIKELY CANDIDATE FOR NOMINATION.

Believes Progressives Will Be Able to Control Republican Convention and Platform.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 30.—Senator R. M. La Follette of Madison probably will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for president at the next Republican national convention, according to the statement of his political friends here. The senator would not at this time say anything regarding the matter for publication. He believes the Progressives by making an aggressive campaign for delegates will be able to control the national convention and may determine the platform and nominations. The senator will consult Progressive leaders in Washington early in December regarding the matter.

Progressives for President.

Senator La Follette believes that by bringing out Progressive native sons for president in the different states, particularly the states where the Progressive Republicans are strongest, the Progressives will be able to elect many delegates in the 19 states where delegates are to be chosen at primary elections in March, April, May and June. These 19 states will elect 582 of the 988 delegates to the convention.

The senator will open a speaking campaign in Wisconsin at once for a Progressive delegation next April from this state to the national convention. If Senator La Follette should not be nominated for president at the national convention he will be a candidate for renomination and re-election to the senate.

GAFFNEY TO FACE ACCUSERS

Former American Consul at Munich Says He Was Condemned Without Hearing.

New York, Nov. 29.—T. St. John Gaffney, until recently consul general for the United States at Munich, arrived here on the steamship Oscar II from Copenhagen. He said he would go to Washington shortly to take up the charges against him with the state department.

Of these charges he said he was officially ignorant. In a written statement by him on his arrival he said he was condemned without a hearing and his resignation asked.

Mr. Gaffney also said he had a number of documents and testimonials from prominent Americans as well as English people at Munich as to his conduct. This included, he said, a copy of a cablegram sent to the state department by members of the American colony asking that he have a hearing and a copy of a cablegram from members of the English colony denying alleged "biased treatment of Englishmen."

German Governor General Gives Order So That Passports May Be Issued to Inhabitants.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—Two million persons have been ordered by the German governor-general of Poland to have photographs taken, in order that passports may be issued to all over 15 years of age, according to the Overseas News Agency. One million photographs already have been made and this number is being increased at the rate of 30,000 a day. The work is being done by 60 photographers with 250 assistants.

President Will Take No Part.

Washington, Nov. 27.—President Wilson will take no part in the campaign to bring about a peace conference now being carried on in this and other neutral countries. While he will interpose no objection to the unofficial movement he has heard nothing from Europe which leads him to believe that the time is opportune for him to take any steps. Telegrams urging the president to support the movement for a conference of neutrals continue to pour in at the White House.

GERMAN CRUISER FRAUENLOB SUNK

SENT TO BOTTOM BY ALLIED SUBMARINE IN THE BALTIC, SAYS REPORT.

KITCHENER REACHES ITALY

British War Chief's Arrival in Rome Announced in Telegram—News of Departure From Gallipoli Is Received With Surprise.

London, Nov. 27.—The German protected cruiser Frauenlob has been sunk by a submarine of the Entente Allies, according to a semi-official announcement made at Petrograd, says a dispatch to the Central News agency. The Frauenlob is reported to have been sent to the bottom in the same locality where the German protected cruiser Undine, a sister ship of the Frauenlob, was lost.

Dispatches from Copenhagen recently announced that a flotilla of from 10 to 25 British submarines had passed the Cattagat for the Baltic sea.

Destruction of the Frauenlob is regarded here as the first step in a determined campaign by the Allies to clear the Baltic of all German vessels whether war or merchant ships.

Kitchener Arrives in Rome.

The arrival of Field Marshal Kitchener, British war chief, in Rome, is announced in a telegram from the Italian capital. Lord Kitchener reached Rome from Naples and went directly to the British embassy, the message stated.

News that the field marshal had departed from Gallipoli was received here with some surprise, as it generally had been supposed when he left for the near east that he would proceed from the Dardanelles to Egypt and India.

It is believed here that he has returned to Italy, after a survey of conditions at Gallipoli and Saloniki and the success of his mission at the court of King Constantine at Athens, to discuss with the Italian war leaders what steps can be taken by Italy to best aid the Allies in the Balkan campaign.

U. S. TROOPS KILL MEXICANS

Skirmish on Border Starts When Villa Snipers Shoot at Soldiers Patrolling Boundary.

Nogales, Ariz., Nov. 29.—Carrying out threats that they would fight Americans before they left the border, Villa snipers, posted in Nogales, Sonora, after Francisco Villa evacuated the town, opened fire on soldiers patrolling the border.

The Americans returned the fire.

More than 40 Mexicans were killed. Three Americans received wounds one of whom, Stephen Littles, died later. Another, Herbert Cates, is dangerously wounded. He was operated upon and physicians say he has an even chance for recovery. Arthur L Saupe was shot in the foot.

New Dirigible for U. S. Navy.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 29.—Work on a dirigible war balloon for the navy will begin at the navy yard here on Dec. 15, it was announced. The airship will be 175 feet long and 50 feet in diameter. It will cost $30,000 and naval engineers estimate the work will be completed in a month.

Greek Promises Satisfy Allies.

London, Nov. 27.—Although the text of the Greek government's reply to the note presented by the Allies has not been made public, there is every indication that the government is satisfied with the position taken at Athens. The assurances given by Greece differ in marked degree from the previous expressions of benevolent neutrality. They promise explicitly that no military measures will be taken against the Serbian, French or British troops in case they retreat to Greek territory.

Refuses German Request for Opening Danube to Enable Teutons to Send Supplies to Bulgaria and Turkey—Russian Warships Again Off Bulgarian Coast.

Geneva, via, Paris, Nov. 30.—Reports received here from Chiasso on the Swiss-Italian border, say that Gorizia has fallen, the Italians having entered the town from the north. There is no official confirmation of the reports.

London, Nov. 30.—The greater portion of what remains of the Serbian northern army is believed to have crossed into the mountains of Albania and Montenegro where the Serbs are continuing, with the aid of King Nicholas' troops and supplies which are reaching them from the Adriatic, to offer stern resistance to the Austro-German and Bulgarian invaders. Like the Belgians, however, the Serbians hold only a fringe of their country which widens as it reaches the southwestern corner of which Monastir is the center.

Bulgar-Teuton Disagreement?

For some reason variously explained the Bulgarians have halted their march on that city. It is said in some dispatches that, having reoccupied part of Macedonia largely inhabited by their fellow nationals, the Bulgarian people and government are disinclined to push any further west, and on this point are in disagreement with their Austro-German allies who are determined to drive not only the Serbians and Montenegrins, but the French and British troops out of the Balkans.

While at the present time they have largely superior forces, the task may prove a difficult one. Winter has set in at an unusually early date and the natives predict that it will be severe. Snow fell at Saloniki for the first time in eight years, which is taken as a sign that in the mountains of the peninsula, there will be a very heavy fall. During the latter part of the week, almost continuous storms compelled the suspension of operations giving the French and British time to bring up reinforcements which are being landed at Saloniki daily and consolidate their positions.

Refuse German Request.

The Austro-Germans also have had to divert part of their armies down the Danube to the Roumanian border, Roumania having refused the German request for the opening of the Danube throughout its entire length to enable the Germans to send supplies to Bulgaria and Turkey. Roumania insisted that armed ships must not pass Baba, which is on the Danube at the Roumanian-Bulgarian frontier.

With the concentration of the Russians, too, the attitude of Roumania is becoming daily more pro-ally, and the Austro-Germans, having aided Bulgaria in her campaign against Serbia which is now cleared, is called upon to the East. Russian warships including new dreadnaughts have again been off the Black sea coast of Bulgaria, but there is no news of any landing or movement of troops.

The procession was viewed by many Americans, including bluejackets from the United States cruiser Saratoga, flagship of the Asiatic fleet.

On Strategy.

A well known army officer said at a dinner in Washington, apropos of strategy:

"The strategist must be very quick of decision and very prompt to execute what he decides. There must be nothing of Jiggers about the successful strategist.

"A friend, you know, called on Jiggers and found the man bending over a shirt with a rapt, dreamy, perplexed look.

"'What's up?' the friend asked.

"'Well,' said Jiggers, 'I'm in a quandary. This shirt here is too dirty to wear and not dirty enough to go to the laundry, and I can't make up my mind what to do about it.'"

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

CONSIDERABLE AMOUNT IS PROPERTY OF AMERICANS

Grain Taken Under Special War Act Is Estimated at 20,000,000 Bushels —Most of This to Be Shipped to Great Britain, France and Italy.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 30.—The Canadian government has commandeered all high grade wheat in elevators from Fort William on Lake Superior to the Atlantic coast.

The action was taken under the special war act by the Canadian grain commission. The wheat seized was of grades No. 1 hard and Nos. 1, 2 and 3 northern. It was the property of grain shippers and millers. That taken is all which on Saturday night was in public elevators at Fort William, Port Arthur, Midland, Tiffin, Port McNichol, Collingwood, Goderich, Kingston, Port Colborne, Prescott, Quebec, St. John, Montreal and Halifax.

Much Owned by Americans.

A revised estimate places the amount at about 20,000,000 bushels. A considerable amount is the property of American grain dealers.

The grain was taken so that grain exchanges should be affected as little as possible. It is officially stated that the price will be fairly adjusted and the grain owners promptly paid by the Canadian government.

It is estimated that there is still in Canada in the hands of farmers and dealers west of Fort William 150,000,000 bushels surplus of wheat available for export.

It is expected that most of this will be taken in the future for the use of Great Britain, France and Italy. The domestic supply of Russia is more than sufficient to meet the needs of that country. Had the Dardanelles been forced the surplus of Russian wheat would have made the present action unnecessary.

To Ship Wheat To Italy.

While the wheat just taken was commandeered to fill an order from the British government for a large quantity of wheat it is understood that most of it will be shipped to Italy.

The Canadian government will look after the transportation of the grain to the Atlantic seaboard and from there its shipment across the Atlantic will be undertaken by the British government in the same way that shipments of oats and hay have been handled for the past year.

FORD PEACE MISSION GROWS

Additional Accommodations Secured for Americans Who Will Seek to End War in Europe.

New York, Nov. 29.—The response to the invitation of Henry Ford to accompany him to Europe in an endeavor to bring about peace among the warring nations has been so great it was announced at Mr. Ford's head quarters, that additional accommodations have had to be secured. It was announced Mr. Ford had chartered the first and second cabins of the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII, in addition to the quarters on the Oscar II, of the same line, already provided. The Frederick VIII will sail from New York Dec. 8.

Inability to leave their state business was the reason given by many governors whose declinations have been received at the headquarters here.

TORNADO KILLS 12 FARMERS

Terrific Storm Passes Through Thickly Settled Country—Many of Injured May Die.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 27.—Twelve persons are known to be killed, one man is believed to be buried in the ruins of his home and about 30 persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, by a tornado which swept through the thickly settled farming country about a mile east of the city limits of Hot Springs in the afternoon.

Turks in Mesopotamia Retire.

London, Nov. 29.—Turkish troops resisting the British advance in Mesopotamia are falling back, according to an official announcement reporting a Turkish attack on Dialah, 10 miles from Bagdad.

Ship Burns; Wireless Saves Crew.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 29.—A wireless dispatch announced that the Chesapeake bay steamer, Tivoli, bound from Baltimore for Crisfield, was burned to the water's edge off Thomas' point, about 50 miles down the bay. The 25 passengers were rescued by the steamers Florida and Richmond, which responded to wireless calls for help. Captain Richard Howard, commander of the Tivoli and the crew, which numbered 37 men, also were saved.

STATE BREVITIES

Canby. — Fire starting at 10:45 o'clock p. m. destroyed the First National bank building at a loss of $56,000, and for a time threatened the entire business portion of the town. The cause is unknown.

Albert Lea. — Five hunters of this city, Burt Skinner, Peter Knutson, Edmund Gulbrandson, Casper Hanson and Dan Drommerhausen, have returned from the big woods in St. Louis county. Each brought back a buck. Hanson's deer weighed nearly 300 pounds.

Red Wing.—Mrs. George Brobert of Minneapolis, widow of the locomotive fireman on the Milwaukee road who lost his life near Lake City last summer in a train wreck as the result of a cloudburst, has been paid $6,000 by the railroad, it has been learned. The settlement was reached a few days ago.

Minneapolis. — The League of Minnesota Municipalities has authorized publication of a monthly bulletin which shall contain proceedings of its annual convention and general municipal news. The bulletin will be prepared by G. E. Gesell, director of the municipal research bureau at the university.

Winona. — During a blinding snowstorm in this city, two boys, Theodore Jones, 12, and William Jennison, also 12, walked out on thin ice on Lake Winona. It gave way and the pair were rescued after 20 minutes by a large number of persons who were attracted by their cries. The storm was so severe that the boys lost their way.

Thief River Falls.—The Pennington County Livestock Breeders' association was launched at a meeting here attended by 65 prominent farmers. The following officers were elected: President, Henry Hanson; vice president, Harry Woolson; secretary and treasurer, Henry Werner; directors, Peter Englestad and Fred Beerbour, all of Thief River Falls.

Duluth. — Nicholas Hoffman, 20 years old, son of pioneer Duluth parents, is dead as a result of the carelessness of an unidentified hunter, who is being sought. Hoffman was shot in the right leg while he and his brother, Joseph, were staking out a tent where they intended to camp, about two miles from Munger.

Anoka. — With the ice jam in the Mississippi river at this place extending one mile up stream, city authorities and business men are contemplating the use of dynamite to clear the stream if the pressure is much increased. As a result of the jam the Champlin flour mill and the Pillsbury-Washburn plant are suffering a curtailment of their water power.

Minneapolis, Minn. —Congressman George R. Smith's suggestion to Mayor Nye, President Platt B. Walker of the council, and John Ryan, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the council, that a committee should be sent to Washington to confer on the government dam power controversy will be considered in council meeting, according to announcement made by Mr. Walker.

Faribault.—Malcolm Grant of this city was awarded $17,500 damages against the Dan Patch road for injuries received in its employ by a jury in district court. Grant was caught between two box cars while working for the company at Mankato, and claims he was permanently injured. He sued for $20,000 damages. The court has one of the largest civil calendars that it has had for a number of years.

Shokapee, Minn.—William Keating, 19 years old, a recent arrival in Minneapolis from Streator, Ill., died Friday afternoon from wounds received in a Thanksgiving day hunting accident near here. Arthur Buckley, a companion, was reloading his shotgun during a stop of the party near Bush lake, when the charge went off, and struck Keating in the leg. He was taken to the Eitel hospital in Minneapolis but the loss of blood caused his death. The body was taken to Streator.

Rochester.—A municipal water power plant that will give to Rochester the opportunity to supply electric current to the consumer at a less price than anywhere in the country is a project that has been launched by the Rochester Commercial club, and probably will be presented to the voters of the city as soon as the legal phase of the question has been settled. The proposition is to bond the city for sufficient to purchase a nearby power site and to build a plant.

St. Cloud. — Though a verdict of $209.68 was returned by a jury in district court against W. L. Seabury, the judgment on file in the office of the clerk has been settled by the Methodist church committee, plaintiff in the action. The suit was started by Rev. F. W. Hill, former pastor of the church, in common with several other suits against men whom Hill claimed had subscribed to the new church but refused to pay. Acting under a policy adopted by the new pastor, all the cases have been dropped.

Minneapolis. — Minnesota has contributed its champion boy corn grower to the advancement of rural banking in North Dakota. Arthur Hoese of Mayer, the Minnesota champion, who was awarded a bronze medal by the Panama-Pacific exposition, has gone into a bank at Zap.

St. Paul. — To obtain adequate funds to meet appeals sent in from outside the city, the Minnesota Humane society will commission an agent to travel through Minnesota during the coming year personally answering complaints and enrolling members.

EDUCATOR LAUDS STATE SCHOOLS

SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION WOULD COPY STATE AID SYSTEM.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

Minnesota's consolidated school system and the subject of state aid for public schools are being studied by Nathan C. Schaeffer, state superintendent of education of Pennsylvania, who was a guest of C. G. Schulz, Minnesota state superintendent of education. Mr. Schaeffer visited St. Paul on his return from a meeting of the South Dakota Teachers' association. He left Friday for his home at Harrisburg. He was astonished at the large permanent school fund of Minnesota and praised the rural schools of the state.

"Our state school fund is distributed by enumeration instead of attendance, as here in Minnesota," he said, "Your plan requires actual attendance at the schools, which I consider splendid. The Minnesota system is very efficient in raising the standard of rural schools."

Mr. Schaeffer is planning to request a new system of state aid to schools in his state. He will copy the Minnesota plan.

Insurance Rates Adjusted.

Fire insurance rates are the same in every part of Minnesota for the first time, following the order of Samuel D. Works, state insurance commissioner. Rates which have prevailed in southern Minnesota are to be applied in northern and northeastern Minnesota, where formerly they were much higher. In some instances, a differential of 40 per cent is abolished by Mr. Works' order.

The ruling by Mr. Works directed the General Inspection company of Minneapolis, which makes rates for the state, to govern its rate-making accordingly. The action came after Mr. Works had had several conferences with Walter I. Fisher, manager of the company, and with underwriters of fire insurance.

In the order, Mr. Works says the contention of the bureau for maintaining the old rates is untenable.

The state has been divided into three sections by the insurance companies. The southern section comprises all territory south of Minneapolis and St. Paul and the Great Northern railroad to Breckenridge. The northern district includes all territory north of this with the exception of that in the northeastern part of the state, including St. Louis and Isanti counties, which comprises the northeastern section. Rates in the northern section were higher than in the southern section, while in the northeastern, the highest rates of all prevailed.

Oat Crop Worth $43,834,906.50.

The farm value of Minnesota's oat crop this year is $43,834,906.50. The farmers planted 3,129,500 acres in oats which produced 146,116,355 bushels. These figures were given out by Fred D. Sherman, immigration commissioner. The yield per acre was 46.69 bushels. "There is an increase this year in both the acreage and yield of oats as compared with last year," said Mr Sherman. "The 1914 figures according to Federal reports were 3,040,000 acres planted. The increase in acreage for this year is 89,500.

"The average yield per acre for Minnesota was 28 bushels last year. This yield has been increased this year by 18.69 bushels per acre. The total production of oats in Minnesota last year was 85,120,000 bushels. The gain in total production this year was 60,996,355 bushels."

Schools Receive $1,314,000.

All but $486,000 of the $1,800,000 due the public schools as special aid has been sent out by Walter J. Smith, state treasurer. The remaining money will be forwarded when Mr. Smith borrows $500,000 from the Federal Reserve bank, which is provided for in the resolution signed by Mr. Smith, J. A. O. Preus, state auditor, and Governor Hammond.

Wants Field Notes.

The state highway commission has suggested to Governor Hammond that the government field notes of surveys in Minnesota be turned over to it. The records are now in possession of the secretary of state. An act of congress will be necessary to make the change.

Suggests Advisory Board.

Reluctance on the part of one state department to suggest changes or improvements in another prompted Ralph W. Wheelock, a member of the state board of control, to direct a letter to the new efficiency and economy commission suggesting an advisory commission of experts to be composed of members of several of the principal state departments. In his letter Mr. Wheelock says he is acting as an individual and a taxpayer and without reference officially to the board of which he is a member

SUDDEN DEATH

Caused by Disease of the Kidneys

The close connection which exists between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. As soon as kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are attacked. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uremic poisoning occurs, and the person dies and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs.

It is a good insurance against such a risk to send 10 cents for a large trial package of "Anuric"—the latest discovery of Dr. Pierce. Also send a sample of your water. This will be examined without charge by expert chemists at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. When you suffer from backache, frequent or scanty urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired, worn-out feeling, it's time to write Dr. Pierce, describe your symptoms and get his medical opinion, without charge—absolutely free. This "Anuric" of Dr. Pierce's is 37 times more active than lithia, for it dissolves uric acid in the system, as hot water does sugar.

Simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. There can be no imitation. Every package of "Anuric" is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women.

Worry is a frequent cause and sometimes a symptom of kidney disease. Thousands have testified to immediate relief from these symptoms after using Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets for the kidneys and backache.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong, sick women well. No alcohol. Sold in tablets or liquid.

There Was Danger.

A rather heavy storm burst over a suburban town, and a young wife, startled by a particularly sharp crash, made a dive from the porch to the darkened parlor.

"I won't stay here another minute!" she exclaimed in a terrified voice. "You can't tell what may happen next."

"You are foolish, dear," responded the hubby, following her into the house. "Don't you know that thunder cannot hurt anybody?"

"You are mistaken, Harry," positively rejoined the young woman. "Haven't you ever heard of people being thunderstruck?" — Philadelphia Record.

SWAMP-ROOT STOPS SERIOUS BACKACHE

When your back aches, and your bladder and kidneys seem to be disordered, remember it is needless to suffer—go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. It is a physician's prescription for diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

It has stood the test of years and has a reputation for quickly and effectively giving results in thousands of cases.

This prescription was used by Dr. Kilmer in his private practice and was so very effective that it has been placed on sale everywhere. Get a bottle, 50c and $1.00, at your nearest druggist.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Don't Shiver in Chilly Rooms

The discomfort of spending the early days of fall in chilly, unheated rooms is nothing to the danger to health.

It lowers the vitality and invites colds and pneumonia; if there are young children or old people in the family the risk of illness is doubled. It also is unnecessary, when the NEW PERFECTION Heater instantly banishes frosty chill and makes the living room a place of genial comfort.

Carry it with you from room to room and have heat to dress by in the morning and in the bathroom. After the winter fires are lighted, use the NEW PERFECTION in rooms that are hard to heat; in the night, if anyone is sick; wherever and whenever you want a warm room quickly —by simply striking a match.

The NEW PERFECTION is easy to care for. Burns 10 hours on one gallon of oil. Can't smoke. No trouble to re-wick, because wick and carrier are combined—the fresh wick all ready to put in, clean, smooth and ready to light.

For best results use Perfection Oil.

WHAT HE SAYS AND WHAT HE DOES.

The Oklee Herald of last week published about a column of 'windy' sayings from Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Blakeslee, among other things he is quoted as saying:

WHAT HE SAYS

"If there is any rural resident of Minnesota who believes he is entitled to free delivery, and he isn't on an established route let him write to me and I will see that he gets it, if it is possible to lay a route in his neighborhood. We haven't attempted a state wide revision of the rural delivery routes, but we have made some changes. Often we have found fourth class postmasters whose offices were in danger of being abolished, have kept people from applying for rural service. These postmasters were afraid of losing their few dollars of income obtained from the sale of stamps and stamped paper.

We want to get around these people, and therefore I want everybody who believes he should have rural mail service to write me. I'll see that he gets it if it's possible to give it to him. If it is found impossible I will tell him why.

So far in this administration we have saved $2,000,000 by reorganizing routes, and this money has been applied to the establishment of routes that gave postal facilities to 1,000,000 more people than were served before the change. In some states we have reorganized the service completely. In others, like Minnesota, we have just begun. We propose to spend the people's money in this service for the benefit of the people and not for the purpose of serving the ends of politicians.

No dismissed rural carrier and no fourth class postmaster who has had his revenue interfered with is going to make any difference to me."

WHAT HE DOES.

The people of parts of the town of Mayfield, where their post office of Malone had been discontinued, and left without any mail service humbly petitioned this GREAT representative of the common people and the ignorer of the fourth class postmasters to grant them mail service, by allowing the mail carrier to drive by their way. but instead of granting their petition, the route was reversed and these people compelled to allow all of their mail to stop at Sunbeam post office, and lay for two or three days, before it is delivered to them. But he wrote Congressman Steenerson that the mail route would be established as requested by Stephen Singer fourth class postmaster at Kratka, and against the repeated petitions of all of these people, he sits there at Washington as the boss of mail routes and deprives the people of a mail service that he could give them without a dollars additional expense to the government.

AGAIN HE SAYS

"All we want to know is that there is a number of people in any community without mail facilities. Then we deem it our work to see that they are relieved."

Yes he relieved the people of the former Malone post office by issuing an order for the mail carrier to drive the wrong way and lay over all their mail two or three days, so as to please fourth class post masters and politicians, and allow them to gather up the cancellation. There is no use for him to publish what he will do about mail service in eastern Pennington county, as the people know what he has done, and are counting the days that remain for him to further unjustly discriminate on mail routes in this locality.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simly laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkely, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new."

Canada Takes The Wheat.

The Canadian government has placed an embargo on 20,000,000 bushels of wheat in that country, thus taking the grain from under the control of wheat speculators, and placing it under control of the government. It had the effect to make a raise in the price of wheat in this country of about five cents a bushel. England can now tell Germany that they have the staff of life behind them in the war, that is to be fought to a finish.

THE LOCAL NEWS

Nels Askland had the misfortune to tip over a load of wheat on the grade south of the Clearwater bridge Wednesday.

Oscar Nesland of Deer Park was transacting business at Plummer Tuesday.

Halvor Olson and G. B. Tveit, extended their subscription account this week, for which they have our thanks. Go thou and do likewise.

From present indications it looks as if Congressman Steenerson would file for re-election. Well Steenerson is a true blue Republican as his record in Congress has shown, and he is not afraid to get into a scrap if he has to for re election.

STRAYED: One spring bull calf came to my place on section 11, town of Deer Park, about six weeks ago. Color red and white spots. Owner may have same by paying for this advertisement and the damage.

Anton Radneicki.

Wheat is worth about $1.00 a bushel at the present time, common cows are worth about $65.00. How would you like to sell those cows for $16.00, and your wheat for 45 cents a bushel? That is what you would have to do under a Democratic administration had it not been for the European war. Are you ready to vote?

When the consolidated school promoters tell you how much money we would draw from the state, ask them if we have not got to have children of school age to draw the money. They must say "yes" if they are honest. Then tell them that on Sec. 28 there are two school children, on section 29 three, on section 32 none, on section 33 none, section 30 none, section 31 six children. Look at the map of Highlanding township and see if we are not right.

President Wilson's message to Congress rings with true patriotism, but we have got to wait until the Republican party comes in power to get the money to carry out his ideas of defense. His ideas have bankrupt the country for revenue, and now he sees the position that he has placed the country in and wants to borrow from John Morgan—at all. But there are enough loyal American congressmen that will head off his ideas of bonding this country in time of peace.

Among our paid in advance new subscribers for this week, we note the following:

C. D. Collins, Bertram, Wright Lumber Co., Olof Rice and Oscar Carlson, of Plummer, and Ed Rosli, of Rhoda, all of Red Lake county. We are making efforts to increase our Red Lake county list at the present time, as we are getting ready for the county option fight in that county, and of course want the circulation, and readers.

We received $1.02 a bushel for wheat at Plummer Tuesday, with good honest weight. In fact we find that there are many times that our local elevators are blamed by farmers for giving them low grades, when it is the fault of the farmers themselves for not raising the right kind of wheat. We had some experience last year with Blue Stem soft wheat that some of our neighbors are having this year. But we caught onto the fact, that if we were to get a number one price, we must produce a number one wheat, and last spring we sowed Marquis and now when we drive up to the elevator, the agent smiles, and there is no figuring to do as it is No. 1.

John Quirk has our thanks for extention of subscription this week.

We met one of our old neighbors from Polk County at Plummer Tuesday evening, who has survived the Taft Reciprocity and the Wilson Prosperity. His name is John Hayford, and he is one of the successful and progressive farmers of the town of Eden, Polk County, Minn. Mr. Hayford came from the county option county of Polk, while we dropped down from the Pennington county option county, and we of course dropped a few dollars of Pennington and Polk county's hard earned coin into Red Lake county. Enough said, Hurrah for county option!

It's a long way to Red Lake county,
It's a long way to go,
It's a long way to Red Lake county,
To the best booze I know.
Good-bye Tom and Jerry,
Farewell, ye rock and rye,
It's a long, long way to Red Lake county,
Since Polk and Pennington went dry.

London's Bridges.

At a time when the population of London was well over a million and her houses lay for miles on each side of the river she was apparently well content with her one London bridge. At length in 1734 Westminster was seized with the desire to have a bridge of her own. Application was made to parliament for powers only to encounter the fiercest opposition from the city, the 40,000 watermen, the inhabitants of Southwark and the west country bargemen, all of whom implored the commons to protect them against this new enemy. The result was that the bridge was not built till 1750. Blackfriars, at first called Pitt's bridge, was finished in 1769 at a cost of £230,000, defrayed by tolls. Waterloo was opened on the second anniversary of the famous battle with great pomp by the prince regent in person, accompanied by his royal brother, the Duke of York, the Duke of Wellington and many distinguished people.—London Answers.

"No Quarter Given."

"It is forbidden to declare that no quarter shall be given." So say The Hague regulations. That is a more modern rule than you would think. The Duke of Wellington said that he understood that the defenders of a fortress taken by storm had no right to quarter, although he himself did not, as a rule, adopt such a cruel practice. A century ago, when a feeble garrison stubbornly held out in a feebly fortified place against a force manifestly superior and apparently able to take it eventually, it was usually refused quarter. There was an attempt to justify the refusal by a doctrine of "futile resistance"—that he who uselessly resisted and caused assaulting or besieging forces unnecessary loss of life did not deserve to have his own life spared. But that doctrine has been rejected. Carried to its logical conclusion it would mean that every member of a weaker force in any kind of armed contest could be killed.—William M. Collier in Forum.

A Troublesome Cargo.

"An elephant's shoulder is never still" is a Hindu saying with reference to the restlessness of the animal. An Englishman tells how the elephant's passion for moving about once came near wrecking a ship.

A number of elephants were taken on board a vessel at Calcutta, and the steamer went down the Hugli river. At night it anchored off Sangor point. The sea was as still as oil, but the ship rolled so much that she was in danger of going over. The elephants had found that by swaying to and fro all together they could produce a pleasant rocking motion. As the ship had no other cargo and rode light the captain was much frightened. The mahouts, or keepers, were hurried down into the hold, and each one, seated on his own beast, made him "break step," but they had to stay there for a long time.

Elijah's Altar.

Obadiah hid "one hundred of the Lord's prophets in a cave." On the west end of Carmel, below the monastery, is a large cavern, partly artificial, where, to increase its sanctity, the holy family are said to have reposed on their return from Egypt. The "place of Sacrifice" is some eight miles inland along the crest of the mountain, overlooking the Kishon, the whole plain of Esdraelon, Jezreel and the mountains of Galilee. Many churches and nationalities, not to mention individuals, have searched the slopes of Carmel for the exact spot where Elijah "repaired the altar of the Lord," selecting twelve stones from the ruins of the neglected altar. At the urgent request of an English lady who thought of purchasing the site I once made a careful study of the location suggested. While we may never know the exact spot, there is a lovely little plateau not far from the summit which would fulfill every necessity of the narrative and provide a matchless natural theater for this matchless event in history.—Christian Herald.

Wonders of Naval Gunnery.

The fire of a naval gun is directed from the fire control station, a small box on the masts. Here is the range finder, a large telescope pointed at right angles to its object. This telescope consists of a series of mirrors of various sizes and curves, which catch the ships all around and fix them before the eyes of the officer, who can set his lenses so that he can gauge the correct angle by a small calculation and can reckon almost the exact space separating him from his opponent. The information is telephoned to the gunner, who directs the telescopic sight, attached to his gun on the desired object. This sight magnifies the size of the opponent and brings its characteristics close to the eye. In the meantime the expert officers in the fire control watch the fall of the shot. Should it miss delicate instruments tell how far the shell was off the target. The correction is made, and the second shot, if not on the spot, comes unpleasantly near.—Pearson's.

Travels of a Chimney Swift.

On June 7, 1911, an adult chimney swift fluttered down a chimney into the study of Ernest Harold Baynes in Meriden, N. H., and was promptly banded and released. The band was of the old style and bore the number 6326. At 8 o'clock p. m. on June 15, 1912, two chimney swifts flew from the chimney into the same room of Mr. Baynes' house where the bird had been caught a year and eight days before. And lo! when these birds were taken in hand and examined one of them proved to be 6326. Remarkable as this may seem, this diminutive creature, less than six inches in length, had traveled hundreds of miles to Central America or elsewhere in the tropics where he spent the winter and then had made the long return journey at the approach of summer and found again the chimney of his choice in a village in faroff New Hampshire. And throughout his journeying the little aluminum ring had traveled with him and had produced not the least effect on the bird's leg.

One wonders if the swift lived always in the same hollow tree in South America.—New York Post.

A Youthful Speculator.

Senator John Sherman made his first speculation when he was a boy of sixteen, and it turned out badly. At the age of fourteen he was working for the Muskingum Improvement company at $25 a month and at the age of sixteen was superintendent of an important part of the work and had been advanced to $40. During the winter he was idle, as the canal was closed. It was at this time that he attempted his speculation. Salt was very low on the Muskingum river and very high at Cincinnati. So John bought a lot of salt, loaded it on a scow and started it down the river. All went well until within one day's float of the Ohio river, when the thermometer went down to zero, and the scow remained right there for two long months. Everybody had a great laugh over the youthful speculator, but he lived long enough to return the laugh with interest.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

His Plea.

Skimpy little Mr. Meek's stalwart helpmeet grabbed him with both hands by the hair of the head to illustrate some point which she wished to impress upon him.

"My dear, my dear," he chided. "I am afraid you have forgotten that I am attached to the other ends of those hairs."

Large Club for Buys.

The boy in the city must avoid many side tracks if he desires to lead an upright and useful life, says the Boston Globe. Constantly he is beset with distractions which may lead him astray into the rangs of the incompetent, idle or even vicious. He is an inquisitive, knowledge-thirsting creature, full of the great possibilities of youth. His latent powers are precious; yet they are wasted with a prodigality akin almost to that of nature.

Hence the establishment of the large boys' club in Roxbury, handsomely housed and well equipped, means that many boys will be given the opportunity to keep on the main line leading to a useful life.

A boy's enthusiasm is more often aroused when he thinks he is playing than when he is working at school. The boys' club can catch him when he is enthusiastic and start that enthusiasm toward manly accomplishment. We wish the club every success.

An Objection.

"How can you say so when the press chronicled in this one week the marriage of Miss Corn to Mr. Cobb and of Miss Snow to Mr. Blizzard?"

HARD TO DROP

But Many Drop It.

A young Calif. wife talks about coffee:

"It was hard to drop Mocha and Java and give Postum a trial, but my nerves were so shattered that I was a nervous wreck and of course that means all kinds of ails.

"I did not want to acknowledge coffee caused the trouble for I was very fond of it. At that time a friend came to live with us, and I noticed that after he had been with us a week he would not drink his coffee any more. I asked him the reason. He replied: 'I have not had a headache since I left off drinking coffee, some months ago, till last week, when I began again here at your table. I don't see how anyone can like coffee, anyway, after drinking Postum!'

"I said nothing, but at once ordered a package of Postum. That was five months ago, and we have drank no coffee since, except on two occasions when we had company, and the result each time was that my husband could not sleep, but lay awake and tossed and talked half the night. We were convinced that coffee caused his suffering, so he returned to Postum, convinced that coffee was an enemy, instead of a friend, and he is troubled no more by insomnia.

"I have gained 8 pounds in weight, and my nerves have ceased to quiver. It seems so easy now to quit coffee that caused our aches and ails and take up Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Promptly at noon today Vice-President Marshall in the senate and Speaker Clark in the house rapped sharply with their gavels, and the first session of the Sixty-fourth congress, which gives promise of being epoch-making, was declared open. Both chambers were crowded to their capacity, for virtually every senator and representative was present, and the unusual importance that attaches to the deliberations of this congress caused the galleries to be thronged.

At the invitation of Speaker Clark, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and other officers of the National Woman Suffrage association occupied the speaker's gallery in the house, and the interest of these women was intensified by the promise of Representative Mondell of Wyoming that he would signalize the opening day by introducing a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution enabling women to vote.

"Come-Backs" and New Talent.

The acute international situation, due to the world war, the question of adequately preparing the country for defense, the problem of trying to turn a deficit into a surplus in the national pocketbook to meet heavier expenses than ever before, the presidential election year, and a multiplicity of other important things will combine to fill the session from beginning to end with animation.

Some of the leading roles will be played by history-creators of bygone congresses—men who "return from Elba" after two years' exile following the 1913 upheaval. The chief experienced actor of this class is "Uncle Joe" Cannon, dethroned as speaker four years ago, and exiled two years ago. Another of the old-time stars is William B. McKinley of Illinois, manager of the Taft campaign in 1912.

There is a host of new talent, however. In the house approximately 100 seats were taken by new congressmen. The senate saw a few new faces. Of chief interest among these were Oscar Underwood, who gave up his leadership in the house to don a senator's toga. Curtis of Kansas is a "comback" senator, being one of the conservative Republicans driven out in 1912. Broussard of Louisiana moved from the house into the senate. Two of the most conspicuous absentees were Elihu Root of New York and Theodore Burton of Ohio. Their places were taken respectively by James Wadsworth and Warren G. Harding, both of whom are enrolled in the commonly regarded conservative element of the senate.

Some Big Problems.

Here are some of the problems with which congress is called upon to wrestle: National defense, tariff tinkering, rural credits, conservation, merchant marine, seamen's bill amendment, currency bill amendment, antitrust bill amendment, the international situation, the far-eastern question, an embargo on arms, Mexico, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Haiti, the Columbian and Nicaraguan treaties, the serious deficit in the national revenues, continuing the war tax, taxing munitions of war profits, building an armorplate factory, prohibition, suffrage, codification of the federal statutes, and good road building. These are all on the present schedule. Many more entertaining questions are bound to develop after congress gets in full swing.

Sentiment of a large element in the country is considered certain to inspire some members to renew efforts for an embargo on munitions of war to the allies. If such a measure is introduced, as it in all probability will be, some lively arguments on the neutrality question may be expected. The president is known to be of the same mind now on this question as he was last session, that is, that an embargo on arms, far from assuring the United States' impartiality in the war, would actually be in direct violation of true neutrality.

Indications of the bitterness to characterize the battling over the Philippine question have already been seen in the attacks of Republican members of the insular affairs committees upon the administration of Governor-General Harrison, Democrat, appointed less than two years ago by President Wilson. Charges of mismanagement made in public statements by the Republicans of the insular affairs committees have been refuted by Democratic members who have visited the islands recently. Legislation will be reintroduced providing limited autonomy for the Philippines. Just how limited it shall be will form the chief subject of controversy over its passage.

Of the other island possessions of the United States, Porto Rico promises to furnish topic for considerable argument. Recent investigation by the industrial relations commission into labor conditions of the island produced shocking revelations.

Mexico Will Demand Attention.

The Mexican policy always may be counted upon to occupy a conspicuous position in the limelight of congress. As depredations, loss of American lives and property, and disorders continue in the turbulent republic, Republican members are gathering ammunition for vigorous attacks upon the administration's recognition of Carranza. The administration, however, is confident that the situation is clearing up and that conditions will be so improved before the first of the year that the Mexican muddle will be taken entirely out of politics in the coming presidential campaign.

Antidumping legislation will be brought in early in the session upon recommendation of the department of commerce, and perhaps of the president. This measure will aim to prevent the dumping of European goods into the United States after the war at below-the-market prices to regain lost trade. It is proposed to impose a tax upon such goods sufficient to bring their selling price in America up to the regular market price.

An amendment to the antitrust laws to permit American manufacturers to combine for the purpose of maintaining co-operative selling agencies abroad will be attempted also. Under the present laws American corporations find prohibitive the cost of operating individual selling agencies in European countries because of government supervision of the markets there.

Laws probably will be enacted on suggestion of the department of justice to facilitate the prosecution of violation of the neutrality statutes. The department has found it very difficult to make cases against the perpetrators of the plots against munitions factories and shipping.

BRITISH ARMY ADMITS DEFEAT

LONDON SAYS FORCES RETIRING FROM BAGDAD.

Continue Retreat to Kut-El-Amara About 100 Miles Southeast of Bagdad—Casualties 4,567.

London, Dec. 6.—The British army in Mesopatmia is in retreat. Official announcement has been made that the forces of General Townshend were retiring to Kut-El Amara, about 10 miles southeast of Bagdad.

The text of the official statement says in part:

"General Townshend remained in occupation of the battlefield at Ctesiphon, beating off all counter attacks, til he had completed the removal of his wounded and of 1,600 prisoners taken from the enemy, but in view of our heavy losses and the arrival of Turkish reinforcements he then withdrew.

"It is reported that our total caualties in these actions amounted to 4,567. No report is made of any political officer being wounded as was alleged in the Turkish official statements.

TRAINS CRASH; ONE KILLED

Head-on Collision Between Two Passenger Trains at Lenzburg, Mo. —Score Hurt.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 6.—One person was killed, several were injured seriously and more than a score of passengers suffered minor injuries in a head-on collision between passenger trains numbers 205 and 224 of the Illinois Central lines at Lenzburg, Ill., 25 miles southeast of here. About 150 other passengers were badly shaken up.

The accident was caused it is alleged by an improperly thrown switch.

Recruiting Scheme Disappointing.

London, Dec. 6.—The recruiting scheme of the Earl of Derby, director of recruiting, has not been as successful as had been hoped for, according to James Henry Thomas, labor member of parliament, discussing a meeting of railway workers at Long Eaton. Mr. Thomas said he had discussed the matter with the Earl of Derby and that the earl had expressed the opinion that his plan had not been as successful as he had anticipated or had a right to expect.

Peace League Wants Lind.

New York, Dec. 6.—Formation of state branches has been begun by the League to Enforce Peace, of which former President William H. Taft is president, and the object of which is to maintain world peace after the close of the European war. Mr. Taft has asked John E. Hedges to act as temporary chairman for New York. Among others who have been asked to become temporary chairman is former Governor Lind of Minnesota.

BULGARIANS FAIL IN FIERCE ATTACK ON FRENCH LINES

TEUTONS DRIVE FORWARD ALL ALONG SERBIAN AND MONTENEGRIN FRONT IN THE NORTH.

GERMANS' POSITIONS IN FRANCE ARE BOMBARDED

Constantinople Reports British In Mesopotamia Still in Retreat—Large German Factory at Halle, Saxony, Destroyed With Loss of Several Hundred Lives.

London, Dec. 7.—An Athens' dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says that after Premier Skouloudis had conferred with the French and British ministers he called a meeting of the cabinet and then visited King Constantine. It is reported that the subject under consideration was a fresh proposal by the Allied powers.

Amsterdam, via London, Dec. 7.—According to the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger's correspondent at Constantinople direct railway communication between Constantinople and Berlin will be resumed this week. Freight trains will run twice each week between the two cities.

London, Dec. 7.—While the Teutons have driven forward all along the Serbian and Montenegrin front in the north, the Bulgars have not fared so well in their attempts to break the heavily reinforced French line in the south, working from their base at Saloniki.

Charge after charge against the Allies positions near Kosturino and along the Cerna river have only resulted in the hurling back of the army of King Ferdinand before the galling fire of the French "75's" and scores of machine guns.

Montenegrins Repulsed.

The fighting near Celebric on the Montenegrin border and around Plevlje is described by Vienna as violent, in both places the Montenegrins having taken the offensive only to be repulsed.

On the front in France and Belgium there has been considerable artillery activity in which German positions have been effectively shelled, according to Paris. There have been no infantry engagements here.

German Plant Destroyed.

On the Austro-Italian line, the violent fighting around the Gorizia bridgehead has lessened perceptibly.

Constantinople reports the British in Mesopotamia still in retreat.

A large German ammunition factory at Halle, Saxony, is reported to have been destroyed by an explosion with the loss of several hundred lives. Discontented workmen are said to be suspected of blowing up the plant.

NO PEACE AS FORD SHIP SAILS

Ten Thousand Persons Wave Adieus —One Man Goes Insane and Jumps Into Water.

New York, Dec. 6.—The good ship Oscar II, with Henry Ford's peace pilgrims aboard, set sail for blood-stained Europe amid cheers and tears. William J. Bryan stood on the end of the thronged dock waving adieus and murmuring "God Bless You."

Beside Bryan stood Thomas A. Edison and Mrs. Ford and her son, Edsal. Behind these stood 10,000 howling men and women. And out of the 10,000 one man went insane and jumped into the water.

He jumped saying he'd "swim behind the ship to ward off torpedoes." It took the crew of the tug Girard H. Kellar 10 minutes to fish the man out of the cold river. They took him to St. Mary's hospital.

CARRANZA TO ENTER CAPITAL

Preparations Made for Triumphal March Into Mexico City, About January 1.

Monterey, Mex., Dec. 6.—Preparations have commenced for the triumphal entry of General Venustiano Carranza into Mexico City about the first of the new year, according to word from the capital received here at the headquarters of the first chief of the de facto government.

Work is under way at the artists' colony in the capital on a large oil painting, showing a battle scene and the final triumph of the first chief.

Brothers Perish in Flames.

Pana, Ill., Dec. 6.—John and Alfred Jolly, brothers, 17 and 21 years old, respectively, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home here. Alfred had escaped from the burning building, but he returned in an effort to rescue his brother.

Marshfield, Wis., Has $24,000 Fire.

Marshfield, Wis., Dec. 6.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Felker Brothers manufacturing plant Saturday. The loss is estimated at $24,000 and insurance of about $12,000.

The Aftermath.

The banquet was at its height. The sparkling wine was flowing like the water that used to come down at Lodore in the old third reader, and the gentleman-whom-we-have-with-us-this-evening was rolling on and on. Unnoticed by the guests, a company of Indigestions, Bustheads, Gouts, Dropsies, Lethargies, and so forth, clasped hands and danced around the festal board in transports of glee.

"The humans don't seem to be enjoying it as much as they might," they chortled, "but look at the fun we'll have tomorrow!"—Kansas City Star.

Freckles give him some standing, but a boy cannot be the leader of his gang unless he has warts on his hands.

Criticism Implied.

"He doesn't like my cooking," sobbed the three months' bride, a tear on her long lashes. "I just know he doesn't. So, there!"

"What makes you think so?" her mother asked. "Has he said he doesn't like your cooking?"

"N-no-o," stammered the bride.

"Nonsense, child, it's just your imagination. I felt there was no basis—"

"There is a basis," the bride insisted tearfully. "I had been cooking the loveliest things for him for about two weeks and then he told me he had decided to become a raw-food-faddist. Bo-hoo-o-oo!"—Judge.

It's easy to find reasons why others don't do the foolish things we do.

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.

Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

STATE BREVITIES

Winona.—William Lockwood of La Crescent pleaded guilty in federal court there to violating the cattle quarantine act of 1895 and was given the lightest sentence allowed by the law by Judge Wilbur F. Booth, a fine of $100.

Bemidji.—Dr. W. P. Green of the State Board of Health has ordered the Second grade of the Central school closed to examine cultures for a diphtheria epidemic. Miss Laura Welch of Stillwater is teacher of the Second grade. Other grades may be closed.

Glenwood.—A jury has been selected for the trial in district court here of John Jacobson and George Nelson, who are charged with murdering and robbing the three Mitmoen brothers on their farm near Lowry in this county early in the fall. All the jurors are farmers.

Albert Lea.—The partial failure of the corn crop in Freeborn county has not disheartened the farmers. Silos have been built on nearly every farm and much of the soft corn was saved. The farmers are now prepared for any similar year and are planning even to increase the acreage.

Faribault.—The jury in the case of Mayor N. S. Erb, Councilman William Lindenberg and Councilman Frank J. McCarthy vs. Councilman Domadt, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The jury awarded Lindenberg $5 and the other two $1 each. Suit was brought in each case for $1,000.

Duluth.—Major John H. Darling, assistant United States engineer in this district for 30 years until he retired three weeks ago, has offered to build and equip an astronomical observatory for Duluth, free of charge, and asks only that the council grant him a location on a piece of property owned by the city.

Minneapolis.—Two physicians agree that Mrs. Mary Erickson, Rapidan township, Blue Earth county, died from anthrax, a disease so rare in human beings that not a case has been reported in Minnesota in many years. How she contracted it is a mystery, as no cattle in the locality are known to have been afflicted.

Bemidji.—Workmen engaged in cutting a road between Fox and Big Turtle lakes, eight miles northeast of this city, have found what is believed to be the remains of an old Hudson Bay trader and his rotted sledge. The sledge is fifteen inches wide and thirteen feet long. It evidently was hewed out of oak by hand, the marks of an ax still showing plainly.

Fergus Falls.—"The United States vs One Sternwheel Steamer known as 'The Mudhen,' and Two Quarts of Whiskey,' is the title of a case filed in the United States court in this city. The complaint delates that the steamer was seized on Red Lake, in the Indian country, with the whiskey aboard, and asks that both be condemned and ordered sold, as the whiskey was in the Indian country.

Hibbing, Minnesota.—Chief Deputy Henry A. Larson of the Indian service and Z. H. Ellis, an assistant, arrived here prepared to put into effect the order of Judge Page Morris, issued at Minneapolis Monday, enforcing the "lid" provision for the Indian treaty in Hibbing and Chisholm. Mr. Larson had a conference during the day with Mayor Victor Power. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon all the saloons were closed.

Barnesville. — So-called treated potato plots in Clay county, celebrated the country over for its potatoes, made a wonderful showing the past season. On the A. W. and C. J. Berg land, the treated plot, with selected seed, ran 244 bushels an acre, while the field run was 100 bushels. The treated plot had no culls, while the field run showed at least 5 per cent. The treated plot showed 1-10 per cent diseased, while the field run showed 2 per cent of disease

Mankato.—The annual meeting of the Southern Minnesota Medical association opened with a banquet at the Elks club, where plates for 180 were laid. The president, Dr. F. A. Dodge, read his annual address, which was a complete exposition of the subject of eugenics. He presented its advantages and the criticisms heard. "We should encourage the enactment of laws regulating marriage," he said, "and should insist that the men who marry our daughters should present clean bills of health."

Minneapolis, Minn.—Railroad attorneys told the state railroad and warehouse commission at a hearing on the Minneapolis union station project a few days ago that there is no sentiment in this city for a union station. In answer to this statement 600 representative Minneapolis business men, all that could be crowded into the big dining room of the West hotel, met to demonstrate their sentiments in the matter and to find out, by ocular demonstration from a large number of exhibits, just to what extent this city suffers in business and prestige because St. Paul has a union station and Minneapolis has not.

Albert Lea.—The largest loss from cholera in Freeborn county since the swine plague some years ago occurred when a herd of seventy hogs belonging to C. B. Augur, northwest of the city was stricken. Already forty-one have died, but it is thought the disease now has been checked.

Warren.—Alvarado is the latest village asserting itself to be the richest town in the United States. Alvarado with a population estimated at about 200, has $319,977.62 in deposits in the two village banks. This gives the village a per capita wealth of $1,599.88.

MAY DEVELOP RUST RESISTING WHEAT

MINNESOTA AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE MAKES EXPERIMENTS —TO CROSS STRAINS

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

Thirty thousand dollars is the value of a few pecks of wheat carefully treasured in the vaults of the Minnesota College of Agriculture experiment station. After five more generations of breeding and selection the resulting grain may be worth millions of dollars annually to wheat growers of Minnesota and the Dakotas. The result for which the station experts are striving in their costly research work is a new strain of rust-resisting grain.

The blue stem grain which is grown widely as the spring wheat crop in the Northwest forms one side of the family tree, whose offspring may be the hardy and prolific one desired. Durum wheat, famous for its rust resisting qualities, is the other member of the union. The problem is to combine in one strain of wheat the rust resisting qualities of the durum and the large yield of the blue stem.

Banks' Assets Increased.

Resources of the state banks in Minnesota passed the $200,000,000 mark in the past year and now total $207,479,751.21. In the same time the deposits increased $16,709,562.69 and a net increase in resources of $20,860,262.35 is shown by figures compiled by A. H. Turrittin, superintendent of banks.

Evidences that the banks are lending money instead of holding it and that credit is good is contained in the statement that the loans and discounts increased $14,853,513.18 since October 31, 1914.

While the banking business has been gaining with rapid strides, the number of banks has also increased and during the past year eighty new banking institutions were chartered by the state.

Settle On Farms.

Ten thousand and more sturdy citizens are coming into Minnesota each year and are settling in the farming communities. Each year Minnesota brings its average of immigrant movables to a higher percentage of the total number of carloads received, according to figures compiled by Fred D. Sherman, immigration commissioner. The movables are handled at the Minnesota Transfer for the Northwest States and reports are made each month to the immigration department.

Oats Plentiful In Martin.

Martin county handles the largest amount of oats in its elevators. Goodhue county is the banner unit for barley storage. These facts were brought out in a report made public by the Minnesota Tax Commission on the amount of grain handled by Minnesota elevators during the year ending March 1, 1915.

In Martin county 2,949,749 bushels of oats were stored during the year. Nobles is second with 2,835,959 bushels, and Mower third with 2,226,089 bushels.

State Fire Loss Small.

The fire loss on state property since the state started carrying its own insurance August 1, 1913, totals $9,385.81, according to figures made public by S. D. Works, insurance commissioner. "This is an unusual record when it is considered that more than $12,000,000 of insurance is now in force in the state insurance account," he said.

Austin Draws on State.

A draft for $5,000 was received by the state treasurer from the city of Austin for the improvement of the Horace Austin park. The state has appropriated $10,000 for the part of the tract which lies in the heart of the city.

Returns $83,448.37 to Counties.

Warrants totaling $83,448.37 have been drawn by J. A. Preus, state auditor to counties entitled to a 10 per cent return of the inheritance tax collections turned into the state treasury in the fiscal year ending July 31.

Acreage Less; Wheat Yield Greater.

Minnesota's wheat crop for 1915 was greater by 14,000,000 bushels than that of 1914, although the wheat acreage had been diminished by more than 1,000,000 acres. The increase is due to the heavy yield per acre. Figures show that Minnesota planted only 2,980,675 acres to wheat in 1915 but with an average yield of 19.18 bushels to the acre obtained a harvest of 57,169,346 bushels, whereas the 4,000,000 acres sown to wheat in 1914 with an average yield of 10.6 bushels, produced only 42,975,000 bushels.

DISEASES OF TURKEY

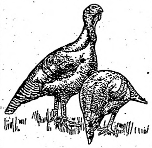
All Domestic Poultry Are Susceptible to Blackhead.

Ailment Which Has All But Annihilated Turkey-Raising Industry in New England, Has Spread to Every State in Union.

It was formerly believed that blackhead occurred only in the turkey. Continued observation soon made it clear, however, that fowls also might have the disease, and it is now a well established fact that not only fowl, but practically all domestic poultry are susceptible; and, although they are much more resistant than turkeys, they frequently die of blackhead. The same organism has been found in guinea fowl, ducks, pheasants, quail, grouse, pigeons and sparrows. But the chief danger from such general occurrence of the disease in a mild form lies in the fact that where there are domestic poultry the grounds are necessarily contaminated with the causative organism, and thus rendered unsuitable for raising turkeys. For this reason it is never safe to allow turkeys and other poultry to use the same yards. The occurrence of the disease in wild birds such as the quail, grouse and in several varieties of sparrows, adds to the varied possibilities for infection.

As a general things, the poultryman will do better to study methods of prevention than to waste his money on so-called "remedies" and "cures" for blackhead. Treatment should be, in the main, limited to such birds as are of special value, and the poultryman should devote his attention to securing conditions which are calculated to prevent the disease in his flocks as a whole.

Regarding such preventive measures the following, though simple, may be recommended: (1) Protect the yards and flocks which may have the good fortune to be uninfected with blackhead by a careful examination of all new stock, whether turkeys, fowls geese or other domestic birds. (2) Keep the turkeys on grounds which are as fresh as can be obtained. Change the range at least every year or two, and, above all, keep them isolated from fowl and other poultry (3) Keep every turkey in the flock under frequent observation in order to separate, and at once isolate, any bird which gives evidence of the disease. To facilitate such observations it is of the greatest help to legband every bird, and to record its weight from time to time. This procedure may be looked upon by the average poultryman as difficult and impracticable. (4) If it is known that blackhead is present in any of the poultry, the yards should be kept as free as possible from English sparrows, and the poultry houses and grain bins from rats and mice, since it has been shown that these rodents carry the parasite. (5) If it is desired to fatten birds for market, begin to increase the rations gradually. Never attempt to fatten birds which, in successive weighings, show a loss of weight. Overfeeding does not cause blackhead, but it does frequently cause the sudden death of birds in which blackhead is present. (6) When birds have died of blackhead their bodies should be promptly burned or buried in order to prevent the dissemination of the coccidia, either through the ravages of rats or skunks or by leaving the dead birds to decay about the premises.



Bronze Turkeys.

Regarding therapeutic measures, the following may have some advantages if given early in acute cases of blackhead: (1) Isolate the sick bird from the flock and place it in a dry, well ventilated location, free from colds and drafts. (2) Feed sparingly on soft, light, easily assimilable food, with little grain, especially corn.

HIGHEST TEST FOR THE COW

This Condition Often Brought About by High Feeding During Resting Period of Animal.

A cow very often tests her highest a few days after calving, unless it be just before she goes dry.

The high test is often brought about through high feeding during her resting period.

After a short time she resumes what may be termed her normal test and will not show a great deal of difference from month to month in the fat content of her milk until well toward the close of her lactation, when the test increases and often becomes very high just before she quits giving milk.

In the effort to eradicate
HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA
Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

WHAT IS URIC ACID?

THE CAUSE OF BACKACHE, RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO

Ever since the discovery of uric acid in the blood by Scheele, in 1775, and the bad effect it had upon the body, scientists and physicians have striven to rid the tissues and the blood of this poison. Because of its overabundance in the system it causes backache, pains here and there, rheumatism, gout, gravel, neuralgia and sciatica. It was Dr. Pierce who discovered a new agent, called "Anuric," which will throw out and completely eradicate this uric acid from the system. "Anuric" is 37 times more potent than lithia, and consequently you need no longer fear muscular or articular rheumatism or gout, or many other diseases which are dependent on an accumulation of uric acid within the body. Send to Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., for a pamphlet on "Anuric," or send 10 cents for a trial package of "Anuric" Tablets.

If you feel that tired, worn-out feeling, backache, neuralgia, or if your sleep is disturbed by too frequent urination, go to your best store and ask for Dr. Pierce's "Anuric."

Dr. Pierce's reputation is back of this medicine and you know that his "Pleasant Pellets" for the liver and his "Favorite Prescription" for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past fifty years.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 2?, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

"Bart" the cartoonist has a very good cartoon in the Minneapolis Daily News, of the Democratic donkey skating on thin ice, marked, "lack of revenue," and we will bet he breaks through and is swept out of sight next November.

Senator LaFallet has the right idea, which is, for the Progressive Republicans to go into the Republican National Convention and make their fight there. That is the place to nominate, and November will be the time to elect, and the nominee of that convention will be elected, as the people will not be side tracked the second time by any progressive business.

Red Lake county has $1,105,000 on deposit in their banks, which amount will doubtless be doubled within the the next year. The county optionists of Pennington county can watch Red Lake rake in the coin, while they can sit back and look at them. Red Lake county is disdained to be the wealthiest county in northern Minnesota within the next three years.

Our total imports from October 3, 1913 to July 1, 1914, were $1,606,150,312. The total amount of revenue collected from duties on these imports was $220,461,907. Republican protective rates of 1909 applied to this volume of imports would have collected and put in the treasury $330,815,911, an increase of over $101,000,000. That money in hand right now would help a whole lot in considering the question of national defense.—Crookston Times.

The meeting held by the Commercial Club of Thief River Falls to get the Red Lake river deepened, resulted in a decision to get the river deepened and straightened from the outlet to Highlanding, and Congressman Steenerson will endeavor to get an appropriation for a survey of the river at the present session of congress. As they are not going to do anything below Highlanding, we should be able to get that part of the river declared non-navigable.

Consolidated Schools.

The talk of consolidating schools in this locality reminds us of a story of Red Lake Falls, which happened a few years ago, that was related to us as follows:

The people of that city were looking up the feasibility of putting in a big dam on the Clearwater river to furnish power for manufacturing and other purposes. They got as far as to call an expert engineer to make a survey of the river, and report the fall to them. He did so, and reported that the fall was all right, and that the banks were all right, but he said; "There is one thing lacking." "What is that," they asked? "Water," was the reply.

That is the way with the proposition to organize consolidated schools in this locality. We have the territory, and the assessed valuation, but we lack the school children.

The leading promoters of it do not care for the results afterwards, or the high taxes that the people would have to pay, but they are simply looking for the profit they will get out of it for working the deal through, the same as the road grader agents did who got the town of Highlanding under bonds for a worthless road grader.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkely, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new."

COUGHS AND COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

Few of us realize the danger of Coughs and Colds. We consider them common and harmless ailments. However statistics tells us every third person dies of a lung ailment. Dangerous Bronchial and Lung diseases follow a neglected cold. As your body struggles against cold germs, no better aid can be had than Dr. King's New Discovery. Its merit has been tested by old and young. In use over 45 years. Get a bottle to-day. Avoid the risk of serious Lung ailments. Druggists.—adv.

HELP YOUR LIVER—IT PAYS

When your liver gets torpid and your stomach acts queer, take Dr. King's New Life Pills and you will find yourself feeling better. They purify the blood, give you freedom from constipation, biliousness, dizziness and indigestion. You feel fine—just like you want to feel. Clear the complexion too. 25c. at druggists. —Adv.

MANY CHILDREN HAVE WORMS

Worms are a common childhood ailment. They make children irritable, nervous and restless, besides robbing the body and mind of proper nourishment. Watch your child. Examine the stools and at first signs of worms give your child a treatment of Kickapoo Worm Killer. They kill the worms, act as a laxative and expel the worms and poisonous waste. Tone the system and help restore your child's health and happy disposition. Only 25c. at your Druggist.—Adv.

Fungus Slippers.

Before the discovery of lucifer matches a large hoof shaped fungus growing on the trunks of trees was used throughout northern Europe for making amadou or tinder. The thick, brown, woody flesh of the same fungus, cut into slices and beaten until it assumes the appearance of felt, is used at the present day in some parts of Germany for the manufacture of chest protectors, caps, purses, bed room slippers and various other articles.

All the Latest Improvements.

There is a certain dear old lady who owns a little farm and takes a few boarders in summer.

Recently an anxious young mother who has been industriously delving into medical literature of late inquired of the old lady whether or not the milk that was served at her table was pasteurized.

"Of course!" was the old lady's indignant reply. "Don't we keep all the cows we've got in the pasture all summer long?"—Youth's Companion.

OUR NATIVE THRUSHES.

We Have Eleven Species and All Are Friends of the Farmer.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Altogether there are within the limits of the United States eleven species of thrushes, five of which are commonly known as robins and bluebirds. The other six include the Townsend solitaire, the wood, the veery, the gray cheek, the olive back and the hermit thrush.

The robins and bluebirds nest close to houses, and even the shiest of the other species are content with the seclusion of an acre or two of woodland or swamp. For this reason the thrushes are among the best known and most carefully protected of native American birds, and at times their numbers become so great that it is feared they will do much harm to crops and fruit. The investigations of the department of agriculture, however, show that there is very little ground for this fear. On the other hand, they destroy such a vast number of insects each year that it is probable that without them many crops would suffer serious damage.

Of all the thrushes the robin is probably the best known. It has been frequently accused of destroying fruits and berries, but it has now been ascertained that this only occurs in regions that are so thickly settled that there is no wild fruit upon which the robin may subsist. In some years the bird is a great pest in the olive orchards of California, but it is probable that they are driven to the orchards because of the scarcity of native berries at these times. Where a wild fruit is available the birds seem to prefer it to the cultivated varieties.

Like the robin, the bluebird is very domestic; but, unlike the robin, it does not prey upon any cultivated product, or work any injury whatever to the fruit grower. During the fruit season, in fact, five-sixths of its food consists

Ye editor was transacting business at Goodridge Monday.

About four inches of snow fell Tuesday and Wednesday, which will make good sleighing.

There will be a Christmas tree at the Myrum school house tonight, with a program of the school children.

We have had a very pleasant winter so far, and a mild winter is predicted by the best weather prophets.

Even J. Sund bought thirty bushels of Marquis seed wheat of W. G. Hunt yesterday, so as to raise No. 1 wheat next year.

Read the ad of Reson and Yohn, the Goodridge livery men, published elsewhere in this issue, and give them a call.

Monday was the coldest day of the winter, up to the present time, but we expect something a little cooler, a little later on.

Hanson and Barzen have put in a new gasoline engine in their elevator at Goodridge, so as to promptly elevate the grain.

Peter P. Korstad, Mr. and Mrs. Sever Nelson, and E. P. Heggestuen were passengers on the Electric Line to Thief River Falls Monday.

Quite a number of the people from up this way, will go down to Thief River Falls to witness the closing of the saloons to-morrow night, to bid good-bye to "Tom and Jerry."

The saloons will close their doors in Thief River Falls to-morrow night, not to be opened for any more licensed liquor sales in Pennington county, as the option law takes effect Monday.

STRAYED: One spring bull calf came to my place on section 11, town of Deer Park, about six weeks ago. Color red and white spots. Owner may have same by paying for this advertisement and the damage.

Read the new ad of Winton Nichols Lumber Co. published in this issue, and if you are in need of lumber, take advantage of the present prices. That is if you are going to build next spring, you will save money by buying your lumber now.

There will be a Christmas tree entertainment at the Highlanding school house next Wednesday evening, in which there is to be a combination entertainment given by the scholars of the High landing school with Miss Stella Arndt as teacher, and the south east district of Kratka, with Miss Katherine Dunn as teacher. All are cordially invited to attend.

The Eleven towns of Goodridge, is warning grain thieves of that locality to be careful and not get caught. The thieves are undoubtedly as careful as possible, but judging from what punishment they got last year, in this county, they only have to pay for what grain they stole, if they get caught, and if they make their get away all right of course they get the grain free.

A Euclid, Polk county farmer was found dead in his wagon last week, his death resulting from "blind pig" whiskey, purchased at a granary bar. No one had a license to sell the liquor which caused his death, nor had they given any bonds for protection of his wife and daughter after they had caused his death. Yet that is the kind of law that a majority of the voters of Polk and Pennington counties seem to want.

Santa Claus is expected to arrive at K. A. Korstad's, this week with a full line of Christmas toys. Call and look them over.

Caution!

When you skin your cattle be careful to not cut the hide. Then take the hide to C. H. Melby, at the Oklee Meat Market, and he will pay you a first class price for it.

SAHARA IN A TEMPER.

Fury of a Desert Storm and a Quick Transformation.

On our way we encountered that terrible experience, a desert storm. It came down upon us with hardly any premonition save of an oppressive stillness of the air and a stifling temperature. Then all of a sudden the whole Sahara seemed to rise into the air and pelt us with its sands and pebbles. Within five minutes my mouth was parched with thirst and my watch choked with sand. The din of the storm was indescribable, and the flying particles stung like whiplashes on hand and face. Our horses were nearly mad with fright. For four hours the insufferable choking wind blew with its scorching breath, and then the heavens opened and emptied what seemed to be half the Mediterranean on our devoted heads. From parching heat the temperature sank to a little above freezing in a few minutes, and then the rain came down like a sluice, the great drops splashing the sand back up to our horses' bellies.

Finally the storm vanished as quickly as it had come, and the sun came out and smiled at our sad plight. Without a word we all stripped to the skin and wrung out our water logged garments. As we sat our poor horses like centaurs, waiting for the sun to dry our clothes, I caught Abd er Rahman's eye, and for the first and last time heard him laugh aloud. For a full minute we sat rocking in our saddles with mirth, until gradually our wits and our bodily warmth came back to us. I do not pretend to know how these things happen, but almost within an hour or two the desert all about us was green with little plants springing into life, and in the pools formed by the water in the hollows frogs were croaking the [illegible] fact of their existence to a sunlit world.—Wide World Magazine.

Music of Our Indians.

The music of our Indians is strictly and simply vocal. It seems to be generally agreed by musical authorities that the Indians' songs have in them nothing borrowed from instruments, nothing of artificial instigation. An Indian melody never served two sets of words. There is no instance, it appears, where the people have followed our custom of singing the different stanzas of a ballad to the same air. A large proportion of Indian songs are entirely without words at all, syllables being employed to carry the tones. Perhaps the most striking peculiarity of Indian music is the lack of definite pitch, for there is no such thing as standard pitch among the musicians of the red men. The Indian begins his song where the natural quality of his voice and his mood at the time render it easiest for him to sing it. The pitch of the song depends upon the individual.—Philadelphia Record.

Old Nick and Nickel.

Nickel was first discovered by Cronstedt in 1751. No use was made of it, as it was found only in small amounts. For a great many years the German miners called it kupfernickel, or devil's copper. It was believed by those simple folk that Old Nick, or the devil, made this ore purposely to bother the miners, as it looked exactly like copper ore and yet no copper could be extracted from it. Nickel was scarce until a New York assayer found a quantity of it in a shipment of ore from Canada. He stated its value in his report, and the owner of the mine prospected for more and found large quantities of it. Nickel is hard, ductile and malleable. It is white in color, with a yellowish cast. It ranks next to iron and cobalt in magnetic properties and is extensively used for plating purposes, because it will take a high polish and will not rust. Nickel added to steel makes it harder and stronger.—New York World.

He Got the Apples

"Once upon a time," began the teacher, "two little brothers started to Sunday school one Sunday morning. Their way led past a fine orchard, where the trees were bending down with ripe, luscious apples. One of the brothers proposed going into the orchard and getting some fruit, but the other refused and sped away, leaving his companion greedily devouring the apples.

"Now, it happened that the owner of the orchard saw them, and the next day rewarded the good boy who refused to steal his apples by giving him a shilling. He got a prize for his honesty, and what do you suppose the other boy got for his dishonesty?"

"He got the apples!" yelled every member of the class.—Exchange

Sensitive Measurement.

Minute bendings of a steel bar three feet long and three and one-half feet in diameter are accurately measured by a curious but very sensitive device of the United States bureau of standards. The bar, supported at each end, has a small mirror fixed at its center, and above this is a frame holding another mirror partially silvered. As the light of a sodium burner is reflected in each mirror the lower mirror shows a series of black and yellow concentric rings. A very small weight, even that of a pin, deflects the bar and causes the circles to expand outward. Each circle indicates a movement of one hundred-thousandth of an inch, the pressure of a finger, forming five or more new circles, showing a bending of one twenty-thousandth of an inch.

The Kangaroo.

In the course of a long stay in the interior of Victoria, Australia, J. G. O'Donohue gathered conclusive evidence, which he presents in the Victorian Naturalist, that the mother kangaroo, when hard pressed on a long pursuit, throws her young one out of her pouch. He says the young kangaroo is "sent spinning from the pouch as the mother, by her enormous leaps, imparts to it a more or less vertical motion."

TEXT OF NOTE ON ANCONA DISASTER GIVEN TO PUBLIC

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY IS EXPECTED TO REPLY AT ONCE TO DEMANDS MADE BY UNITED STATES.

TORPEDOING OF LINER IS ARRAIGNED AS BARBAROUS

No Attempt Made to Conceal Fact That Unless Demands Are Quickly Complied With, Diplomatic Relations Will Be in Grave Danger of Being Severed.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Austria-Hungary is expected to reply shortly to the demands made by the United States in the note on the sinking of the Italian steamer Ancona. The note was delivered in Vienna December 6, and Washington officialdom considers the word "prompt" used, to mean the dual monarchy had but a week at most in which to reply.

Non-compliance is deemed here to mean immediate severance of diplomatic relations.

In official and diplomatic circles the communication is regarded as being the most emphatic declaration from the United States government since the beginning of the European war. No attempt is made to conceal the fact that unless the demands are quickly complied with, diplomatic relations between the two countries will be in grave danger of being severed. The text of the note, which was handed to the Austrian foreign office by Ambassador Penfield, follows:

American Lives Lost.

"Reliable information obtained from American and other survivors who were passengers on the steamship Ancona shows that on Nov. 7 a submarine flying the Austro-Hungarian flag fired a solid shot toward the steamship; that thereupon the Ancona attempted to escape; but being overhauled by the submarine she stopped; that after a brief period and before the crew and passengers were all able to take to the boats the submarine fired a number of shells at the vessel and finally torpedoed and sank her while there were yet many persons on board; and that by gunfire and foundering of the vessel a large number of persons lost their lives or were seriously injured, among whom were citizens of the United States.

"The public statement of the Austro-Hungarian admiralty has been brought to the attention of the United States and received careful consideration. This statement substantially confirms the declaration of the survivors, as it admits the Ancona after being shelled was torpedoed and sunk while persons were still on board.

"Slaughter of Defenseless."

"The government of the United States considers that the commander violated the principles of international law and of humanity by shelling and torpedoing the Ancona before the persons on board had been put in a place of safety or even given sufficient time to leave the vessel. The conduct of the commander can only be characterized as wanton slaughter of defenseless non-combatants since at the time when the vessel was shelled and torpedoed, she was not, it appears, resisting or attempting to escape; and no other reason is sufficient to excuse such an attack, not even the possibility of rescue.

Austria Must Denounce Act.

"As the good relations of the two countries must rest upon a common regard for law and humanity, the government of the United States cannot be expected to do otherwise than to demand that the imperial and royal government denounce the sinking of the Ancona as an illegal and indefensible act, that the officer who perpetrated the deed be punished; and that reparation by the payment of an indemnity be made for the citizens of the United States who were killed or injured by the attack on the vessel.

"The government of the United States expects that the Austro-Hungarian government, appreciating the gravity of the case, will accede to its demands promptly and it rests this expectation on the belief that the Austro-Hungarian government will not sanction or defend an act which is condemned by the world as inhuman and barbarous, which is abhorrent to all civilized nations, and which has caused the death of innocent American citizens." "LANSING."

Income Tax Revenue Jumps.

Washington, Dec. 13. — The personal income tax was paid during the last fiscal year by 357,515 individuals, who turned into the government $41,046,162, more by nearly $13,000,000 than the total paid by the 357,598 making returns the year before according to the annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue. The greatest increases shown was in the amounts paid by those subject to the normal tax, a jump from about $12,728,000, in 1914, to about $16,559,000, in 1915.

SUFFRAGISTS IN ATTACK ON THE CAPITOL

No sooner was congress assembled than the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage began its attack on the capitol for votes for women. The members are here seen on the steps of the capitol after their parade through the streets of the city. Senator Sutherland and Representative Mondell addressed them.

HISTORIC WEEK IN CONGRESS

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS IS MOST IMPORTANT EVENT.

First Six Days Bring About Practically Harmonious Organization in Both Houses.

Washington, Dec. 14. — The first week of the Sixty-fourth Congress, which is destined to be historic, brought about practically harmonious organization in both houses after a few preliminary skirmishes, and revealed a determination on the part of the administration leaders to attempt no serious legislative business until the holiday recess is over.

President Wilson's address with its suggestions for national preparedness, denunciation of internal conspirators against neutrality of the government, warning of the necessity for increased revenues and outline of other urgent legislative needs, stood out as the most important event of the week.

Congress plans to adjourn Saturday until January 3 for the Christmas holiday. Both Democrats and Republicans of the Senate are now ready with their committee reorganization.

Senate Has Lively Days.

President Wilson's vigorous references in his annual address to troubles within the borders of the United States instigated, because of the European war, by citizens of foreign birth, served to give the Senate one enlivened day of debate.

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia introduced a resolution calling upon the foreign relations committee to investigate, with a view to recommending action, the British blockade against neutral commerce.

The Georgia senator made a stirring plea for his resolution, which aroused Senator Lodge of Massachusetts to offer an amendment providing for investigation also of internal conspiracies against the government and of the law and facts relating to belligerent destruction of the Lusitania and other passenger ships.

American Tank Steamer Petrolite Tells of Attack in Mediterranean by Austrian Submarine.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The American tank steamer Petrolite, attacked Sunday in the Eastern Mediterranean by an Austrian submarine, arrived safely at Algiers with the report that the submarine forcibly took her provisions.

Arrival of the tanker was reported to the state department in a consular message from Algiers. It is said the captain told of being shelled when 19 hours out of Alexandria. The submarine allowed him to proceed after examining his papers and seizing a quantity of provisions. One seaman was slightly injured by a shell fragment.

FUSE PLANT BLAST IS FATAL

One Worker Killed and Fifteen Hurt in Explosion at Bethlehem, Pa.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 13.—An explosion in the fuse plant of the Bethlehem Steel company at Redington, 6 miles from here, killed one workman and injured 15 others, several of them seriously. The accident occurred in the pellet department of the plant and resulted, it was said, from a spark at a die communicating with quantities of powder in the room.

Zeitung Doubts Version of Message.

Frankfort, Germany, Dec. 13, via London.—The Frankfurter Zeitung devoted its editorial to President Wilson's message to congress, introducing it with the qualification that since the only version available was that provided by Reuter's Telegram company, it is possible that the British News Agency may have introduced into the single cupful of broth anti-German flavoring intended for the whole tureen thus materially altering the last of the soup.

SHI KAI IS CHOSEN EMPEROR OF CHINA

PRESIDENT OF REPUBLIC ACCEPTS THRONE TENDERED BY COUNCIL OF STATE.

FAVOR CHANGE TO MONARCHY

Representatives Vote on Question and Send Petition to Ruler of 400,000,000 Yellow Men Urging Him to Receive High Honor.

Peking, Dec. 13.—Yuan Shi Kai, president of the Chinese republic, has accepted the throne of China tendered to him by the council of state.

Acting as a parliament, the council of state canvassed the vote on the question of a change in the form of the government of China to a monarchy and found that the votes of 1,993 representatives out of 2,043 qualified to vote on the proposition were favorable to the change.

The council immediately sent to Yuan Shi Kai a petition urging him to accept the throne. He declined at first, but when the petition was forwarded to him a second time he accepted with the proviso that he would continue to act as president until a convenient time for coronation.

Has 400,000 Subjects.

In recent years Yuan Shi-kai has become the most conspicuous personality of the Orient through his efforts to bring his 400,000,000 fellow yellow men into line as citizens of the Republic of China. The task of turning this most ancient and backward of kingdoms into a republic within whose confines there was a fifth of the world's inhabitants—a republic four times as large as the United States—was obviously no easy one and the man who attempted it did not escape storms of criticism from those who held that he was a dictator, virtually founding a new dynasty. But among foreigners generally Yuan Shi-kai is given credit for as able an administration as could be expected under the circumstances.

NO 'BUTTING IN', SAYS WILSON

In Defending Mexican Policy, Executive Declares That While President He'll Be President.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 13.—In defending his Mexican policy in an address here before the chamber of commerce, President Wilson announced that so long as he was president, he would be president, there would be no "butting in." Business men were told to be more self-reliant, to get over the timidity of the past, to cease looking to Washington for protection. American business men are strong enough to conquer the world, Mr. Wilson declared.

The European war was touched on, and the president gave it as his opinion there would be no "patched up" peace. The United States, he said, had a great part to play in the reconstruction days ahead of the belligerents.

"Minnesota" Near San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—The disabled steamer Minnesota, which is being towed to this port, is 88 miles south of here, according to a wireless message.

Marquis of Abergavenny Dies.

London, Dec. 13.—The Marquis of Abergavenny died at Eridge castle.

Transports Driven on Shoals.

Amsterdam, Dec. 11.—The British in Mesopotamia have halted their retreat from Bagdad and are making a successful stand at Kut-el-Amara, an official statement from Constantinople indicates. The Turkish war office reported several attacks by British troops, but declared all were repulsed, the British suffering heavy losses. "In the Sulva bay region at Gallipoli our artillery scattered attacking troops and drove enemy transports on the shoals of Kimikliman bay," the statement added.

KAISER RECALLS ATTACHES

REQUESTS SAFE CONDUCTS FOR BOY-ED AND VON PAPEN.

Satisfaction Evident in Official Circles at Prompt Action Taken by German Emperor.

Washington, Dec. 13. — Emperor William has personally recalled Capt. Boy-Ed and Capt. von Papen military attaches of the German embassy here, who by their activities rendered themselves persona non grata to the United States government. The emperor requested the United States to use its good offices in securing safe conducts for the departing attaches and for their successors, who will be named later.

Officials Are Satisfied.

A communication from the German foreign office announcing the action was delivered to Secretary Lansing by Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador.

Much satisfaction was evident in official circles at the prompt action taken by Emperor William and at the outcome of a situation which for a time appeared to threaten serious difficulties. Count von Bernstorff's manner as he left the state department, reflected his own apparent gratification.

The British and French embassies will be asked by Secretary Lansing to secure safe conducts for the return to Germany of the officers.

ADEQUATE DEFENSE IS URGED

Compulsory Service Is Only Resort Should Citizens Fail to Enlist, Says Garrison.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Compulsory military service is declared by Secretary Garrison, in his annual report made public today, to be the only resort of the United States in providing an adequate defense, should citizens fail to enlist in the continental army.

Secretary Garrison throws down the gauntlet to former Secretary Bryan and other opponents of military preparedness in this declaration: "If the nation requires certain service and offers the most favorable opportunity for the citizens to furnish such service, and, notwithstanding that, it cannot secure such service, it must then resort to some method of compelling the service."

LEGISLATION URGED TO MEET WAR CONDITIONS

That it be made a specific crime to place a bomb on a vessel sailing from the United States.

That it be made a crime for any person to escape or attempt to escape from an interned warship.

That more stringent statutes be enacted against persons spying on our fortifications.

That the government be given power to seize arms believed about to be exported in violation of an embargo.

That the whole statute law bearing on our international relations be revised.—Recommendations in Attorney General Gregory's report.

Broods Over Operation; Found Dead.

Los Angeles Cal., Dec. 13.—After brooding over an impending operation, Ernest Goerlitz, said to have been former executive-director of the Metropolitan Opera house of New York under Heinrich, was found dead in a hotel here.

British Comment on German Speech.

London, Dec. 11.—Angry comments in the London press on the German chancellor's speech were mingled with sarcastic shots and declarations that "the chancellor merely repeated the old bluff and brag."

"He had the temerity to warn us that the longer the war continues, the harder will be the German terms of peace," said the Daily Express, "and this in the face of common knowledge that Germany is necessarily growing weaker every day and less able to carry out the grandiose plans of her ruler."

BRITISH LAND NEW FORCE AT SALONIKI, FRENCH FALL BACK

TEUTONS CONTINUE TO HARASS SERBIANS AND MONTENEGRINS AND CAPTURE MANY PRISONERS AND GUNS.

ALLIES RETIRING; GREEK ATTITUDE IS IMPORTANT

Athens Reports Entente Troops Will Be Allowed to Withdraw to Saloniki Without Interruption on the Part of the Greeks and Will Be Permitted to Remain.

London, Dec. 14.—The kaiser has written General von Mackensen saying that he will never forget the debt he owes him for his speedy campaign in the Balkans. A German paper says the Allies are already in a trap and cannot escape.

London, Dec. 14. — The Anglo-French troops, who last week began their retirement from their advanced positions in Southern Serbia, are now approaching, if they have not crossed, the Greek frontier, and the attitude Greece will adopt becomes more and more important.

French Troops at Saloniki.

Meanwhile, fresh contingents of British troops have been landed at Saloniki. Up to the northwest, along the Albanian frontier and in Montenegro the Teutonic allies continue to harass the Serbians and Montenegrins. The occupation of Korita and Roseaj in Montenegro and the capture of 6,000 prisoners and 40 Serb guns, are reported in the Austrian official statement.

Dispatches from Athens and news available in London indicate that the matter, which was left to the Greek and Allied military authorities at Saloniki, is being amicably arranged and that the Allies will be allowed to retire to that city without any interruption on the part of the Greeks, and will be permitted to remain there.

To Delay Bulgars.

Questions which are seriously occupying the Greek government have to do with the use of the railways, which are needed for the Greek troops, and the damage that might be done to them, with the object of impeding Bulgarian pursuit, should the Sofia government decide that the British and French are to be followed into Greek territory.

The British casualties are estimated at 1,500, while they were forced to leave behind eight field guns which had been placed in position to cover the retirement and could not be removed.

What the next move will be is known only to the Allied staffs, but it is generally believed that the Anglo-French forces will fall right back to Saloniki.

SEES DANGER TO NEUTRALITY

Attorney General Gregory Recommends Legislation Needed to Keep U. S. Out of War.

Washington, Dec. 11.— Increased facilities for keeping the United States from being drawn into the maelstrom of the European war and more specific authority for the punishment of persons who jeopardize American neutrality are needs to be met by the present Congress, according to the recommendations contained in the annual report of Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory to Congress.

The attorney general lays especial stress on the present dangers to neutrality and emphasizes the present helplessness of the government in putting a stop to the conspiracies, counter-conspiracies, bomb plots, filibustering expeditions and the score of other crimes, the repeated commission of which by foreigners and agents of foreign governments, he says, has harassed the United States since the outbreak of the European conflict.

FATHER AND SON KILLED AS THEIR TRAINS CRASH

Stockton, Cal., Dec. 13.—William Wing, a Santa Fe passenger engineer, and his son, William Wing, a freight train fireman, were killed here when their respective trains crashed together. The engineer of the freight train and the fireman on the passenger engine jumped in time to escape injury. Many passengers were shaken up but none was injured.

"U" Boats Sink 5 More Ships.

London, Dec. 10.—Five more vessels, among them a small Italian warship, have been sunk by Teuton submarines. A dispatch from Vienna says: "One of our submarines on the 5th sank a small Italian cruiser with two funnels off Avlona, Albania." The British steamer Ignis has been sunk. The crew has been landed. Eleven officers and 27 men of the British steamer Helmsmuir have been picked up. The Italian steamer Dimis and the Italian bark Pietro Lofaro have been sunk.

WESTERN CANADA'S WONDERFUL YIELD

Wheat Yields Reports Extraordinarily Heavy.

When one hears of individual wheat yields of thirty-five to forty bushels per acre, there is considerable incredulity, but when yields, in whole townships extending into districts covering three and four and five hundred square miles in area, of upwards of fifty and some as high as sixty-five bushels per acre are reported, one is led to put his ear to the ground to listen for further rumblings. The writer having heard of these wonderful yields made a trip through the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, to ascertain first hand their truthfulness. It was remarkable to discover that Dame Rumor was no rumorer after all, that modesty was her mantle, that all that had been said of these yields was true, and that yields of over seventy bushels per acre were told of. These were so high that the truthfulness of the story was doubtful and very little was said of them. But such there were, and not in one instance, but in several, not in one locality but scattered in places hundreds of miles apart. Leaving these out altogether, there were large areas in which the average was over fifty bushels per acre, which in all common sense ought to satisfy most people. One hundred and thirty threshers in Alberta have made their returns to the local government as required by an act of the Legislature, and the average of the wheat threshed was fifty-three bushels to the acre. So immense was the yield that official verification was required before giving it out to the public. Sitting in the smoking compartment of a day coach, where on passing through a farming community, there may be gathered the gossipy yarns of the neighborhood, one hears also a lot of news. Just now, the sole topic is that of the crops. A man with more or less of a hirsute appendage, smock, clothes and hands giving the appearance of one working in the field, was asked as to the crops. He had got on at Warner, Alberta. Taking out his pipe, lighting it and then crossing his knees, holding his chin in his hands, possessing an air of supreme contentment, and with an intelligent face, he looked the man who could give some information. And he was just the man. He was a thresher and on his way to Milk River to secure some more help. He was requisitioned for information. "Yes, a good season, I've made a lot of money. As for yields, let's see," and then he began to string them off. "Peterson had 63 bushels of wheat per acre on his five hundred acre farm; from 380 acres Roland got 65 bushels per acre; Bugler had one hundred and ten acres that went 63 bushels; Carr had 65 bushels per acre off an eight hundred acre field." And he gave others running from 58 to 66 bushels per acre. All these people lived east of Warner, Alberta. Looking out of the window and seeing immense fields, still covered with stocks he was asked why they were not threshed, he replied that there were not enough "rigs" in the district, and that they would not get through before Christmas.

An American writing of a trip he made through Western Canada says: "I went as far west as Saskatoon, back to Regina, Moose Jaw, and down on the Soo line, and I must say that I never saw such crops, or ever heard of anything to compare with it in any country on earth. The country is over the hill, and certainly the farmers have a lot to be thankful for. There are very few of them that have done their work and done it properly but what have their debts paid and have bank accounts left."

And he only traveled the skirt of the country. The same story could be written of any part of any of three Provinces.—Advertisement.

What the Doctor Knows

KIDNEYS MUST BE RIGHT TO INSURE HEALTH

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot readily be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. Therefore, it is particularly necessary to pay more attention to the health of these important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation, in most cases, is soon realized, according to sworn statements and verified testimony of those who have used the remedy.

When your kidneys require attention get Swamp-Root at once from any pharmacy. It is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

In the effort to eradicate

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

Get Hoyt's and you will be satisfied. For sale at all drug stores.

State News in Brief

Doings of Last Few Days Throughout Minnesota Condensed for Hasty Perusal.

Mankato.—In the district court, Ralph Macbeth was convicted of assault in the second degree on a 14-year-old girl.

Rochester.—Eighty registered sheep owned by John Fox, a farmer of Simpson, have disappeared, and all efforts to find the herd have failed.

Red Wing.—Mr. and Mrs. William Gherka celebrated their golden wedding at their home in Zumbrota. Dinner was served to thirty guests at the home of J. C. Miller.

St. Paul.—The state legal department has completed an inventory of the estate of the late Mrs. W. H. Dunwoody of Minneapolis. The value is approximately $2,000,000.

Fergus Falls.—Through increased activities of the county agent and the interest of dairymen two co-operative cow-testing associations have been organized in Otter Tail county.

Wheaton. — Petitions have been filed for the establishment of four judicial drainage systems, which will affect Traverse, Big Stone, Wilkin, Grant and Stevens counties.

Lewiston. — The family of Ellsworth Gray escaped from a burning building here only because of a ladder that had been left at the side of the structure the day before by repairers.

Duluth.—Aad temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Duluth, has made an offer of $50,000 to the city for the old armory, recently vacated by the Minnesota national guard when the new state armory was finished.

St. Cloud.—A cablegram received here said that Dr. A. J. Kirghis, local physician who was forced into the French war service when called to that country by the serious illness of his father, had procured his release and had sailed from Bordeaux.

Mankato.—Julius Just, 78 years old, a pioneer of the county, is dead. He was a native of Germany, but came here when a boy. He went South to work for a planter and while there was drafted into the Confederate army. At the close of the war he took a claim in this county.

Detroit.—Three girls, Lulu and Oma Knight, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Knight of Savannah, 13 and 16 years old, and Miss Gayle Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hughes of Savannah, 16 years old, were drowned in Boot lake in northeast Becker county. They were crossing the lake and failed to see an airhole.

Rochester.—North side residents of Rochester are planning to fight the state of Minnesota. The state has completed plans for a state hospital sewerage system which will empty into the Zumbro river in the north part of the city. Residents in that vicinity object and are planning to take steps to prevent such action on the part of the board.

Fergus Falls.—The Red River valley dairymen held the most successful convention in their history here. Officers elected at the closing session were C. G. Selvig of Crookston, president; L. Jensen, Clear Brook, first vice president; A. B. Stensgaard, McIntosh, second vice president; L. J. Houske, Halstad, secretary; C. M. Davidson, Climax, treasurer.

Bemidji.—Informal discussion of good roads occupied a prominent place on the program of the Northern Development association. Robert Dunn, in a letter read by Senator McGarry, announced that he intends to ask for an amendment to the Dunn law at the next session of the Legislature, which will include the workable features of the Elwell law.

Wheaton.—The Traverse County Agricultural association held its annual stockholders' meeting and elected the following officers: President, O. J. Davidson; vice president, J. E. Dodds; secretary, H. H. Dokken; treasurer, F. H. Klawon. The following are the members of the board of directors: S. L. Downey, F. F. Thill, G. A. Oscarson, F. J. Steidl, Peter Hauschild and William Ringdahl.

St. Paul. — The Minnesota College of Agriculture is making preparations for an attendance of from 1,200 to 1,500 at Farmers' and Home-Makers' Week to be held at University farm, St. Paul, Jan. 3-8, 1916. This week, as it is called, is in fact, expected to become a great annual rural-life school and conference, and on the home-makers' side it is expected to interest not only the women of the country, but the women of the city as well.

Cleveland. — While temporarily insane, Mrs. David Marsh, 32, wife of a telephone lineman, cut the throat of her 6-year-old son, Vernon, and then, using the same weapon, a butcher-knife, slashed her own throat. The woman had evidently planned to kill her husband and a younger son who were sleeping together, but was prevented by the husband, who was awakened by the cries of the dying boy. Before he could stay her hand, however, she drew the knife across her own throat.

To Close Immoral Hotels.

Minneapolis, Dec. 13. — The city council, on motion of Alderman Williams, unanimously recommended to the mayor and the chief of police that all hotels which have not applied for licenses be closed forthwith, and that the mayor and chief close immediately those having license applications pending, which are known to be of immoral nature. The motion from Alderman Williams set forth that the hotel licensing ordinance is four months old.

CO-OPERATION IS URGED BY WOOD

DEAN WOULD HAVE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY SEEK RURAL MEMBERS.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

A. F. Woods, dean of the state college of agriculture, has urged the Minnesota State Horticultural society to lose no time in having each of the 900 farmers' clubs in the state appoint a horticultural committee, one member of which would have representation in the society. Dean Woods was speaking at the opening session of the horticulutral society's meeting at the West hotel. He said fruits and flowers are civilizing and home-making influences.

Not only through the farmers' clubs but through the rural schools should better homes, better farms and better country life be enlarged upon, the speaker urged. Dean Woods asked delegates to the horticultural meeting to interest themselves in consolidated schools and teacherages. He said Minnesota has 148 community centers in the shape of consolidated schools. The speaker suggested that the horticultural association should have a community building of its own and that it should be located at the university farm.

Potato Crop Increases.

Minnesota lovers of potatoes will have 4,596,476 bushels more to digest this year than in 1914, according to figures made public by Fred D. Sherman, immigration commissioner. The total production this year was 35,376,476 bushels and the farm value $17,688,238. Farmers of Minnesota used 304,424 acres for potatoes this year, as against 270,000 acres in 1914. The yield this year shows a gain of five bushels to the acre, from 114 bushels to 119 bushels.

"A glance at figures for a period of years back shows that Minnesota's potato acreage is gradually increasing," said Mr. Sherman. "This is accounted for by the fact that much new land in Northeastern Minnesota is being opened every year.

"That section of the state is particularly adapted to potatoes and the settlers look on potatoes as a staple crop for the first few years.

"It was only a few years ago when practically all the potatoes used in Northeastern Minnesota were shipped from the central part of the state, but now many of the counties are shipping potatoes each year."

Commission Hears Complaint.

The state railroad commission has heard testimony on the complaint of William Devine, who asks for restoration of the old $5 switching rate on ice from New Brighton to Minnesota Transfer. Under the Cashman law he now pays 40 cents a ton, which amounts to $8 or $10 a car, and he says wipes out all profit in cutting. Railroad attorneys were present to oppose the application.

Hammond at St. Cloud.

Outlining the purposes and objects of the All-Minnesota Development association organized in St. Paul on Dec. 1, Governor W. S. Hammond in an address before the St. Cloud Commercial club, urged its co-operation in making the general plan a success. The governor cited as one problem that could be taken up, the extension of loans to settlers on cleared, tiled or drained lands.

Says Work is Duplicated.

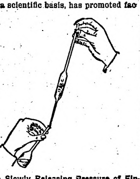
Frank Whittier, state parole agent connected with the Stillwater prison and the St. Cloud reformatory, believes state care of defectives and state charges generally are badly divided in the matter of responsibility. Writing to the new Efficiency and Economy commission, he says that all the institutions have agents whose duty is the care of those discharged or out on parole. The paths of these agents, he says, are crossing constantly, and he believes that a co-ordinated agent system should be created.

USING A BABCOCK TEST

Device Has Placed Dairying on a Scientific Basis.

One Important Step in Use of Instrument Is to Have Milk Thoroughly Mixed—Label Bottles With Name of Cow or Owner.

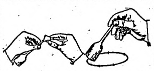
The Babcock test has served as the necessary stimulant to raise dairying from a disliked side line to a profession worthy of the efforts of well-trained men. It has placed dairying on a scientific basis, has promoted factory efficiency and has stimulated the breeding up of productive herds.



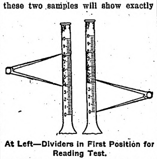
On Slowly Releasing Pressure of Finger at Top of Pipette, Milk Runs, Without Loss, Into Test Bottle.

Ten necessary steps in making the Babcock test are as follows: Mix the milk thoroughly and take out a small sample. Do not let the sample evaporate or curdle before testing. Fill the pipette to the mark with milk. Empty the pipette without loss into a Babcock test bottle. Add sulphuric acid from the measuring cylinder to the test bottle. Mix the acid and milk thoroughly by shaking the bottle. Place bottles in the centrifuge cover and whirl five minutes. Add hot water and whirl again twice one minute each time. Read and record the per cent of fat in the neck of the bottle. Empty the test bottles and wash thoroughly.

Provide a quart or more of milk, with which to practice sampling and testing. Mix it thoroughly by pouring several times from one vessel to another, or by stirring vigorously. Larger quantities of milk require more stirring. While the milk is still in motion, dip out half a teacupful and pour this at once into a small, clean, dry bottle. Fill the bottle nearly full, and stopper tightly to prevent evaporation. After stirring the milk again for a short time, take out another sample, place it in another bottle and stopper tightly as before. If the milk was thoroughly mixed each time, these two samples will show exactly the same per cent of fat by the Babcock test, provided the test bottles are accurately marked on the neck. Label the bottles with the name of the cow or owner.



At Left—In Pouring Acid Into Test Bottle, Incline Bottle a Little, to Avoid Spilling Acid on Hand.
At Right—To Mix Acid and Milk, Whirl Bottle in Circle Until Contents Are of Uniform Brown Color.



At Left—Dividers in First Position for Reading Test.
At Right—Dividers in Second Position.

Thoroughly mix the sample to be tested, then draw the pipette nearly full of milk by sucking with the lips. Quickly place the forefinger over the upper end of the pipette, before the milk runs down below the mark. If the finger is dry, it is easy, by changing the pressure on the end of the tube, to let the milk run dow slowly and to stop it exactly at the mark. The tip of the pipette is placed in the top of the test bottle held in an inclined position, and the milk is allowed to run down one side of the neck of the bottle, without filling the neck completely. In this way exactly 18 grams (17.6cc.) of milk are transferred to the test bottle without loss.

The beginning should pratice sampling and testing milk until he is well acquainted with every necessary step. He should be able to make several tests on the same sample of milk which do not differ in reading by more than one or two-tenths of a per cent.

Keep Tools Bright and Shining.

After being put away in the tool chest for a few days, unused tools often rust badly, especially in very wet weather. To prevent this, soak an old sponge or piece of flannel with machine oil and put it in the chest with the tools. This takes but a moment, and as long as the oil remains the tools will keep bright and shining. Try it.

NOT RIGHT KIND OF FOWL

Magician in Hard Luck When He Meant to Put Finishing Touch on Entertainment.

"Now, ladies and gentlemen," said the conjurer, trying to make his husky voice impressive, "I will conclude my entertainment with truly a wonderful trick. It is a feat which must be seen to be believed."

After a lot of difficulty he borrowed a shabby silk hat from his village audience. Turning it upside down to prove there was nothing inside, he next placed it brim uppermost on his little table and proceeded to produce 12 eggs from its depths.

The audience watched with goggling eyes, and then burst into wild applause.

"And now," the magician went on, bowing his thanks, "I will show you that, although the hat is emphy, there is inside it the hen that laid those eggs."

Putting his hand into the hat he withdrew a fluttering, squawking fowl, which he placed on the table, and turned to face the applause.

Instead there was a wild yell of laughter. He turned in amazement, which changed to horror when the fowl shrieked:

"Cocka-doodle-do-o!"—Philadelphia Record.

Soldiers Want No Children.

I asked Zeni Peshkoff, socialist, what his sensations were when he went out to kill. "It didn't seem real, it doesn't now. Before my last charge the lieutenant and I were filled with the beauty of the night. We sat gazing at the stars. Then the command came and we rushed forward. It did not seem possible I was killing human beings." It is the unreality that sustains men. Germans are not human beings—only the enemy. For the wounded French soldier will tell you he loathes war and longs for peace. He fights or one object, permanent peace. He fights to save his children from fighting.

"Have you any children?" I asked one soldier. "No, thank God," is the reply. "But why?" "Because," comes the fierce answer, "if I had a son I would rather he deserted than see what I have seen." The man is not unusual. The soldiers—not the women—are beginning to say: "We will have no more children unless there is no more war."—The New Republic.

Big Chance Both Ways.

The famous physician and the eminent clergyman were deep in a discussion which threatened to become acrimonious.

"You see," said the minister sarcastically, "you medical men know so much about the uncertainties of this world that I should think you would not want to live."

"Oh, I don't know," responded the physician caustically. "You clergymen tell us so much about the uncertainties of the next world that we don't want to die."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE VERY TIME

When Powerful Food Is Most Needed.

The need of delicate yet nutritious food is never felt so keenly as when a convalescent gets a set back on account of weak stomach. Then is when Grape-Nuts shows its power for it is a most scientific and easily digested food.

"About a year ago," writes a Kansas woman, "my little six-year-old niece left the invigorating and buoyant air of Kansas, where all her life she had enjoyed fairly good health, to live in Ohio. She naturally had a change of diet and of course a change of water, and somehow she contracted typhoid fever.

"After a long siege her case seemed hopeless, doctors gave her up, and she was nothing but skin and bones, couldn't eat anything and for weeks did not know even her father or mother. Her parents, in trying to get something delicate and nourishing that she could eat, finally hit upon Grape-Nuts food and it turned out to be just the thing.

"She seemed to relish it, was soon conscious of her surroundings and began to gain strength so rapidly that in a short time she was as well, playful and robust as if she had never been ill.

"We all feel that Grape-Nuts was the predominating factor in saving the sweet little girl's life."

Got Out of the Difficulty.

Some time ago a local corps was reviewed by Sir Ian Hamilton, and there is a story told that one of the officers was mounted on a horse that had previously distinguished itself in a bakery business.

A wag in the crowd is supposed to have recognized the horse, for he shouted out, "Baker!" The horse promptly stopped dead, and nothing could urge it on. The situation was getting painful, when the officer was struck with a brilliant idea, and remarked, within hearing of his steed: "Not today, thank you."

The procession then moved on without further delay.—London Mail.

She's Agin It.

"Oh, Mrs. Lawn, we want to get your vote for the Village Improvement society's plans. We met Mr. Lawn on the way to the station, and he—"

"Yes? How did he vote?"

"Why, he's for it with enthusiasm, so we'll book you—"

"You'll book me as against it with enthusiasm. In all the thirty years of our married life my husband and I have never agreed on anything, and it's too late to begin now."

Ungrateful Wretch.

"I'm writing a letter to Aunt Sarah," said wifey, "thanking her for the visit she paid us. Do you wish to add anything to it?"

"You might thank her on my behalf," replied hubby, "for not staying any longer than she did."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

We were amused to read the experience of Editor Lighthorn of the Norman County Index, and his experience with the GREAT mail route establisher the fourth assistant postmaster general Blakeslee. The farmers that he took the matter up for should come up in this territory, if they want to hear a few of the complaints of people over the mail routes put in by that duck. Petitions of the people are entirely ignored, and mail route drivers ordered to drive in all directions, allowing peoples' mail to lay over three days at a post office within five or six miles of them. Why! the people of this territory would not sign their names to a petition to him, but are counting the days, when they will get a chance to vote to 'oust' him out of that position.

County Option is now in full running order in Polk County according to the Crookston Times. About all the difference it made in East Grand Forks was to cause the saloon keepers to lock their front door, and knock the lock off of their back doors. The villages in the eastern part of the county that were temperance before county option now all have their sightless swine, while in Crookston they sell it in the form of cider. That is they will sell a glass of cider for fifteen cents and make you a present of a glass of whiskey. The county attorney is now busy lecturing on temperance, but when he is again at leisure he will likely make a round up of the law violators, and the farmers who voted for county option will pay the expenses of prosecution when they pay their taxes.

STEENERSON GETS BUSY.

Congressman Steenerson has introduced a bill for the repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act.

"Although Canada failed to ratify the reciprocity law it is still on our statute books," said Mr. Steenerson. "I want to remove it because it is a possible source of danger to the prosperity of the people of Minnesota."

He also introduced bills:

Providing for a survey of Red Lake and Red Lake River in Minnesota for flood protection and improving navigation.

For federal buildings at Thief River Falls, Detroit and Breckenridge.

To authorize the secretary of the interior to convey a tract of land for demonstration farm purposes in northern Minnesota.

For the relief of settler who purchased land under the act of Feb. 20, 1904. This bill proposes to give these purchasers a second homestead right.

To authorize the postmaster general to establish an experimental radio connection service.

Prohibiting false and misleading advertising.

Preventing the manufacture, sale or transportation of imitated or misbranded articles of commerce.

Granting increase of pension to Phoebe J. Streeter of Crookston.

Granting increase of pension to William P. Morris of Roosevelt, Minn.

Granting pension to Emma L. Wallace of Euclid, Minn.

Granting increase of pension to Susan L. Keene.

We bitterly opposed county option in this county, but now that we have got it, we are in favor of chasing the blind swine out as soon as they show their snouts. We hope to see bootleggers and blind piggers promptly landed in the county jail, where they belong, as soon as they are caught peddling their cheap poison to the people.

The Commercial Club of Thief River Falls are taking an active interest in the improvement of Red Lake River through the town of Hickory, to try to relieve the flood condition. The river is O. K. from Highlanding to Thief River Falls, all we want is to get it declared non-navigable so we can get bridges across it.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkely, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new."

PICTURES OF BATTLES.

Warfare Has Always Been a Popular Subject For Artists.

From the earliest days of history war has given inspiration to the artist, and the work of his hands comes down to us on the walls of ancient Egypt, worn with the passing of thousands of years; from the ruined temples of antique Greece, built centuries before the Christian era. The picture writing of primitive and savage peoples describes exploits of war; many archaic war pictures, brought to view after ages of burial under desert sands, bear much similarity to Indian drawings of our own near time and land.

Once, years ago, away up on the Poplar river, in Montana, I bought—bartered for, I suppose I should say, as the purchase was made mainly by the medium of tea, tobacco and sugar—a "painted" robe right off the back of the war chief of a band of Yanktonnais Sioux our troops had "rounded up" and brought into the agency. The skin was a fine "black bull," tanned on the underside to the softness of the finest chamois leather and decorated with naive pictorial representations of the deeds of war of old Kill-Them-in-a-Hole—as the soldiers translated the name given the chief from some episode in his murderous career—which in color, in grace and firmness of line were curiously like pictures from the pencil of some artist of the Egypt of old.

The glory of war is the theme; the exaltation of the sovereign, the conqueror, forms the chief motive of the war picture of antiquity. The monarch was the hero before whose terrible sword all foes gave way, to whom victory came through his personal might and prowess. The warriors of the Greeks are shown as models of virile strength and grace; their attitudes in the fury of combat lost nothing of artistic beauty in the realism of the rendering. The influence of the Greek masters of their art is evident in battle pictures of a time twenty and more centuries later.—Rufus Fairchild Zogbaum in Scribner's.

Embarrassing.

In South Africa General French earned the title of "the shirt sleeved general," Mr. Chisholm says in "Sir John French." General French was often to be seen walking about in camp in shirt sleeves. One afternoon a correspondent rode up to the lines and, seeing a soldier sitting on a bundle of hay smoking a dilapidated looking old briar pipe, asked where the general was.

"The old man is somewhere about," coolly replied the soldier.

"Well, just hold my horse while I go and search for him."

"Certainly, sir," and the smoker rose obediently and took the bridle.

"Can you tell me where the general is?" inquired the correspondent of a staff officer farther down the line.

"General French? Oh, he's somewhere about. Why, there he is, holding that horse's head!"

And the officer pointed directly to the smoker, still tranquilly puffing at his pipe and holding the horse.

THE SUNBEAM

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1915. NO. 41

THE LOCAL NEWS

We wish all of our subscribers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Matt Bakken made a business trip to Plummer yesterday.

The Highlanding stores have been crowded with Christmas customers to-day.

Bad colds and la grippe seems to be attacking nearly every body in this locality now days.

Peter Ramstad, the Thief River Falls banker, was transacting business in Highlanding Monday.

We extend thanks to T. S. Jacobson and James O'Brien for subscription paid this week.

Ye editor and publisher were transacting business at Goodridge last Monday.

M. E. Hyland of Deer Park, was doing Xmas shopping at Highlanding to-day.

About four inches of snow fell on Wednesday, which makes fine sleighing.

Gunder Asbjornson and G. B. Tveit, of Mayfield, were doing Christmas shopping at Highlanding to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hammarsten will visit at their old home, in Marshall county during the holidays.

Mrs. W. G. Hunt and daughter Myrtle visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Kratzer last Sunday.

Miss Sadie Arndt, came home from Jelle, where she is teaching school, on last Saturday, to spend the holidays with her parents.

As it seems to be a very easy matter for it snow, we may have a big supply of the beautiful by February.

Read the new add of the Tveit and Prichard Company published in another column, and call and see them, when you need any farm machinery.

Miss Ella and Marie Causin returned home from Thief River Falls, where they are attending school yesterday, to spend the holidays with their parents.

Tor A. Dale bought the Knute Sannes farm in the town of Mayfield from the Farmers' and Merchants State Bank of Oklee, last week.

There will be a ladies auction sale at the residence of Wm. A. Swanson in Deer Park township, on December 29th, commencing at 11 o'clock A.M. All are invited.

Mrs. Ole Overum's daughter Geneva, and son Clifford have been having quite a serious attack of the measles, but are now getting better.

There will be a grand holiday ball at the P. L. Wojnarowski hall, in the town of Hickory, next Monday evening. All are invited to attend, and have a good time. Plenty of stable room for horses.

Wm. A. Swanson of Deer Park was up to Goodridge with a load of wheat last Monday. He said he was getting the best grade and price for his wheat at the Hanson and Barzen Goodridge elevator.

The Knute T. Sannes family left for Canada on Tuesday, where Knute went some time ago. They were induced to move to Canada, because the government assists the settlers, which will save the town of Mayfield the expense of looking after them in the future. They left a number of unpaid bills behind, among which was their seed grain note given last spring.

The school children of the Highlanding and Kratka schools gave an excellent Christmas tree program, at the Highlanding schoolhouse on Wednesday evening, which was well attended. Some of the dialogues by the youngsters were especially well rendered, which shows that they had been well trained by competent teachers. Miss Stella Arndt and Miss Katherine Dunn, demonsrtated to the people that they were well qualified for the positions of teachers, by the good discipline of their scholars during the entire entertainment. After the scholars had finished their part of the program, Santa Claus promptly appeared, and distributed his Christmas gifts from a handsomely decorated tree, much to the amusement and gratification of the children. Practical teaching to school children of this kind is time well spent, as it better qualifies them for the duties of life which they must take up later on, as it teaches them to face the world in a gentlemanly and qualified manner, instead of running to hide out of sight when they are spoken to.

Goodridge is still endeavoring to get a decent mail service, but the present bosses of post offices and mail routes do not seem to be aware that, that village has an up to date railroad, and are still letting star route mail service contracts to supply them with mail service. It is unnecessary to add that they will vote to clean up that fourth assistant postmaster general's office, at the first opportunity that they have.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

He Got the Apples

"Once upon a time," began the teacher, "two little brothers started to Sunday school one Sunday morning. Their way led past a fine orchard, where the trees were bending down with ripe, luscious apples. One of the brothers proposed going into the orchard and getting some fruit, but the other refused and sped away, leaving his companion greedily devouring the apples.

"Now, it happened that the owner of the orchard saw them, and the next day rewarded the good boy who refused to steal his apples by giving him a shilling. He got a prize for his honesty, and what do you suppose the other boy got for his dishonesty?"

"He got the apples!" yelled every member of the class.—Exchange.

LABOR AND ART CLASHED.

The Battle Was Rather One Sided and Labor Won the Night.

Among the experiences which Sir Frederick Cowen, the eminent composer, relates in his book "My Art and My Friends" is the following: Once while conducting in Melbourne a terrible noise of hammering started overhead as soon as the concert began.

"I put down my baton and stopped," writes Sir Frederick; "so did the noise. Thinking it was over, I began again; so did the noise. I then sent a messenger with a polite request that the [illegible] cease. After about ten minutes, during which the hammering grew more and more persistent, the messenger returned, and I said to him:

"'Did you give them my message?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'And what was their answer?'

"'They said, "Tell Mr. Cowen we've got our contract to finish by a certain time and we ain't going to stop for no concert or nobody."'

"Upon this I turned to the audience and said:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, as you have possibly noticed, there has been a fight between labor and art. Labor has won. I am very sorry, and I wish you all good night.'

"Then I dismissed the orchestra, and there was no concert that evening."

AUSTRIAN [illegible] TO AMERICAN NOTE ON ANCONA ATTACK

DENIES VIEWS PRESENTED BY U. S. WARRANT BLAME FOR TRAGEDY BEING PLACED UPON CAPTAIN.

OFFICIAL TEXT IS MADE PUBLIC AT WASHINGTON

Reply Declares That Blame Can Not Be Placed on Austro-Hungarian Government Even if a Most Vigorous Legal Construction Were Applied.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The text of Austria's reply to the American note on the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona, as made public by the state department, follows:

American Embassy, Vienna.
Secretary of State, Washington:
Following note received from Minister of Foreign Affairs:

In reply to the much esteemed note number 4.167 which His Excellency, Mr. Frederick Courtland Penfield, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United States of America, directed to him in the name of the American government under date of the ninth instant in the matter of the sinking of the Italian steamer Ancona, the undersigned, preliminary to a thorough, meritorious treatment of the demand, has the honor to observe that the sharpness with which the government of the United States considers it necessary to blame the commanding officer of the submarine concerned in the affair and the firmness in which the demands addressed to the Imperial and Royal government appear to be expressed, might well have warranted the expectation that the government of the United States should precisely specify the actual circumstances of the affair upon which it bases its case.

Room for Many Doubts.

As is not difficult to perceive, the presentation of the facts in the case in the aforesaid note leaves room for many doubts and even if this presentation were correct in all points and the most rigorous legal conception were applied to the judgment of the case, it does not in any way sufficiently warrant attaching blame to the commanding officer of the war vessel or to the Imperial and Royal government.

The government of the United States has also failed to designate the persons upon whose testimony it relies and to whom it apparently believes it may attribute a higher degree of credibility than to the commander of the Imperial and Royal fleet. The note also fails to give any number, names, and more precise fate of the American citizens who were on board the said steamer at the critical moment.

Ready to Exchange Views.

However, in view of the fact that the Washington cabinet has now made a positive statement to the effect that citizens of the United States of America came to grief in the incident in question, the Imperial and Royal government is in principle ready to enter into an exchange of views in the affair with the government of the United States.

It must, however, in the first place, raise the question why that government failed to give judicial reason for the demands set forth in its note with reference to the special circumstances of the incriminating events upon which it itself lays stress and why in lieu thereof it refused an exchange of correspondence which it has conducted with another government in other cases.

Lacks Authentic Knowledge.

The Imperial and Royal government is the less able to follow the Washington cabinet on this unusual path, since it by no means possesses authentic knowledge of all of the pertinent correspondence of the government of the United States nor is it of the opinion that such knowledge might be sufficient for it in the present case, which insofar as it is informed, is in essential points of another nature than the case or cases to which the government of the United States seems to allude. The Imperial and Royal government may therefore leave it to the Washington cabinet to formulate the particular points of law against which the commanding officer of the submarine is alleged to have offended on the occasion of the sinking of the Ancona.

Has Its Own Legal Views.

The government of the United States has also seen fit to refer to the attitude which the Berlin cabinet assumed in the above-mentioned correspondence. The Imperial and Royal government finds in the much esteemed note no indication whatever of the intent with which this reference was made. Should, however, the government of the United States thereby have intended to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed for the Imperial and Royal government with respect to the juridicial consideration of the affair in question this government must in order to preclude possible misunderstandings, declare that as a matter of course it reserves to itself full freedom of maintaining its own legal views in the discussion of the case of the Ancona.

Deplores Fate of Victims.

In having the honor to have recourse to the kindness of His Excellency the Ambassador of the United States of America with the most respectful request to be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the American government and on this occasion to state that the Imperial and Royal government, in no less degree than the American government and under all circumstances, most sincerely deplores the fate of the innocent victims of the incident in question, the undersigned at the same time avails himself of this opportunity to renew the expression of his most distinguished consideration to his excellency, the ambassador.

Boy-Ed and von Papen Sail Tuesday.

New York, Dec. 20. — Friends of Captain Boy-Ed and Captain von Papen, recalled German attaches, said that both attaches plan to leave for Germany on the Holland-American liner Noordam next Tuesday. It is possible that Captain Boy-Ed may be forced to postpone his departure for a week if certain matters he has at hand cannot be disposed of. This statement was given out, it was declared, to end the rumors that von Papen intended to go to Mexico.

[illegible]ITISH ATTACKED BY GAS AND SHELL

MOST OF GERMAN INFANTRY PREVENTED FROM LEAVING THE TRENCHES, BRITISH SAY.

TO RID SALONIKI OF ALLIES

Teutons Ask Turks to Aid in Driving Anglo-French Forces From Greek Port, According to Dispatch.

London, Dec. 20.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Saloniki says:

"The Germans have asked the Turks to assist them to drive the Allies out of Saloniki, but they require assurances that they will evacuate Greek territory as soon as the Allied army is crushed and thrown into the sea. It is understood that Turkey has accepted the proposal."

London, Dec. 20.—The possible prelude of a strong German offensive movement on the western front, where the Germans are reported to have received large reinforcements occurred against the British line to the northwest of Ypres. To the accompaniment of a heavy bombardment the Germans directed clouds of gas against the British, who, in conjunction with the French batteries, turned their guns on the German trenches engaged in the gas operations.

Germans Driven Back.

The British official report of the attack says that most of the German infantry were prevented by the gun fire from leaving their trenches, while other detachments were driven back before reaching the British line. On the other war fronts there has been little fighting of importance.

For the present, the campaign in the Balkans, except for the pursuit of the Serbians in northern Albania and minor actions between the Bulgarians and Montenegrins is virtually at a standstill.

Bulgars Wait at Greek Border.

The Bulgarians are still standing guard at the Greek frontier where the Anglo-French forces crossed to make their way back to Saloniki.

European interest is becoming focused more and more upon the probabilities of some new, but as yet undeveloped upheaval.

It appears to be taken for granted on all sides that the policy of the central powers will be an attempt to gain a decision somewhere, while their opponents will prefer to devote the winter to preparations for warfare in the spring.

Greek Parliament Candidates Neutral.

London, Dec. 20.—A dispatch to the Times from Athens says: "Only 450 candidates are presenting themselves for the seats in parliament which will be voted for in the general election Sunday. This is due to the complete abstention of the followers of former Premier Venizelos, who elected 184 deputies in the last election. Nearly all of the present candidates have declared themselves in favor of a policy of neutrality."

WILSON AND BRIDE ELUDE CURIOUS CROWDS; TAKE TRAIN FOR VIRGINIA

Washington, Dec. 21.—A blur of two faces inside the White House limousine as it whirled away was the last Washington saw of President Wilson and a new "first lady of the land."

The president of the United States and Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt were married Saturday night, and, speeding away in an automobile to Alexandria to elude curious crowds, were soon en route to Hot Springs, Va., on their honeymoon.

Only a few hundred persons received the last impression. They were those who had braved a raw, cold blustery night and had stood outside the Galt home, held at a distance by 100 police.

It was 10 p. m. when the big car dashed up. The old oil lamp which swung back and forth over the doorway of the bride's home flared up and gleamed brighter for a moment. The bride and groom walked down the enclosed stairway to the machine. There was a roar and the limousine dashed forward, closely followed by two cars with secret service men.

The wedding was over. The chill of the night grew sharper and the crowd melted away.

Ceremony Is Simple.

There was none of the panoply of a state function at the wedding ceremony. It was obviously the desire of the president that all the details should be in keeping with the idea that it was to have no official character whatever, and he was to appear as Mr. Woodrow Wilson, rather than as the chief executive of the nation. For that reason there were no military aids, no glint of uniforms, no shimmer of gold braid, no suggestion of the formalities which even on ordinary occasions surround the president. Even as weddings go, the ceremony at the Galt residence was of the simplest and most dignified character.

Bride's Rector Officiates.

It was beneath a canopy of green, banked with ferns, Scotch heather and orchids, that Woodrow Wilson took Edith Bolling Galt to wife. The ceremony was performed in the bride's home by Rev. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Protestant Episcopal church, of which the bride is a member. He was assisted by Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, the place of worship of the president and his family in Washington.

Not more than 45 guests, members of the immediate families of the president and his bride, and several of their most intimate friends, were present at the wedding ceremony.

The president left the White House alone in his limousine except for his secret service guard and arrived at the Galt home at 7:45 p. m.

Bride Married in Black.

A half hour later Mrs. Galt, smiling radiantly, descended the stairs, at the foot of which her fiance stood waiting to receive her. It was immediately noted that she was to be married in black.

Mrs. Galt took the president's arm and, followed by the guests, they led the way to the drawing room where the improvised altar had been arranged for the ceremony. No music preceded the entrance of the wedding party. There was none during the impressive but simple ceremony.

When the president and his bride knelt on the white satin prie dieu to repeat their marriage vows, the bride in a gown of black silk velvet and wearing no jewels except a brooch of flashing diamonds, set in platinum, the president's gift, they were unattended.

The wedding bower was a mass of maidenhair ferns reaching from floor to ceiling, with a canopy of ferns arranged as a huge shell, lined with blooming Scotch heather. In the background of the bower was set a mirror framed in orchids. Tall standards of American beauty roses stood at either side of the bower, rising from masses of lacelike cibotium ferns. In the bower stood the prie dieu of white satin, adorned with maindenhair ferns and bunches of orchids held in place with ribbons.

Episcopal Service Is Read.

It was just 8:30 p. m., when the president and Mrs. Galt arrived at the altar and Mr. Smith began the reading of the Episcopal service.

When he asked: "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" Mrs. Bolling, mother of the bride stepped forward, placed her hand in that of the president, and answered in a low voice, "I do."

The president kissed the bride at the conclusion of the ceremony and so did most of her relatives.

The ring used was of the plainest sort, a rounded band made from California nuggets presented to the president some weeks ago by a delegation of young women from that state.

The guests observed that Mrs. Galt responded in a firm voice to the admonition to "obey" as well as to love and honor her husband.

Bride Cuts Wedding Cake.

A ripple of excitement among the guests which communicated to the president and his bride, marked the close of the solemn ceremony and at the same time an orchestra of string instruments sounded a gayer note. The president and Mrs. Wilson and their guests, when the shower of congratulations had subsided, gathered about the table in the dining room. The bride cut the wedding cake, the health of the distinguished couple was drunk and the ceremony was over.

By the time the wedding cake was cut the mystery of the coming wedding trip of the president and Mrs. Wilson was no longer a mystery.

President Wilson took the newspaper men into his confidence early in the day and informed them that his plans were to leave for Hot Springs, Va.

Catch Train at Alexandria.

At 9:30 p. m., the president and Mrs. Wilson, with the eyes of the patient crowd gathered in the street centered on them, entered the White House limousine and trailed by the secret service men and police were driven to Alexandria, Va., where they caught the "Honeymoon Special" for Hot Springs.

As they left the front door they looked back at those within, and the smiling, happy countenances of the president and his lady were reflected in the big mirror in the entrance hall. Banks of ferns about the mirror and sprays of American beauty roses nodded goodbye as the cold night air swept into the hallway. The wedding was over.

How long the president and his bride will remain at Hot Springs on the honeymoon depends in some measure upon the pressure of public affairs. If the responsibilities of state do not intervene to demand the president's return to Washington it is probable they will not come back before the end of two weeks.

Roumanian General Kills Self.

Geneva, via London, Dec. 20.—Munich newspapers received here announce the suicide of General Jonesco, commanding the second Roumanian army corps. According to the story, the general was suspected of having been bribed by one of the powers. The minister of war ordered an inquiry and, his suspicions being confirmed, sent two officers to inform General Jonesco of the result of the investigation. Two hours later General Jonesco killed himself.

Norway to Borrow $5.000.000.

London, Dec. 20.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Christiania states that the Norwegian minister of finance, M. Blehr, has arranged with the National City Bank of New York for a 6 per cent loan of $5,000,000, redeemable in seven years.

War Death Date Low.

Paris, Dec. 20.—Dr. Jacques Bertillon, director of medical statistics of the French army in a special report which he has prepared, states that the mortality among the sick and wounded in hospitals is only 18 in 1,000. Last year the mortality ratio was 53 to 1,000.

In peace times the Paris hospitals show a mortality of 106 in 1,000.

The cause of the decrease is attributed to better hospital conditions.

HAIG IS MADE CHIEF OF BRITISH FORCES

NEW COMMANDER SAVED ARMY CORPS IN FAMOUS RETREAT FROM MONS LAST YEAR.

SIR JOHN FRENCH RELIEVED

Field Marshal Becomes Commander in Chief of Armies of United Kingdom and for Service at Front is Created Viscount.

London, Dec. 17.—Field Marshal Sir John French, who at his own request has been relieved of the command of the British forces in France and Flanders, has been succeeded by General Sir Douglas Haig. Since the landing of the expeditionary force, Sir Douglas Haig has commanded the first army and has been repeatedly mentioned in dispatches by his chief, whose place he now takes.

French Created Viscount.

Sir John French becomes commander in chief of the armies of the United Kingdom and for his 16 months' service at the front has been created Viscount of the United Kingdom.

General Sir Douglas Haig, who will succeed Field Marshal Sir John French as commander of the British forces in France and Belgium, is 54 years old. He began his military career with the Seventh Hussars in 1885 and served in the Sudan and South African campaigns, in both of which he won distinguished honors and promotions.

High Praise for Haig.

Several times during the war General Haig has come in for high praise in the dispatches of the general he is now succeeding.

At the battle of the Aisne his conduct was described by Field Marshal Sir John French as "bold, skilful and decisive."

In November of last year, Sir Douglas, then a lieutenant general, was promoted to the rank of general for distinguished service in the field.

Saved Army Corps.

Field Marshal French, in his dispatch to the British war office describing the famous retreat from Mons, credited Sir Douglas with having extricated his corps from a difficult position at Landrecies.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS NOTE

America's Second Communication to Austria Regarding Sinking of Ancona is Cabled.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The new American note to Austria-Hungary regarding the sinking of the Italian steamship Ancona is understood to have been cabled to Ambassador Penfield for presentation to the Vienna foreign office.

Secretary Lansing and other officials of the state department declined to divulge any information concerning the communication. From other reliable sources, however, came a strong indication that the final draft of the note had been completed by Secretary Lansing during the day and had been put in code and started on its way over the cables.

A veil of secrecy has surrounded the communication ever since a White House messenger carried a preliminary draft from President Wilson to Secretary Lansing Saturday night.

Unless there are unforeseen developments, the note should be delivered in Vienna by Wednesday night. It will be made public when Secretary Lansing is advised that it has reached the Austro-Hungarian foreign office. A prompt reply is requested and officials are of the opinion that one will come within ten days.

The note, it is understood, will broadly intimate that the final word of the United States has been spoken.

Congress Adjourns for Holidays.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Congress adjourned for the Christmas holidays after the senate had adopted the joint resolution which had passed the house extending the emergency revenue law until Dec. 31, 1916. The senate adopted the resolution after a lively partisan debate, by a vote of 45 to 29, Democrats supporting it solidly and Republicans unanimously opposing it. Wilson signed the measure. Both houses will reconvene Jan. 4, when the administration legislative program will be undertaken.

FORD PEACE PARTY 'HOPELESSLY SPLIT' AS STEAMER LANDS

MAJORITY OF MEMBERS REALIZE THEY ARE ON A FOOL'S ERRAND, SAYS DISPATCH FROM CHRISTIANIA.

CONFIDENT HIS PLAN WILL GET MEN OUT OF TRENCHES

Detroit Manufacturer Declares American Pilgrims Soon Will Be Looked Upon as Taking Initiative in Stopping Worst War—Bryan May Join.

London, Dec. 21.—The majority of the members of the Ford peace party realize they are on a fool's errand and the delegation is hopelessly split, the correspondent of the Daily Mail reports from Christiania. Dissensions are wide and bitter, according to word received here, and a "cat and dog" fight to oust American reporters with the party is said to have taken place after Norwegian newspaper men left the ship with full details of all the happenings on the way over. It was charged the correspondents tried to wreck the mission.

Christiania, Norway, Dec. 20. — "Every nation in the world will soon look upon the American peace pilgrims as taking the initiative in stopping history's worst war. The landing of the peace expedition in Europe will be recorded as one of the most benevolent things the American republic ever did," said Henry Ford to a press representative on stepping ashore on Norwegian soil.

Reaches Port After 14 Days.

The Oscar II., carrying the Ford peace expedition, arrived at this port Saturday after a 14-days' voyage from New York. The delegates expressed much displeasure because the vessel was delayed three days by the British authorities at Kirkwall, Scotland.

Mr. Ford said he was confident the expedition would result in getting the men out of the trenches before the winter was over. He declared he had information from official sources that his peace plan was looked upon with approval.

Bryan May Join Party.

He added that his motive in coming to Europe was to develop to the full an understanding throughout the world by the time the peace sessions were begun at The Hague.

William Jennings Bryan was expected to join the peace party there, he said.

Mr. Ford explained the presence of the American party in Norway was merely intended to convince the Norwegians of the fervent wish of Americans for peace. He expects to gather a Norwegian delegation here and then in about three days proceed to Stockholm, Sweden.

Definite Program.

He said the party would grow as it traveled, through neutral countries and that this would convince the belligerents that the rest of the world demanded peace immediately.

By the time Copenhagen was visited and The Hague reached, probably two weeks hence, Mr. Ford said, the peace movement would have a definite program.

Receptions by Christiania preachers and university professors and an unofficial call made by Albert G. Schmedeman, American minister to Norway, attended the first day of the members of the peace expedition in Europe.

VILLA WOULD CROSS BORDER

Retires From Command of Forces Opposing Carranza—Friends Ask for His Immunity.

El Paso, Texas, Dec. 20.—No word of denial of the report of his retirement from command of the Convention forces opposing the Carranza government, has been received from General Francisco Villa. Rumors declared first that he was enroute for Palomas, and would cross at Columbus, N. M. It was also reported that he was on his way to Ojinaga, opposite Presidio, Texas.

Ask for Permission.

At a conference of United States military officials, state and city authorities and representatives of the Carranza and Villa governments, it was requested by the Villa delegation that General Villa and his brother, Hipolito Villa, his financial agent, be permitted to cross the border unharassed by legal, criminal or civil action.

Germans Accuse American.

Berlin, (via London), Dec. 20. — Siegfried Paul London, a naturalized American citizen, has been placed in jail at Warsaw and is awaiting trial on a charge of espionage. As the investigation has not yet been completed the authorities have not been able to communicate to the American consulate the full charges against London, which are understood to involve, an alleged conspiracy to convey information to the Russians after the German occupation of Warsaw.

The Story the Starbeam Told

ONE COLD winter night the snow was gently falling on the pine trees of the forest. These tall, stately trees stood very straight and still on this cold night. By and by the tallest and the oldest of them said:

"How happy I shall be when at last I am strong enough and tall enough to be cut down by the wood cutters. I hope when they do cut me down that I may be good enough that they will want me for some great ship, and then I shall have a chance to sail the seas."

"What do you know about ships and the seas?" asked a little pine tree who stood at the foot of the tall one.

The stately tree bent his branches a very little and looked down at the small tree, at his feet.

"I have heard many stories of the seas, and the ships that sail on them, for the birds sit in my branches and sing to me all the time of the beauties and wonders of the world. Then, too, the starbeams, who are much older than the birds, have some truly wonderful tales to tell of things that they have seen in their trips around the world. There is the Starbeam of the Brightest Star, just peeping over the hilltop. He can tell some truly wonderful tales."

The little pine tree trembled for very joy. This was his first winter in the forest, and these things were all new to him just as was the snow that was covering his roots, and making them all warm with its white blanket.

"Won't you please ask the Starbeam to tell us a story?" asked the little pine.

"Let us ask him to tell us again the Christmas story," said another of the older pines, "the one he told us last year."

So, when the Starbeam came over and rested gently on the tallest pine, he asked it to tell again the Story of the First Christmas.

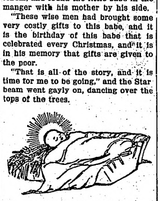
"I love to tell this story best of all stories that I know," said the little Starbeam.

"Once upon a time a long time ago, long before even the oldest pine trees here began to grow, a beautiful woman, named Mary, and her husband, Joseph, went on a journey to a little city called Bethlehem. All the people in that country went to this same city, to pay their taxes, and when Mary and Joseph got there, they found so many people, that there was no room left for them at the inn. The only place where they could find shelter was in a stable, and here they went. That night a little babe was born, and its mother, Mary, laid him in a manger on some nice clean straw.

"Away off in the East. the Brightest Star appeared. He had never been seen before, and some wise men who knew that this was the time for the babe to be born, saw the Brightest Star as they started out to find the babe. All their long journey the Brightest Star kept just in front of them to show them the way to go, and when they rested at night, the Brightest Star would rest too, and wait for them. At last they reached the city of Bethlehem, and found the little babe in the manger with his mother by his side.

"These wise men had brought some very costly gifts to this babe, and it is the birthday of this babe that is celebrated every Christmas, and it is in his memory that gifts are given to the poor.

"That is all of the story, and it is time for me to be going," and the Starbeam went gayly on, dancing over the tops of the trees.



The Russian St. Nicholas.

In Russia the children put their shoes filled with hay outside the door for the horses of St. Nicholas; and it is believed in most sections that St. Nicholas comes first on a preparatory visit ten days before Christmas to learn which children have been good. He leaves nuts and candy in the shoes of those who have been good, but nothing for those who have been bad, who thus know that they may expect no presents on the real Christmas day.

The Bran Pie.

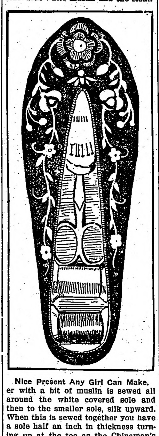
This is an English custom. The gifts are hidden in a large pan of bran. A string is tied to each package, and on the end of the string is the name of the one for whom the package is intended. When all have their strings they all pull. Then comes the fun of getting the bran off and opening the packages.

CHINESE SHOE WORKBOX

Perhaps This May Provide Work for Some Small Child's Nimble Fingers.

The small girl who would like to make mother or elder sister a gift, but whose pocket money is limited, should try her hand at the little Chinese shoe workbox shown here. She will surely succeed if she can sew at all, and if she will be very careful about the cutting and sewing. The beauty of it is the piece bag will probably supply the materials for making, while 25 cents will buy the furnishings.

One must cut two pieces of cardboard, each seven inches long, then shape it into a sole and take off one-quarter inch from the toe of one piece. The larger piece is covered on one side with white muslin and the smaller with a bit of muslin is sewed all around the white covered sole and then to the smaller sole, silk upward. When this is sewed together you have a sole half an inch in thickness turning up at the toe as the Chinaman's shoe does. Fill this with cotton.



Nice Present Any Girl Can Make.

The one thing to remember is to take time in making this pretty box. It costs next to nothing, but it will not be a success if carelessly done.

The writer saw an exquisite model of this work case that is to be given to a bride. It is carried out in white satin embroidered in silk and silver thread in a wistaria design, the lining being of wistaria-colored silk to match.

This should be a hint to girls who have friends marrying during the holiday season. If embroidery is beyond the donor's skill, a tiny spray of orange blossom tied with silver cord might decorate the top, or the initial of the bride could be placed there.

THE GIFTS FOR MOTHER

The gladdest hour of Christmas day,
 The time the hearts are lightest
An' every care is chased away
 An' all the smiles are brightest,
Is when the family, young an' old,
 From dad to little brother,
With all the love that hearts can hold
 Come bringing gifts to mother.

We keep her presents till the last
 An' then when she sits rocking,
An' all the other gifts are passed,
 We go an' get her stocking.
We gather round her easy chair,
 First one an' then the other
Steps up an' says: "Well, I declare!
 Here's something else for mother!"

An' with each present goes a kiss,
 An' all is still an' quiet
When mother murmurs: "What is this?"
 An' hastens to untie it.
Then everybody wildly cheers
 An' shouts for perfect gladness,
An' mother's eyes are moist with tears,
 But not the tears of sadness.

Oh, here's a scene that gold can't buy,
 Or stage in imitation,
The smiling face, the glistening eye
 Of love's own celebration.
And with each jolly Christmas day
 We pray to know another
When we shall meet the self-same way
 And bring our gifts to mother.

"Your wife tells me you have given up smoking."

"That's only until Christmas; I don't like her brand."

Gopher State Happenings

Important Events of Various Sections of the state reported during last few days.

AT THE STATE CAPITOL

Little Known About Jaundice.

The status of jaundice as a disease has been raised by an unusual epidemic that prevails in Minneapolis, according to Dr. H. A. Burns, epidemiologist of the state board of health with offices at the University of Minnesota.

* * *

Christmas Trees Cause Fires.

Christmas trees fires in Minnesota last year cost a loss of between $6,000 and $10,000 and State Fire Marshall Hargadine in a special Christmas tree Bulletin calls attention to the fact. Extra precautions this Christmas are requested.

* * *

Regents Re-Elect Officers.

The board of regents at the University of Minnesota has re-elected the officers to serve for 1916. Fred B. Snyder of Minneapolis, as chairman of the executive committee. The personnel of the standing committees was retained.

* * *

Should Teach Agriculture.

If Minnesota would improve the quality of its rural schools, it should require the teaching of the fundamentals of agriculutre in every state-aided school, county and city, in the opinion of D. D. Mayne, principal of the School of Agriculture, university farm.

* * *

Abolition of Board Protested.

A protest against abolition of the state normal school board, as proposed in the plan of a central state board of education, has been made by present members of the board to the state efficiency and economy commission, which met at the state capitol to decide on its course of action in framing a plan to reorganize the state government.

* * *

Would Revise Child Labor Laws.

W. D. Washburn, chairman of the Minnesota child labor committee, says that this committee expects to employ a special agent to investigate the employment of children less than ten years old to sing in motion picture shows. Mr. Washburn said this committee also will investigate cases of children under ten years selling papers on the street or engaging in any street trade.

* * *

State Aids Home Builders.

Minnesota homebuilders are getting state aid on a large scale. The state art commission, according to a bulletin just issued, has sent out 1,000,000 plans for model farmhouses in the past 24 months. The plans were submitted by leading architects of the state and have been sent out at merely a nominal cost, a service that no other state government has undertaken to give. This service is now being extended.

GOPHER STATE NOTES

Rochester. — Rochester's new armory, costing about $30,000, will be dedicated formally Jan. 8, according to plans being made by the local machine gun company. Governor Hammond has accepted an invitation to attend.

Rochester. — J. Q. R. Howell, a transient selling insurance here, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. Howell recently was discharged from the City hospital in St. Paul, following an attempt in that city to end his life.

Duluth. — Action of the United States supreme court, which indirectly fixes the boundary line between Minnesota and Wisconsin, as the natural channel of the St. Louis river, is likely to start a fight between the two states as to the taxation rights on some valuable property which hitherto has been classed as in Minnesota.

Crookston.—A dispatch from Washington says that President Wilson has signed pardons for W. F. Peterson, Otto Kilen and S. B. Gillan, former saloonkeepers of Crookston, who were sentenced at Fergus Falls in the United States court in November to 60 days in jail and a fine of $100 for shipping whisky to points in Indian dry territory. The shipments were made through ignorance, and monster petitions were forwarded by friends here asking for the pardon. Half of the sentence has been served.

Tower. — Fire destroyed the buildings at camp 2 at Bear creek, belonging to the Trout Lake Lumber company of this city. About 100 men were employed there. Five men received serious burns and were brought to a hospital in this city. Among those injured are John Hendericks and John Brewer of this place.

Morris. — The directors of the Minnesota State Drainage association met at the agricultural school here to discuss the general purposes of the organization and to arrange for a state drainage meeting to be held in St. Paul after the holidays.

St. Paul. — Corn raised in Minnesota, in the Dakotas, in Montana, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Wisconsin, tastefully arranged and properly classified on exhibition racks which fairly groan beneath the weight, comprises the exhibits of the First National Corn show which has just opened in St. Paul.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Three Hundred Million Bushel Crop in 1915

Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: "Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat crop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions."

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre
Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre
Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. For complete information as to best locations for settlement, reduced railroad rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, or

THE SUNBEAM,

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August [illegible], at the post office at Sunbeam Minn, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

The campaign for the nomination for governor will not open in earnest until after the holidays, but we note that nearly all the leading Democratic papers are of the opinion that Sam Iverson will not be the nominee, The wish is of course father to the thought, for they know that if Sam is nominated he will be elected,

Cummings for president don't sound so bad in this neck of the woods, when one comes to recall his past record, He was unalterably opposed to Canadian reciprocity, and he has always been in favor of all bills looking to the improvement of the dairy interests and the interests of the farmer generally, He also has been a true champion of organized labor, and all of these things will be remembered when the voter comes to exercise his prerogative at the polls.—T, R, Falls News-Press,

The Duluth Herald is making some guesses about who will be the nominee in the next Republican National Convention. They guess that the last two candidates left after all the rest are eliminated will be Root and Roosevelt. But they do not dare guess that who ever is nominated that there will be two Republican candidates in opposition to Wilson next year, for if they make that kind of a guess, they have another guess coming, as there will be but one united Republican party in the next national campaign,

A GREAT CHARGE 'TWOULD BE!

"Charge for your homes and your firesides!" has sent thousands of brave men into desperate conflict and pulled them through to glorius victory.

But suppose the battle-cry had been:

"Charge for your boarding house, the steam radiator, and the farm you rented last year!"

Gov. Ferguson of Texas recently told a convention of farmers in Chicago that he had never heard of a man defending his boarding house with his own life, but that the pages of history were glorius with the heroism of men who fought for their homes,

The governor is right, and this is another angle of "preparedness." It is as important as dreadnaughts, shrapnel and submarines,

That $2,500,000,000 which the United States is asked to spend on preparedness within the next few years would furnish loans of $1,000 each to all of America's 2,500,000 tenant farmers with which to start buying their own farms. The money thus expended would not be blown into the air and it would never find a resting place on the junk pile.

Such a form of preparedness would more likely spell prosperity to the whole country than the other style, which merely means big profits for the few and big taxes for the many.—The Rural Weekly.

GOT WHAT THEY VOTED FOR.

Among the large number, who visited Thief River Falls, to witness the closing of the saloons last Saturday, were a number of enthusiastic advocates of county option, who are not as strong for real temperance, as they were to close up the saloons, so the other fellow could not buy any more liquor than they could afford to. They of course went down to buy a Christmas supply of that "ruination poison" for Xmas, and laid in what they supposed would be a sufficient supply of alcohol, but when they got home and opened the jugs, they found that they contained nothing but city water from Thief River Falls, They got in December what they voted for in June, temperance.

It's a long way to Red Lake county,
It's a long way to go,
It's a long way to Red Lake county,
To the best booze I know,
Good-bye Tom and Jerry,
Farewell, ye rock and rye,
It's a long, long way to Red Lake county,
Since Polk and Pennington went dry.

We heard Congressman Steenerson once make the remark, at a postmasters' convention, that there was no department of the government, that was so near to the people, as the post office department, The people from Massachusettes to California begin to realize the difference between the management of that department under a Republican administration, and the management of it under the present "rag time rigma," and they are ready to vote for a change,

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H, Soister, Berkely, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn, I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new,"

They purify the blood, give you freedom from constipation, billiousness, dizziness and indigestion. You feel fine—just like you want to feel. Clear the complexion too. 25c. at druggists. —Adv.

MANY CHILDREN HAVE WORMS

Worms are a common childhood ailment. They make children irritable, nervous and restless, besides robbing the body and mind of proper nourishment. Watch your child. Examine the stools and at first signs of worms give your child a treatment of Kickapoo Worm Killer. They kill the worms, act as a laxative and expel the worms and poisonous waste. Tone the system and help restore your child's health and happy disposition. Only 25c. at your Druggist.—Adv.

Embarrassing.

In South Africa General French earned the title of "the shirt sleeved general." Mr. Chisholm says in "Sir John French." General French was often to be seen walking about in camp in shirt sleeves. One afternoon a correspondent rode up to the lines and, seeing a soldier sitting on a bundle of hay smoking a dilapidated looking old briar pipe, asked where the general was.

"The old man is somewhere about," coolly replied the soldier.

"Well, just hold my horse while I go and search for him."

"Certainly, sir," and the smoker rose obediently and took the bridle.

"Can you tell me where the general is?" inquired the correspondent of a staff officer farther down the line.

"General French? Oh, he's somewhere about. Why, there he is, holding that horse's head!"

And the officer pointed directly to the smoker, still tranquilly puffing at his pipe and holding the horse.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XV. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1915. NO. 42

THE LOCAL NEWS

Both of the Highlanding stores report a fine holiday trade.

To-morrow is New Years Day, and you must not forget to write it January 1st, 1916.

Plummer is getting to be quite a metropolitan city, as they had a hold up there this week, but the hold up man promptly discovered he was too far away from Minneapolis, as he got promptly "nabbed."

The Prison Mirror comes to our table this week with a Christmas edition, which shows that there must be some good printers doing time down there, as well as some good writers, who might have been a credit to themselves and the newspaper fraternity, on the outside of prison walls.

Maybe, if the Democratic party succeeds in bonding the United States for preparedness, that they can save enough out of the deal to furnish fourth class post masters with twine to do up mail with. Democratic economy does not seem to lead to wealth, as the nation has steadily grown poorer, since they came into power.

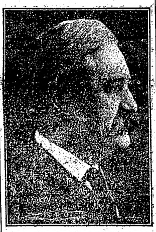
The Duluth Herald says that big crops always make good times. Minnesota never had a better crop, than they had in 1895, and yet the farmers went broke selling their grain at forty five cents a bushel under a Democratic administration, and that is what they would be doing this year, if it had not been for that European war. Good cows at that time sold at $10.00 a head, and laboring men worked for $8.00 a month in the woods. Oh, yes, good crops makes good times, sometimes.

Hon. D. P. O'Neill was a visitor at Highlanding Wednesday evening, on his return from a drainage meeting over in the town of Hickory, where they are trying to do something to prevent the overflow of the Red Lake River onto the low lands lying along its banks in the town of Hickory. The farmers of that township were badly drowned out last year, but there was very little if any damage caused by high water in the river from Highlanding to Thief River Falls, and the farmers of this locality are only looking to have the river taken from under the control of the government so they can get bridges across it.

The Deer Park correspondent of the Eleven Towns seems to be wonderfully worked up over a short parody that we published regarding county option. Don't worry about us our friend, as by a visit to our farm you will note that all our fall plowing is done and ready for spring's crop, which is a lot more than some of our radical county option friends can say. We also wish to say that we do all the writing for THE SUNBEAM from a farmer's stand point, and for what we consider their best interest, and we admit that excessive drinking is very bad, but you will not control it by a county option law, until you pass a law to prohibit the shipping of liquor into dry territory, the same as they have it in the Indian country. A man's best temperance law is his own will power, and he should consider that a man that will go and get so drunk that he can't see, looses the respect of even those who are opposed to radical prohibition, as we would not think of employing a man to work in our office who was a habitual drunkard.

Donkey Talk.

It is tiresome to occasionally hear a bray from the tail end of the Donkey kite, like the Singers at all, let out of them about mail service, and tell farmers if they had petitioned so and so, they would have gotten better mail service. Who ever heard of a Singer drawing up a mail route petition to better the conditions of the farmer's mail service? Of course they are not really to blame, as any one could see by looking at their ears, that they did not have brains enough to draw any kind of a petition. Just look at their ears, and you can see that they have been adopted by the donkey party. Then examine their record and you will find that it has always been to discontinue instead of extend mail service, and if they could have had their way about it all the people of eastern Pennington county would be compelled to go to Erie, Kratka or Rhoda to get their mail. But they worked it so as to have the mail route put in wrong end to by the Democratic powers that be, but the "donk" will find out that his colts will not help him much to pull his load up the hill in this territory, as the people are aware that their braying is for a little more donkey milk, in the way of cancellation for their post offices at the expense of the people's mail service.



ALBERT B. CUMMINS
U. S. SENATOR FROM IOWA
Candidate for Republican Nomination for President
PRIMARIES, TUESDAY, MARCH 14

Born on farm in Pennsylvania.

Learned carpenter's trade and paid for his own education.

Was railroad express agent running from Iowa to Minneapolis.

Has been governor of Iowa and is at present United States Senator from that State.

Is a Republican, and has taken advanced stand upon tariff and other issues that have interested the people in recent years.

Sensitive Measurement.

Minute bendings of a steel bar three feet long and three and one-half feet in diameter are accurately measured by a curious but very sensitive device of the United States bureau of standards. The bar, supported at each end, has a small mirror fixed at its center, and above this is a frame holding another mirror partially silvered. As the light of a sodium burner is reflected in each mirror the lower mirror shows a series of black and yellow concentric rings. A very small weight, even that of a pin, deflects the bar and causes the circles to expand outward. Each circle indicates a movement of one hundred-thousandth of an inch, the pressure of a finger, forming five or more new circles, showing a bending of one twenty-thousandth of an inch.

The Kangaroo.

In the course of a long stay in the interior of Victoria, Australia, J. G. O'Donohue gathered conclusive evidence, which he presents in the Victorian Naturalist, that the mother kangaroo, when hard pressed on a long pursuit, throws her young one out of her pouch. He says the young kangaroo is "sent spinning from the pouch as the mother, by her enormous leaps, imparts to it a more or less vertical motion."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. SAHARA IN A TUMULT.

Fury of a Desert Storm and a Quick Transformation.

On our way we encountered that terrible experience, a desert storm. It came down upon us with hardly any premonition save of an oppressive stillness of the air and a stifling temperature. Then all of a sudden the whole Sahara seemed to rise into the air and pelt us with its sands and pebbles. Within five minutes my mouth was parched with thirst and my watch choked with sand. The din of the storm was indescribable, and the flying particles stung like whiplashes on hand and face. Our horses were nearly mad with fright. For four hours the insufferable choking wind blew with its scorching breath and then the heavens opened and emptied what seemed to be half the [illegible] on our devoted heads. From parching heat the temperature sank to a little above freezing in a few minutes, and then the rain came down like a sluice, the great drops splashing the sand back up to our horses' bellies.

Then the storm vanished as quickly as it had come, and the sun came out and smiled at our sad plight. Without a word we all stripped to the buff and wrung out our water logged garments. As we sat our poor horses like centaurs, waiting for the sun to dry our clothes, I caught Abd er Rahman's eye, and for the first and last time heard him laugh aloud. For a full minute we sat rocking in our saddles with mirth until gradually our wits and our bodily warmth came back to us. I do not pretend to know how these things happen, but almost within an hour or two the desert all about us was green with new grass springing into life, and in the pools formed by the water in the hollows frogs were croaking the miraculous fact of their existence to a sunlight world.—Wide World Magazine.

ASQUITH BLAMED FOR BLUNDERS IN BRITISH ATTACKS

LONDON NEWSPAPERS CONDEMN SLOWNESS AND MISMANAGEMENT OF THE DARDANELLES ENTERPRISE.

NO TRUCE ON CHRISTMAS AND NO HEAVY FIGHTING

English Cabinet Is Indicted for Postponement of Munitions Bill Until After Holidays—No Insight Given Into Lord Derby's Report on Recruiting Results.

London, Dec. 28.—King Constantine has telegraphed to Emperor William saying that it would be impossible to allow Bulgarian or Turkish troops to cross the Greek frontier, says the Mail's correspondent at Athens, who had interviews with the Greek ministers.

London, Dec. 28.—Christmas passed without heavy fighting anywhere on the European fronts. It passed also without a truce to give a touch of humanity to Christmas day. The United Kingdom, however, witnesses a general abandonment of the truce between the political parties, which was observed during the early months of the war and which apparently was cemented for the duration of the war when the coalition government was formed.

Attacks on Government.

The past week has seen a steady growth of the newspaper attacks on the government, the general burden of which is the slowness, the lack of foresight and decision and the mismanagement of the Dardanelles enterprise.

The newspapers generally hold Premier Asquith responsible for the conduct of affairs. The Northcliffe group, headed by the Times and the Daily Mail, with the support of the Morning Post, was joined by the Observer, which is the foremost Sunday paper, and the Referee, which has a large audience among the masses.

Munitions Bill Delayed.

The two latest counts of the indictment of the cabinet are the postponement until after the holidays of the munitions bill and the postponement of giving the country any insight into Lord Derby's report on his recruiting results. In the meantime the verdict of union labor on Mr. Lloyd George's appeal to relax union rules in munitions works to permit of the entry of 80,000 unskilled laborers is awaited with interest.

From different correspondents come various reports on the situation in the Balkans, some contending that the Bulgarians have accomplished all the territorial gains within their immediate ambitions and therefore will not move further. Other correspondents represent them as being determined to extend the boundaries to include the important port of Saloniki.

FAILS TO FIND INCAS' GOLD

U. S. Postoffice Inspector Working on Alleged Fraud in Peru, Ready to Return.

Colon, Panama, Dec. 27.—Harry A. Barber, a United States postoffice inspector, who has been in the interior of Peru trying to locate the buried treasure of the Incas, will start for Washington at once, having, it is understood, failed in his quest.

Inspector Barber was sent to Peru to investigate for the federal authorities at Wilmington, Del., the existence of a $500,000,000 placer gold deposit, which figures prominently in the McCune case in which the Duponts and other leading Delaware financiers are mentioned.

McCune, it is said, floated a large corporation on the strength of having discovered the source of the gold of the ancient Incas. He finally became involved with the postoffice department.

McCune is now at liberty under $10,000 bail, and according to Barber is in Peru again, endeavoring to locate the treasure.

Peace Societies United.

New York, Dec. 27.—The New York Peace society of which Andrew Carnegie is president, has united for "close cooperative efforts" with the American branch of the league to enforce peace, which is headed by William H. Taft, former president, according to announcement made by W. H. Short, secretary of both organizations.

Decrease in U. S. Ships.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Although the number of merchant ships under the American flag decreased during the fiscal year ending with last June, the tonnage of the merchant marine showed a record breaking increase, according to the annual report of the commissioner of navigation, just made public. On June 30, 1914, 26,943 vessels having a total gross tonnage of 7,928,688 were under American registry. A year later the number had decreased to 26,701, but the aggregate tonnage was 8,389,429.

LACKS DETAILS AS TO SINKING

U. S. ORDERS INQUIRY INTO ATTACK ON JAPANESE LINER.

[illegible] Diplomatic Representations to Austria May Follow if It Is Found American Was Aboard.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Official confirmation concerning the sinking of the Japanese liner Yasaka Maru reported to have been torpedoed without warning in the Mediterranean still is lacking here.

American consular officers stationed near the scene where the vessel was sunk have been requested to obtain accurate reports of the incident and forward them to the state department.

Should these prove that the liner with an American passenger aboard, was attacked without warning by an Austrian submarine as stated in unofficial reports, diplomatic representations to Austria-Hungary would follow.

The situation between the United States and Austria-Hungary growing out of the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona remains unchanged with the officials here awaiting the reply to the second American note now being composed by the Vienna foreign office.

G. O. P. LOOKS TO NORTHROP

Delegation of Minnesota Republicans to Ask Him to Become "Favorite Son" Candidate.

Minneapolis, Dec. 27.—A delegation of Minnesota Republicans intend to wait on Dr. Cyrus Northrop at once to ascertain from him whether he will become Minnesota's "favorite son" candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in accordance with the plan suggested by Walter N. Carroll for circumventing the presidential preference, primary law agreed upon by Republicans to be an absurd bit of election machinery.

Done in Other States.

Edward F. Smith, former lieutenant governor and former chairman of the Republican state central committee, has given Mr. Carroll's "favorite son" idea his indorsement and declares it to be just exactly what many other states are doing, notably, Massachusetts, Ohio, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Michigan and Indiana.

"It already has been set forth," said Mr. Smith, "that our presidential preference primary law probably would preclude the voters of Minnesota from expressing themselves for Mr. Root, Mr. Hughes or Mr. Roosevelt, who unquestionably are the predominant men in Republican presidential consideration."

BARRED BY RESERVE BOARD

Public Office Holders Are Made Ineligible as Officers or Directors of Banks.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Public office holders and members of political party committees are made ineligible for election as officers or directors of federal reserve banks by a resolution adopted unanimously by the Federal Reserve Board.

The resolution, which was offered by Secretary McAdoo, also informs member banks of the reserve system that in the opinion of the board such persons henceforth should not act as officials or directors of the reserve banks.

The action of the board is understood to have been taken without extended discussion, the resolution being offered during the election of Class C directors of reserve banks, a task that was not completed when the session ended.

Later it was said that the action was not aimed particularly at any candidate or any director or officer now serving.

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 27.—Announcement has been made here of a movement to bring about a change in the boundary line between the United States and Mexico by extending the present line directly west along the 31st parallel from the 111th meridian so as to take in the northern part of the Gulf of California and part of Lower California. Commercial organizations of Phoenix and other Arizona cities have sent telegrams to officials, urging their support of the movement.

MOB BESIEGES FRONT OF COUNTY JAIL IN OKLAHOMA —THREATEN NEGROES.

200 BLACKS READY TO FIRE

Green and Foreman Accused of Slaying Neal, a Cherokee Indian Policeman, While Resisting Arrest —Militiamen Repulse Attacks.

Muskogee, Okla., Dec. 27.—While a mob of white men besieged the front of the county jail here threatening to lynch two negro prisoners, and 200 armed negroes waited across the street with the announced intention of opening fire should the mob obtain custody of the two men, the prisoners were hurried out a rear door to motors and taken from the city.

Accused of Slaying Indian.

William Green and Mathis Foreman, the prisoners, were accused of slaying Sam Neal, a policeman while resisting arrest. Neal was a Cherokee Indian.

While a race riot threatened to break out at any moment between the mob at the jail door and the negroes across the street a report that a posse of Cherokees were on their way from Tahlequah to avenge the death of their tribesman, further stirred the authorities.

Two Mobs Dispersed.

When the removal of the prisoners was announced the two mobs dispersed and nothing had been seen of the reported Indian band late at night.

The prisoners were being disguised and spirited away from the jail while Company F of the Oklahoma national guard held the mob at bay with fixed bayonets and loaded rifles.

Two determined attacks were made on the jail but the militiamen repulsed both. One of the attacks resulted in the battering down of the outer jail door, but the men in the fore front of the mob, carrying a piece of railroad rail as a battering ram, were driven back before they could reach the dell house.

ROADS GET RATE INCREASES

Western Railways Allowed to Advance Freight Charges by Second I. C. C. Decision.

Washington, Dec. 27. — Railroads west of the Mississippi river were given material increases in freight rates by the interstate commerce commission in a second decision in the so-called western advance rate cases.

Important increases granted included carload rates on agricultural implements except to points in Louisiana, carload rates on canned goods and carload rates on boots and shoes and leather between Missouri manufacturing points and points west. Increases on many miscellaneous items were allowed, but some others were held to be unjustified. The record in the case does not disclose how much additional revenue the carriers will obtain.

Engineer Blamed for Fatal Wreck.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 27.—The second section of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western passenger train No. 9, which was rammed at Slateford by the third section of the same train, causing the death of two persons and injuries to five others, reached this city bearing the victims, who were taken to local hospitals. E. M. Rine, general superintendent of the Lackawanna, places the blame for the accident on the engineer of section No. 3, who, according to Mr. Rine, ran past signals.

FORD LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

SAILS FROM BERGEN ON NORWEGIAN LINER.

Leader of "Peace Party" States Women's International Peace Society Will Continue Expedition.

Christiania, Dec. 27.—(Via London.) —The Norwegian liner Bergensfjord, with Henry Ford on board, has sailed for New York. Mr. Ford stated before leaving Bergen that the peace expedition would continue under the auspices of the Women's International Peace Association.

Stockholm, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain of New York, who has withdrawn from the Ford peace expedition presented to a public meeting of the delegates a long statement of her reasons for doing so and for believing the project was doomed to failure.

"The undemocratic method employed by the managers of the expedition is opposed to my principles," she said. "Instead of all the members formulating plans, the work has been confined to a few specially selected persons. When the party embarked on the Oscar II, I took it as for granted that the rather vague opinions of the body of delegates would be hammered into effective shape by group action and constructive thinking throughout the voyage.

Reasons for Dissensions.

"An organization was not formed until three days before the end of the voyage. To that fact I trace all misunderstandings, dissensions, mistakes in policy, inefficiency and inability to get the idea of a mediating peace congress in comprehensive shape before the public.

"At the meeting the discussions have been purely private with the result of ill-feeling, suspicion and condemnation. For the reasons stated, I am unable to continue with the party."

RECORD IN BELGIAN RELIEF

Shipments of Foodstuffs During December Establish High Mark in History of Philanthropy.

New York, Dec. 27.—Shipments of foodstuffs into Belgium during December are declared by the American commission for relief in Belgium to have established a record unparalleled in the history of philanthropy. Already 13 steamers have left American ports and by the end of the month one shipload of supplies for every day in the month will have entered Belgium or will be on its way there.

In October of this year, according to a statement issued today by Alexander J. Hempbill, treasurer of the commission, the amount collected and spent in benevolent work by the organization was $4,323,175.

School Burns; Students Flee.

Highland, N. Y., Dec. 27.—One hundred guests of the Chodikee Lake hotel and 60 students of the Raymond Riordan school were forced to flee without their personal belongings when the hotel and school buildings at Chodikee Lake, seven miles north of this village, were destroyed by fire. The blaze spread through the frame structures with great rapidity.

Changes in England, Rumor.

London, Dec. 27.—An Amsterdam dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says that the Zeitung Am Mittag of Berlin makes a feature of a dispatch to the effect that the British cabinet is on the eve of resignation and that Premier Asquith and Foreign Secretary Grey will withdraw, while Earl Kitchener will leave the war office for Egypt.

"The new head of the government," says the newspaper, "will be Lord Haldane.

TEUTONS HOPE TO TAKE SALONIKI BY MIDDLE JANUARY

BERLIN PROMISES GREEK TERRITORY WILL BE EVACUATED AS SOON AS TASK IS FINISHED.

AUSTRIA TO TAKE LEAD IN BALKAN ACTIVITIES

Bulgarians Will Be in Vanguard of Teutonic Advance Southward, According to Athens—British Scoff at Reports of Germanic Offensive.

London, Dec. 27.—A Reuter dispatch from Athens say that Germany is reported to have informed Greece that she hopes to reach Saloniki by January 15, promising at the same time to evacuate Greek territory as soon as the task is finished.

Greek correspondents of the Paris newspapers declare that the Teutonic Allies have decided that Austria shall have the initiative in all the active measures in the Balkans and reports are also published in Paris that the Austrians are actually marching on Saloniki.

Bulgars to Lead Drive on Saloniki.

Correspondents of the Times, both in Saloniki and in Athens and the Morning Post's Athens correspondent suggest that the Bulgarians will be in the vanguard of the Teutonic advance toward Saloniki.

The Times Athens correspondent says:

"During the last few days the Bulgarians have been filling gaps in their ranks and occupying positions all along their front, while all the Bulgarian heavy guns from Varna already have reached the front. Strumitsa, where the Bulgars are assembling all their stores, will be the base from which the army will attack the Allies. Their forces now number 120,000. Reinforcements are arriving and it is stated that the attack will begin when 180,000 men have been concentrated."

The British correspondents at Saloniki scoff at the reports of an early Germanic offensive, however.

TO AVOID BREAK WITH U. S.

Vienna Sincerely Desires to Preserve Friendly Relations in Ancona Crisis, Says Dispatch.

Berlin, via London, Dec. 27.—From a highly competent non-Austrian source in Vienna, private advices have been received, taking an optimistic view of the Austro-American situation.

The Austrian government, it is declared appears to be actuated by a sincere desire to preserve friendly relations with the United States, even at a considerable sacrifice, and is endeavoring to formulate a reply to the second American note on the Ancona which the United States may deem satisfactory.

The informant expressed the belief that a settlement will positively be reached and a rupture thus avoided.

JAP STEAMER IS TORPEDOED

Liner Yasaka Maru Sunk in Mediterranean by Submarine—Passengers Saved by French Warship.

London, Dec. 24.—Recrudescence of submarine activity in the near east is signalized in a startling manner by the sinking of the new Japanese liner, Yasaka Maru, in the eastern Mediterranean. Reports just received here stated the passenger ship was torpedoed without warning.

All of the 300 persons aboard the vessel, of whom 120 were passengers, one of them being an American citizen, W. J. Leigh, were rescued by a French warship. This is one of the few instances in which a passenger liner has been torpedoed without warning in which all of those aboard were saved.

TEUTON AIRMAN DROPS BOMBS NEAR SALONIKI

Paris, Dec. 27. — An Austrian aeroplane flew to within a little more than three miles of Saloniki and dropped bombs near a village in the vicinity, according to reports from Saloniki, forwarded by the Havas correspondent at Athens. Another unconfirmed report from the same source was to the effect that a Zeppelin has been seen flying over northern Greek territory.

Wilson Remembers Young Friends.

Washington, Dec. 27.—I. H. Hoover, chief usher at the White House, who played Santa Claus there this year in the absence of President Wilson on his honeymoon trip at Hot Springs, Va., was a busy man. In a White House car loaded with presents, Hoover left for the Virginia side of the Potomac river to remember 50 little friends of the President. They live along the Washington road between the river and the Virginia club, where he often plays golf.

FROM ONE YEAR'S CROP HE PAID FOR HIS LAND IN WESTERN CANADA

Remarkable as are the reports of the yields of wheat in Western Canada, the marketing of which is now under way, they are none the more interesting than are those that are vouched for as to the value of this grain crop to the farmers of that country.

Some months ago the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, Canada, wrote to those in the United States who were owners of land in Western Canada that was not producing, advising that it be put under crop. The high prices of grain and their probable continuance for some years should be taken advantage of. Cattle and all the produce of the farm commanded good figures, and the opportunity to feed the world was great, while the profits were simply alarming. The Department suggested that money could be made out of the idle lands, lands that could produce anywhere from 25 to 65 bushels of wheat per acre. A number took advantage of the suggestion. One of these was an Illinois farmer. He owned a large quantity of land near Culross, Manitoba. He decided to put one thousand acres of it under wheat. His own story, written to Mr. C. J. Broughton, Canadian Government Agent at Chicago, is interesting.

"I had 1,000 acres in wheat near Culross, Manitoba. I threshed 34,000 bushels, being an average of 34 bushels to the acre. Last Spring I sold my foreman, Mr. F. L. Hill, 240 acres of land for $9,000, or $37.50 per acre. He had saved up about $1,000, which he could buy seed with, and have the land harrowed, drilled and harvested, and put in stook or shock.

"As a first payment I was to take all the crops raised. When he threshed he had 8,300 bushels of wheat, which is worth in all $1.00 per bushel, thereby paying for all the land that was in wheat and more, too, there being only 200 acres in crop. If the 240 acres had all been in wheat he could have paid for it all and had money left."

That is a story that will need no corroboration in this year when, no matter which way you turn, you learn of farmers who had even higher yields than these.

G. E. Davidson of Manitou, Manitoba, had 36 acres of breaking and 14 acres of older land. He got 2,186 bushels of wheat, over 43 bushels per acre.

Walter Tukner of Darlingford, Manitoba, had 3,514 bushels off a 60 acre field, or over 58½ bushels per acre. Forty acres was breaking and 20 acres summer fallow.

Wm. Sharp, formerly Member of Parliament for Lisgar, Manitoba, had 80 acres of wheat on his farm near Manitou, Manitoba, that went 63 bushels per acre.

One of the most remarkable yields in this old settled portion of Manitoba was that of P. Scharf of Manitou, who threshed from 15 acres the phenomenal yield of 73 bushels per acre.

These reports are but from one district, and when it is known that from almost any district in a grain belt of 30,000 square miles, yields while not as large generally as these quoted, but in many cases as good, is it any wonder that Canada is holding its head high in the air in its conquering career as the high wheat yielder of the continent? When it is pointed out that there are millions of acres of the same quality of land that has produced these yields, yet unbroken, and may be had for filing upon them as a homestead, or in some cases may be purchased at from $12 to $30 an acre from railway companies or private land companies, it is felt that the opportunity to take part in this marvelous production should be taken advantage of by those living on land much higher in price, and yielding infinitely less.—Advertisement.

Must Have Proteid.

We can live indefinitely and do the hardest kind of work, provided we get enough proteid, but we cannot work satisfactorily on a diet which is rich only in calories. Indeed, a very large proportion of people would be infinitely better in health if they cut down their heat-producing food and relied more on proteid. By diminishing the bulk of the food, we remove the pressure when an undue quantity of the resulting waste exerts on the blood vessels of certain parts of the intestines and this pressure is the cause of certain diseases like hemorrhoids.

NEW YEAR "NEVER AGAINS"

Suggestions for Husbands, Wives and All Lovers, Married or Single, That Are Timely.

If you haven't thought up any, here are a few timely suggestions:

For hubby: Never again to spend a moment out of the presence of the wife unaccompanied by a trustworthy guardian appointed by her, who will report faithfully all of your doings, even to the irregular quiver of an eyelash, or the drinking of soda instead of buttermilk.

Never again to be such a brute as to want to stay at home when the wife wishes to go out, or to wish to go out—by yourself—when wifie desires you to stay at home in the bosom of your family.

Never again to growl, grumble or swear, or pretend to be asleep when the wife pokes you in the back and asks you to walk with the baby in the middle of the night.

Never again to threaten to forbid tradespeople to allow the wife credit if she and the girls do not cease their extravagance—when the monthly bills come in.

Never again to forget to peck wifie on the cheek upon leaving her in the morning and coming home at night, to tell her that her frightful new bonnet is a perfect gem, and that her "fourteen-year-old" short dress is altogether too old-looking for her youthful figure.

For wifie: Never again to make biscuit for breakfast until you have tried them on your own digestion for a few weeks in the absence of the rest of the family.

Never again to notice pa exchanging glances with the pretty girl across the aisle all the way downtown.

Never again to keep the lights turned on when pa has been detained downtown "on business," in order to see what time he gets home, or to insist on his kissing you that you may smell his breath.

Never again to come to the table with hair in crimpers and wearing a soiled kimono.

Never again to subject pa to spells of lachrymose reproaches, telling him that he doesn't love you any more.

For lovers, married or single: Never to miss an opportunity to tell the dear old story over and over again.

Never to lose the coquettish elusiveness that makes lovers so delightful to each other.

Never again to spend the sweets of young lover souls in cheap flirtations when there is such a world of real happiness at your command.

Never to become insensible to the delicious tremblings and flutterings of your own heart, or to become lax in all of those lovely attentions and givings that help to keep a keen response a-thrill in the heart of the beloved.

THE OLD YEAR

He had his virtues. This old year was impartial. No discrimination knew he between classes or conditions. He meted the same number of hours to the man in the hovel and the man on the throne. The hour-glass he turned the same number of times for him whose garments were plain and coarse and him who wore garments of costliest fabric. Like God who sent him, this old year was no respecter of persons. He showed constant vigilance. No laggard, no loiterer, he. Having been sent to fill a space in time's calendar, he filled it to the full. Sent to mark off so many hours on time's dial, his hand was never slack; he slept not for a single swing of the pendulum. May we keep our vigils as faithfully! He fulfilled his mission. God's plans are deep, and we know little, perhaps, as to the real mission of any of these passing years, decades, centuries, and cycles, yet we know that each fulfills a purpose in the betterment of humanity; and in the closing year has served well his embassy in bringing the race nearer its final goal. A prize, peerless and bright, awaits each of us if we are true to our mission as the old year has been to his.—Rev. J. M. Hubbert.

Their Resolutions.

They were young as April as they pressed close to a window full of wonderful confections.

"What bad habits are you going to give up this New Year?" he asked.

"You," she answered briefly; "what bad habits are you going to give up?"

"Letting you have your own way," he responded firmly, "so our engagement stands."

"Very well, then, go in and buy me that heart-shaped box of candy." And both New Year resolutions went the way of their kind.

The Old and the New.

Another year has joined his shadowy fellows in the wide and voiceless desert of the past, where, from the eternal hour-glass forever fall the sands of time. Another year, with all its joy and grief, of birth and death, of failure and success, of love and hate. And now, the first day of the new o'erarches all. Standing between the buried and the babe, we cry, "Farewell and hail!"—Robert G. Ingersoll.

Helps Some.

"Some folks say dat mere words don't count," said Uncle Eben, "but de fact dat some folks think enough of you to say 'Happy New Year' to you helps some."

Look to the Future.

In reverent gratitude for the year gone, may we turn our faces toward the more blessed year to come.

Good Resolutions

What's Doing in Minnesota

Faribault. — The annual poultry show of the Cannon Valley Poultry association will be held in the armory here Jan. 18, 19 and 20. The show last year was the third largest in the state.

Plainview. — A petition is being circulated among citizens asking the attorney general to come to Plainview to investigate the alleged miscarriage of justice in the prosecution of state cases.

Moorhead. — William Brendemuhl, who was found guilty of murder in the third degree in the killing of his brother-in-law, Ole Norby, was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary at Stillwater.

Duluth. — Frank Stock, accountant, convicted of misappropriating money from his employers, and sentenced to five years in Stillwater, was given a pleasant Christmas present by Judge Bert Fesler, who placed him on parole.

Lyle. — Two workmen met death here in a cave-in of quicksand in a sewer ditch in which they were working. The dangerous part of the work was supposedly finished when the two men were sent to the bottom of the excavation.

Crookston. — The work of completing details for the program of the fifth annual farm crops show to be held at the armory in Crookston, Feb. 7 to 12 inclusive, has been practically completed, although a few of the speakers cannot be announced definitely.

Crookston. — The body of A. E. Schraeder, who was shot and killed at Schraeder, Texas, while writing a letter to his mother in Crookston, was buried here. He owned a big ranch. There is said to be no clue as to who fired the shot through his bedroom window.

Hibbing. — The 1916 meetings of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be held at Hibbing June 8 and 9 and at Bemidji Dec. 7 and 8. The places for holding the meetings were selected at Bemidji and the executive committee selected the dates.

Wheaton. — Along with Christmas festivities, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Evander, farmers living near Battle lake, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in the midst of a family group which included most of their seven children, many grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Minneapolis. — Christmas saw the passing of one of the state's pioneers when Elbridge O. Parker, former contractor, died at his home at 3015 Twenty-first avenue south. Heart trouble was the cause. Mr. Parker was 66 years old and had been a resident of the state 64 years.

Washington. — The peat fields of Minnesota will soon be utilized, according to Director Van H. Manning in the annual report of the bureau of mines, for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1915. That the Minnesota peat fields possess great potential wealth has already been recognized.

Winona. — When E. F. Tawney of Seattle, son of former Congressman James A. Tawney, leaves for Yokohama, Japan, where he was assigned last fall as customs agent for the United States government, he will be accompanied by his wife, son, mother and his sister, Miss Josephine Tawney.

Winona. — With a princely Christmas gift, Santa Claus filled Winona's stocking. It was in the form of three deeds which conveyed to the municipality property aggregating in value $125,000, the most magnificent and substantial present Winona ever has received, although exceptionally fortunate in that respect.

Winona. — The mysterious Thos. O'Connor, alleged to have confessed the murder of Dr. T. S. Egge of Moorhead, Minn., for which crime Frank H. Ketcham is serving a life term at Stillwater, appeared here with a positive and absolute denial of the story furnished by W. H. Miller of Dresbach, Winona county.

Little Falls. — The Elm Dale Stock Shipping association, an organization of farmers in southern Morrison county, has completed one of the most successful years in its history. It has paid $97,267 to shippers, having handled eighty-nine cars of stock, three shipments including 1,856 head of cattle, 3,085 hogs and 221 sheep.

St. Paul. — The University of Minnesota, through its department of agriculture, is planning to confer honors upon men who have been of signal service to Minnesota's agriculture and rural life. The first of such honors will be conferred on the last day of Farmers' and Home-Makers' Week, University Farm, St. Paul, January 3-8, 1916.

St. Paul. — One of the biggest Christmas presents given in St. Paul was hung on a tree in the home of Captain Josias R. King, who is said to have been the first man to enlist in the Northern army for the Civil war. It was a purse of $2,500 made up by 100 longstanding residents of the city and former members of the Pioneer guards.

Battle Lake. — Mark Johnson, son of Wallace Johnson, a farmer living north of here, is the owner of 80 acres of good farming land today, which didn't cost him a cent. It is a Christmas gift from Uncle Sam. A few weeks ago Mr. Johnson wrote to the department of the interior asking if there was any land in Otter Tail county open to filing. The department replied that 80 acres in section 24 were open. For years it had been presumed that that land belonged to the Great Northern railway. Mr. Johnson's son, Mark, promptly filed on the land. It is worth several thousand dollars.

QUACK GRASS HELK WORST WEED PEST

PLANT INFESTS MANY FARMS IN MINNESOTA—"U" BULLETIN CONTAINS WARNING.

STATE CAPITOL HAPPENINGS

Events of General Interest in Minnesota Condensed and Revised for The Greater Convenience of Busy Readers.

St. Paul.

Quack Grass Is Worst Pest.

Quack grass, declared Minnesota's most serious weed pest, is the subject of a bulletin just issued by the university's agricultural experiment station in which the menace of quack grass and methods of eradication are considered.

This weed is said to be a more or less serious pest throughout the Northwest. "In Southern and Central Minnesota," the bulletin states, "quack grass has established itself so thoroughly that in some instances farms have been abandoned to it. In Northern Minnesota it is already so widely distributed that time only is needed to make the occupation of waste places and poorly cultivated fields complete. The heavy black soil of the Red River valley is ideal for the growth of quack grass, and the all-grain systems of farming, still too prevalent there, make prevention of spread difficult and eradication almost impossible after the weed is once well established. Every effort should be made to prevent its spread in the state and to keep it out of uninfested territory. In order to do this it is necessary to know both the plant and its seed, for upon such knowledge methods of eradication are based.

To Prevent School Fires.

Prompted by the number of fires in schoolhouses in Minnesota in the last two years, Robert W. Hargardine, state fire marshal, has issued in pamphlet form an exhaustive set of rules for fire prevention and for fire drills "for the guidance of school boards, principals and teachers." For fire prevention he suggests adequate means of signaling, fireproof stairways, plenty of easy exists opening outward, fireproof boilerrooms in detached buildings wherever possible, extreme care in the storage of supplies, secured seats in auditoriums, fireproof fuel rooms, chutes and shafts There are 60 suggestions under this heading.

In the matter of fire signals, drills and apparatus the fire marshal says there should be a drill at least every two weeks under varying conditions to meet possible emergencies. Janitors and attendants, he says, should be assigned specific duties, and cards of instruction should be posted for employees, teachers and pupils.

"Loss of life in crowded buildings," says the fire marshal, "almost invariably comes from lack of control. Running, especially on the stairs, increases liability to falls and to impairments of a teacher's command of the class."

Special provisions should be made, the marshal says, for inspection of each floor to see that no persons are left in the building and to care for children physically incapacitated. It is urged that no inflammable scrap be allowed to accumulate.

Explains Rise in Death Rate.

Gradual rise in the death rate in Minnesota the last three years, as reported by the census bureau, is attributable to the fact that the population of the state is becoming more stable, less affected by influx of young persons from other states and countries, according to Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the State Board of Health.

The Federal report shows that the death rate in Minnesota for 1914 was 10.6 to every 1,000 of population, as compared with 10.4 in 1913 and 9.5 in 1912. The rate in Minneapolis shows a like rise in the period, having been 12 in 1914, as against 11.6 in 1913 and 10.4 in 1912.

Appoints Board Members.

Governor Hammond has announced six appointments on as many state boards, all to be effective at once. All of the selections are reappointments and are for five-year terms. Those named are: State Board of Electricity, A. W. Lindgren, Duluth. Board of Directors of the Minnesota Schools for the Deaf and Blind, R. H. Dart, Litchfield. State Live Stock Sanitary board, Dr. C. E. Cotton, Minneapolis. State Board of Osteopathy, Dr. Arthur Taylor, Northfield. Advisory commission of the State Sanitorium for Consumptives, Dr. C. F. McComb, Duluth. State veterinary examining board, L. Hay, Northfield.

Funds for Farm Societies.

State Auditor Preus has started the distribution of $85,000 to the county agricultural societies in the state. This amount was appropriated by the last legislature and is $15,000 less than was appropriated two years ago. In all, 96 societies will participate with a limit of $1,500 to each. The total cash premiums paid out by these societies last year was $115,199 and the pro rata share of each will be about .737 per cent of the total amount each is entitled to. The highest paid any society is $1,108.

HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA

Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne now heads the list as a successful remedy for the relief of headache, nervousness, insomnia, car sickness, etc.

The dangerous tablet has had its day. Hoyt's Headache and Neuralgia Cologne is a harmless, refreshing, fragrant preparation, marvelous in its action, relieving nervousness, sleeplessness, exhaustion and all head and nerve ailments by external use and inhaling. It is not a nerve food, but a nerve soother. By giving the nerves a rest they furnish their own food and tone, and all nerve pains disappear.

For children's colds and catarrh it is just the remedy, harmless and efficient and so pleasant to use. For men a pleasant remedy to relieve and clear the head "the morning after the night before." This is not an expensive preparation at 50 cents a bottle, because it brings the relief. It has many imitators at less price, but if they do not bring the desired results they are not cheap at any price.

Get Hoyt's and you will be satisfied. For sale at all drug stores.

Didn't Need the Ball.

Two neighboring football clubs had been drawn together. Local rivalry ran riot with the feelings of the players, and hard knocks were the order of the day. At the end of the first half each side had scored a goal, and several men had been wounded and winded in the fray.

Neither side being able to add to the score, the game resolved itself into a free fight. At last the ball collapsed and someone volunteered to go for a new one.

"Oh, never mind a ball," shouted a player from behind a bundle of bandages; "let's go on with the game!"

He Meant Business.

Mrs. Bennett arrived at the conclusion that the attachment of Teddy Nolan, the policeman, for her cook must be investigated lest it prove disastrous to domestic discipline.

One morning she took Annie, the cook, to task regarding the matter. Annie admitted his attentions.

"Do you think he means business, Annie?" asked Mrs. Bennett.

"Yis, mum, Oi t'ink so," replied Annie. "Annyway, he's begun to complain about my cookin', mum."—Judge.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT, EDITOR
M. G. HUNT, PUBLISHER

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 8, 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL.

This week closes holiday season for this year, and to morrow we greet 1916.

It is claimed that Wilson will not get any German-American votes next year, but that will not count a drop in a bucket of water, when compared to the number he will loose by the poor management of the post office department.

A careful reading of Lindberg's platform, and his announcement as a Republican candidate for governor, would lead one to conclude that he should be the candidate of the Socialist party, but he wont get votes, enough from any party to cut much ice, in the next campaign.

Thief River Falls business men are making an effort to induce the people to trade at home, instead of patronizing catalogue houses. The evil of the catalogue houses is becoming more apparent, as they draw all the money to the large cities, instead of its being used to build up the country in which we live.

There could be nothing more unfair, than for some Democratic politicians to try to lay the blame on Congressman Steenerson for the unsatisfactory mail service in this territory. Congressman Steenerson recommended that the mail service be given to the people as they petitioned for it, but the powers that be, promptly turned him down, and ignored the people's petitions by putting in mail routes to please politicians who are working for their private gain.

BILL TO HELP HOMESTEADERS.

An effort will be made at the present session of of Congress to let down the bars which have hitherto been raised against those who have taken homesteads, but for some reason or other, have failed to perfect them. Several ideas will be threshed out by by the public lands committee in order to give a new chance at the land to those who were not successful in getting quarter sections before.

The simplest bill yet proposed on the subject is that of Cong. Mondell of Wyoming, who merely creates a "deadline" of 10 years after which a former homesteader may again make homestead entry, regardless of what happened to his original homestead except that he must not be the owner of it at the time he seeks to make his second entry.

More elaborate in its preparation is the bill of Cong. P. D. Norton of Hettinger, N. D.

It provides in the first place that Indian reservation lands and lands homesteaded since 1900 shall be patented to entrymen who have in good faith complied with the residence requirements; without regard to the payment of any purchase price which has been attempted to be collected.

Rep. Norton's bill also provides that any settler who has already paid for any of these former Indian lands more than $1.25 an acre shall be granted the right to a second homestead entry the same as if the first had never been made.—T. R. Falls News-Press.

PENNINGTON WELL REPRESENTED.

Pennington County was represented at the Agricultural School, Crookston, during the fall term by students from near Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire. Young men and women from eighteen counties and five states attended the term which closed before the holidays. The largest attendance came from Polk, Marshall, Norman, Kittson, Roseau, Clearwater, Pennington, Beltrami, Mahnomen and Red Lake Counties. In addition, Becker, Clay, Ottertail, Case, Koochiching and three scattering counties were represented by students at the school indicating a wider distribution than any previous year. The advance enrollment for the second term is nearly 50 per cent over that of the first term which will make a new record for the year. Last year, 179 students enrolled during the regular school year, not counting teachers' and junior short course students. The second term opens January 4th. It is gratifying to note there is a good representation from Pennington County in the student body of the Agricultural School.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home and usually it comes quite unexpectedly. But you are prepared for every emergency if you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply laid on the skin—no rubbing required—it drives the pain away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Soister, Berkely, Cal. writes: "Last Saturday after tramping around the Panama Exposition with wet feet, I came home with my neck so stiff that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. To my surprise, next morning the stiffness had almost disappeared, four hours after the second application I was as good as new."

COUGHS AND COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

Few of us realize the danger of Coughs and Colds. We consider them common and harmless ailments. However statistics tells us every third person dies of a lung ailment. Dangerous Bronchial and Lung diseases follow a neglected cold. As your body struggles against cold germs, no better aid can be had than Dr. King's New Discovery. Its merit has been tested by old and young. In use over 45 years. Get a bottle to-day. Avoid the risk of serious Lung ailments. Druggists.—adv.

HELP YOUR LIVER—IT PAYS

When your liver gets torpid and your stomach acts queer, take Dr. King's New Life Pills and you will find yourself feeling better. They purify the blood, give you freedom from constipation, billiousness, dizziness and indigestion. You feel fine—just like you want to feel. Clear the complexion too. 25c. at druggists. —Adv.

MANY CHILDREN HAVE WORMS

Worms are a common childhood ailment. They make children irritable, nervous and restless, besides robbing the body and mind of proper nourishment. Watch your child. Examine the stools and at first signs of worms give your child a treatment of Kickapoo Worm Killer. They kill the worms, act as laxative and expel the worms and poisonous waste. Tone the system and help restore your child's health and happy disposition. Only 25c. at your Druggist.—Adv.

A Troublesome Cargo.

"An elephant's shoulder is never still" is a Hindu saying with reference to the restlessness of the animal. An Englishman tells how the elephant's passion for moving about once came near wrecking a ship.

A number of elephants were taken on board a vessel at Calcutta, and the steamer went down the Hugli river. At night it anchored off Saugor point. The sea was as still as oil, but the ship rolled so much that she was in danger of going over. The elephants had found that by swaying to and fro all together they could produce a pleasant rocking motion. As the ship had no other cargo and rode light the captain was much frightened. The hundreds of keepers were hurried down into the hold, and each one, seated on his own beast, made him "break step," but they had to stay there for a long time.

One on the Stenographer.

The other day a little stenographer in a downtown office in Boston begged some workmen who were putting up a new telephone not to place it so high on the wall as they were doing.

"You see," she said, "I have to use it as much as any one, and I am so short that I can hardly reach it."

"Oh, well, miss," said the humorist in charge of the work, "you can raise your voice, can't you?"—Boston Transcript.

Diplomacy.

When King Alfonso of Spain is staying at San Sebastian, says the Manchester News, he frequently goes across to Biarritz for an afternoon of recreation.

On one occasion he arrived at the station there and hailed a fiacre. The driver recognized him, and when his majesty asked what the fare was said, "For the king of Spain it will be 10 francs." The king smiled and merely paid the ordinary fare as provided by the tariff. To that amount, however, he added a tip of the usual size.

A few days later he was again in Biarritz and also took a fiacre. But on this occasion the cocher was more diplomatic. When asked the amount of the fare he replied, "Your majesty owes me nothing for the small service I have had the honor to render him." His majesty replied to this courteous speech by presenting the cabby with a 100 franc note.

Bricks From Babylon.

There is a law in the Turkish empire prohibiting the exportation of relics and antiques more than 100 years old and the fact that it is on the statute books gives rise to the common practice of offering spurious articles to the tourist. Real objects of art or of sufficient age to be of value are rarely to be purchased, and the general desire of the visitor, therefore, seems to be to obtain stones or pieces of clay from the sites of ancient ruins or bricks with inscriptions. The former can probably be obtained, but they are practically valueless, as the piece of clay from Babylon is quite like another from Musul. Bricks from either of these places that are known to be genuine are unobtainable.
